She was very, very beautiful, as no one can deny.

When she wore a mannish jacket and her shirts were rather high;
She had a jaunty manner and an off-hand, easy style.

As a trim and pert "young fellow" she was charming for a while.

But she's back in fluffs and flounces, she's a dainty thing once more adainty thing once more.

And a thousand times more lovely than she ever was before.

When she crossed her legs, boy-fashion, and took out a cigarette,
She was charming—let's admit it—though we looked on with regret!
She was luring in those garments that the envied tailors made,
There was something father cunning in the freckles she displayed,
But she's put away her swagger, she's returned to fluffy things.
And would be a lissom angel if she only had the wings.

She was splendid when, bare-besded and with strongly muscled arms.

She appeared before the public, showing off sunburned charms;

She was graceful and bewitching when her boots were like a map's.

And she took a pride in having all varieties; of tans. But she's ceased to be athletic, 'neath her dainty parasol
She's become the lovely lady that we like best, after all.

She has ceased to gambol gayly with her dainty ankles free.
But, in skirts that follow traffling, she approaches languidly:
She is pink and-white, she's girlish from hidden little toes.
To the highest bits of ribbon, to the farthest puffs and bows;
She has put away her swagger, she is feminine once more.
And a thousand times more lovely than she sver was before. ever was before, in Record-Herald.

The Social Calendar. TUESDAY — Philippi-Sparling wedding; Hofmayer-Bidwell wedding. WEDNESDAY—Ladies day at the Country clus; Midweek dance at Field club, SATURDAY—Field and Country club din-

Atide from an occasional wedding, a luncheon or some matinee affair, the so-cial calendar has become a set thing—the Field and Country clubs and the dances, luncheons and dinners, the tennis and golf that each affords each week. Now that the college folks are coming home, the next few weeks promise to develop much in the way of variety, for this particular set of young people are brimming over with fads and privileges and there will doubtless be much of an unusual nature before they are all settled for the summer.

One of the most unique diversions that the college people have brought back with them is the strolling party. It was intro-duced late last week at the Ribbles on West Howard street, and was one of the smart affairs of the week. The strolling party is patterned very much after the dancing party-only its participants do not dance. Each guest was given a program very much like the dance program, only instead of the dances there were the names of a score of popular songs—the latest of the new songs, too, by the way. Partners were chosen for each number and while it was "on," ten minutes or more, perhaps, the couple strolled about the lawn or off to some of the numerous cony corners on the verands, and "talked it over." Of course, the party was a big ss, so successful in fact, that oth strolling parties promise to appear on the calendar during the season of out-of-door

Dinner at the Country club last night was served to an unusual number, and more than the ordinary amount of galety and good feeling was enjoyed by the diners during the evening. Judge W. A. Redick had six in his party, D. A. Baum had six, M. A. Hall was host for a party of twelve, J. L. Kennedy served eight at his table, Miss Kimball had as guests a merry crowd of fifteen of the younger set, M. H. Cumings had six, J. B. Scobie had eight, Lee McShane had eight, and there were many other smaller parties.

It hasn't become a fad yet, but some of the smarter folks are giving more attention to the "life on the ocean wave" as it can be enjoyed around Omaha than ever before. Houseboats on Manawa are the contest cort of cool nocks, and as the sun climbs higher and blazes florcer, the attractions of these out-of-door places will be more and more appreciated. Fishing, swimming and boating are the natural accompaniments of the houseboat, and the privileged once are having a season of enjoyment such as those who stay in town

The last informal reception of the season will be held at the rectory on Tuesday evening. June III, for the parishioners of St. Harnabas' church and their friends, from 8 to 11 o'clock. A most cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the parishes.

One of the prettlest home weddings of the season was that of Miss Emma Parker and Mr. Clarence Lloyd Matthews, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Parker, 2505 South Twentieth street. About forty relawhich took place in the front parlor under a canopy of smilax and pink carnations. The rooms were beautifully decorated throughout with paims, asparagus ferns and bride roses. To the wedding march played by Dr. B. A. Van Fleet the bridal party came down the stairs and through an aisle of white illusion stretched by Miss freshments were served. At midnight the Hattle Reed and Miss Anna Marsh. Little Ruth Parker of David City, niece of the bride, acted as ring bearer, carrying the wedding ring in an American Beauty rose. The bride was becomingly gowned in white opera batiste, with trimmings of tucks and valenciannes lace. She carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas. WOMAN IN GLUB AND CHARITY

The experience of the Omaha club womes Monday afternoon and evening in the effort to dissuade one faction of the Board of Education from summarily dismissing five of the most competent principals in the city schools, merely to gratify the political and personal spite of an ex-superintendent. will undoubtedly cause the women of the city to figure in the next school board election as they never have before. Their activity of Monday was only a sequel to the part they had in the election two years ago, and incidentally, was a lesson in polities that they will not soon forget Their disgust at Monday night's proceedings, particularly engendered by the opposition to the McCague resolution, was only surpassed by their surprise in their enlightenment as to the ways of the politi

While the gathering of women at the meeting was not so large as had been hoped for, it included some of the most representative and leading club women of the city, whose influence will go far with other women. While the interest among the women had been keen ever since the ancouncement of the proposed plan to disodge the principals, the fact that the clubs have all adjourned for the summer, madeany concerted action difficult, and besides, in their inexperience, they hoped that the situation was not so serious as reported. The experience of the women of Park school district was rather discouraging, too, and so it was not until after 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, when some of the teachers who had suffered long and silently, realizing that unless something was done quickly the five principals must go, called upon the women to lend their influence. The telephone was the only means of communication, but in less than half an hour a score of women had been notified to spread the word and to enter a protest to the members they had helped to elect, against the execution of a plan that they deemed unjust and unprincipled.

Members Funkhouser, Cermak, Andreesen, McIntosh and Homan were the men that the women had been called upon two years ago to vote for, and in addition to communicating with them, remembering how Mr. C. C. Belden and others had addressed the various women's oragnization in their behalf, a delegation set out to interview Mr. Belden and ask that he now demand, of those members recognition of the women's protest. But Mr. Belden was out of the city, and learning in the meantime that Dr. George L. Miller and others of influence would go before the board in protest, some of the women went down to the meeting in the evening. The constitution of the Omaha Woman's club prohibits its members engaging in any political action, but it has been the custom of the club's educational committee to make investigation as to the moral and other qualification of school board candidates. regardless of their political party, and re-Mrs. M. E. Free and Miss Free will sail port to the club for the benefit of those fuly 9 to spend the summer traveling in who cared to vote. It was because of this provision that the women were unable, when called upon, to speak for the club Miss Ephen Tukey will ceturn from Kan- at the meeting, and so they announced sas City Wednesday, accompanied by her that they appeared only as individuals. Among these women were: Mmes. George visit here for the summer as her guest.

Mr. and Mrs. August Mothe-Borgium and S. Jaynes, Samuel Rees, all prominent Tilden, F. H. Cole, Edward Johnson, H. son will sail Thursday on La Savole officers or ex-officers of the Woman's club, besides other prominent members of other women's organizations.

The rumor now affoat that the defeated faction will undertake to still reach the principals they wished dropped when the time of assignment to school comes, by sending them to the smaller and more obscure schools, where their salaries will be greatly reduced, has roused the determination of the club women to act again. "Before we will submit to such an injustice," said one of the women, "we will call a mass meeting and ask the teachers to join us women and our husbands in protest." Another woman said "Well, we have learned that it is hard to tell who to vote for, but the women of Omaha have learned this week who not to vote for."
