Railroads Present to Board Value of Their Stocks and Bonds.

FACTS REALLY WANTED NOT BROUGHT OUT

Northwestern to Be Given Chance Satarday Morning to Present Further Argument Regarding Assessment of Its Road.

tfrom a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, June 7 .- (Special.)-Two days. ahead of the time table was the record made by the Union Pacific, the Northwestern and the Burlington railroads in arriving at the state house terminals, the State Board of Equalization. They were scheduled to reach this point next Thursday afternoon, at which time a grand gabfest is to occur between those who want to talk over the proposition of railroad assessment, the day having been publicly set apart by the board for such, in due form, but they pulled in under a head of steam at an early hour this morning. To get here at this time Mr. Scribner of the Union Pacific returned from a record-breaking trip to New York, where he secured information concerning the value of the stocks and bonds of his company, though of scant importance. The Burlington was a few minutes behind the others and Mr. Pollard steamed in after the adjournment and only got a chance to announce that he was sorry. It made no difference, however, this delay in his arrival, for there was little satisfaction gotten by anyone out of the meeting. Mr. Scribner had been commissioned by the board to dig down in the records of the financial office at New York and bring back with him the value of the stocks and bonds of the Union Pacific railroad proper without the Oregon Short Line, the Oregon Navigation company and the Northern Securities company, but Mr. Scribner brought back nothing of the kind. He lined up for the edification of the board an array of figures showing the value of the stocks and bonds of the Union Pacific company, which included all others, from the year 1898 down to the present time, by giving the average quotation by month. It will be of no assistance whatever to the Then Mr. Scribner wanted some information from the board. He wanted to know what deductions had been allowed to offset their stocks and bonds, and Mr. Mortensen told him the board would not consider assessing anything that was assessed locally. This didn't suit Mr. Scribner by any means. He wanted deductions for the bonds of the Oregon Short Line, the Navigation company, the Securities company, the salt works, the water works and a whole lot of other things, which brought on a mighty argument of little value to the board in arriving at a method by which to assess railroads, with Mr. Scribner continually coming back to the tangible property proposition. At the final windup Mr. Mortensen suggested to Mr. Scribner that the board was not infallible, and if it did not do as the road desired the company could appeal to the courts for

Northwestern Presents Views. Then Frank Crandon, Peter Whitney and Ben White were given the right-of-way and steamed into the private office of the governor where the board was meeting. Mr. White acted as spokesman and told the sured the board that Mr. Crandon was not Mr. White assumed his old character as a done under the name of the Loup Valley ated a dialogue, during which Mr. Mortensen read Poor's Annual and the rest of the board looked like they wondered what the talk had to do with the revenue law. By that may be available from the out of Mr. Crandon that the Northwestern road in Nebraska was not near so valuable as in Illinois and Iowa and other states, and that very few of the boards in other states had even discussed the stocks and bonds proposition and that in Illinois the company had fine double tracks and such like. Mr. Mortensen then broke into the dialogue to remark that doubtless the double tracks would not be needed in Iowa and Illinois were it not for the Nebraska branch of the system piling shipments into Illinois. When Mr. Crandon had apparently been pumped dry by Mr. White, they adjourned, and so did the board, getting out in time to see the Burlington steaming into the station

PROJECTED RAILWAY FOR ARNOLD

Loup Valley People Planning to Build an Electric Line. ARNOLD, Neb., June 7 .- (Special.) - After much preliminary talk a meeting of citizens was held at Arnold and fairly well represented the various interests of this section. Among those present was Jacob Miller, who represents and is largely inboard that Mr. Crandon wanted another terested with the Denver and Cheyenne chance to present some facts in regard to capitalists, who recently bought the exthis stocks and bonds proposition. He as- tensive tripolite deposits near Arnold. Without much effort a sufficient amount then prepared to present his facts and was secured to incorporate a company to asked that some day be set apart. Then construct an electric line which will be Electric Railway company, and it is posed to capitalize at $1,000,000. The first step in the plan is to secure the services of an engineer to gauge the water power adroit questioning Mr. White brought it river at this point, and sufficient funds were quickly guaranteed for this purpose, A plan was discussed that the land for five miles adjacent, and which would be directly benefited by an electric line, be asked to contribute a pro rata amount per acre of the capital stock, aside from what may be secured by township bonds and from the feeling of the ones present many of whom have despaired of ever get ting transportation lines into this section. it seemed probable that a large amount could be raised by that means, as an electric line would no doubt enhance land values from 50 cents to $1.50 an acre.

The route of the proposed line which seems preferable would be to connect with the B. & M. at Broken Bow, the county seat, which would put this section in quick communication with the outside world and would insure a paying passenger and freight traffic.

Jacob Miller acted as chairman, A. G. Hoffman as secretary and W. C. Beltz as treasurer of the meeting, and much enthuslasm was aroused. Another meeting was called for Saturday, June 18, at which it is expected something tangible will be Andrews feelingly responded. The tablets accomplished in the way of further or ganization. In the meantime the various committees appointed will be busy bringing the project to a focus.

FARMER'S WIFE KILLS HERSELF

Mrs. August Knessel Found Hanging in Corn Crib Near Stanton. STANTON, Neb., June 7 .- (Special.)-Mrs. August Knessel, wife of a German farmer living six miles southeast of Stanton, committed suicide by hanging this morning Upon arising at 5 o'clock this morning, Mr. Knessel missed his wife and began a search, finding her lifeless body hanging from a stay in a corncrib. She had used the head shawl which she always wore. and which are quite commonly worn by foreign women, to end her life. She had climbed upon a box and after fastening the shawl about her neck and the stay of the crib had evidently kicked the box away so that her feet barely hung above floor. Mrs. Knessel was not of strong mind and sending her to an asylum had been considered. She was about 50 years of age and the mother of four grown children. The family is well-to-do finan-

Farmer Killed in Runaway. COLUMBUS, Neb., June 7 .- (Special.)-Rudolph Oppliger, a well-to-do German farmer living in Columbus township, was almost instantly killed in a runaway accident last night. He was returning home about 7 o'clock with a load of lumber and while on the Loup river wagon bridge his became unamanageable and ran away, throwing him out. For a distance he rode upon the doubletrees, and then fell off and a wheel rari over him, breaking his neck. The team ran on home, only a couple of miles, and his son retraced the course of the wagon and found the lifeless remains lying near the south approach of the bridge. Mr. Oppliger was & years old and had lived in this county for twenty-one years. He leaves a wife and three sons and two daughters. Ope of the sons lives at St. Louis. Just about a year ago Julius Rudat met with death in a sim ilar manner in the same locality.
