The convention hall, with a seating ca pacity of 8,300, is beautifully decorated with long festoons of red, white and blue bunting carried around the four sides of the building. Between each circling arch supporting the roof is a group of five American flags, and upon each group a lithograph of President Roosevelt.

It is grace-fully and beautifully draped with the national colors. Watch it and you will see the eyes of the faithful continually turning toward it, full of love and admiration. It is by far the most striking feature of the decorations.

Vases of full blown peonles illuminate the platform. The presiding officer rests his gavel upon a table made by the South Side High school of Minneapolis. The convention is called to order and the call is read which was issued by Chairman Hanna a few days before his untimely death, and so great is the regard of the party for the dead leader that the reading of his signature even is a signal for great outburst of applause.

Elihu Root is cordially received. Before he has a chance to say anything an easel is rapidly, set upon the right hand corner of the platform and a picture covered with a vell is placed upon it. The vell is without delay removed and it turns out to be a large sized portrait of President Roosevelt. This is received with applause and is quickly removed. Just why this was projected into the proceedings at this stage and then immediately withdrawn no one seems to have found out.

Root's Great Effort. Mr. Root's speech on Tuesday occupied fully an hour in delivery and was very handsomely received. It is no figure of speech to say that this was a great ors When you read it, you will be impressed by the fact that it involved an immense amount of work and that the work has been well done. There is little of rhetoric or declamation—there is not room for it. It is a powerful, exhaustive and effective presentation of the progress and development of the republic under repub lican administrations. It would be difficult to summarize it, as it is in itself a summary. It is not necessary to quibble to unreservedly accept every proposition contained therein in order to say that it will nake a first class campaign document. In concluding his elaborate and eloquent ribute to McKinley he made an incidental reference to Hana. Here was no oratorwas the especially draw attention to him. But the mere mention of Hanna's name in this ncidental manner precipitated, everything considered, the sensation of the day, and disclosed as nothing else could the tresincere reverence for him.

Makes Significant Remark. able address was that forecasting auto nomy for the Phillipines. If authorative, and we may perhaps assume that it is in a sense, this is certainly a declaration fraught in great consequences. It is es pecially significant, coming as it does, from the ex-secretary of war, whose relation to that question in all of its phrases has been probably more intimate than that of any other man. He must know whereof he affirms. Whether or not it is in any sense a re sponse to the widely signed memorial in the interest of the Philippine independence, which had the endorsement of so many men representing very largely our univer sities and colleges, it certainly indicates a very decided and gratifying trend in the right direction in high official quarters. Mr. Root's percration closed with, "The honesty, the purity and the courage of Theodore Roosevelt," evoking a storm of applause, lasting for thirty seconds. There is an impression that this is the point where the portrait was intended to have been unveiled.

Wednesday opens with magnificent con vention weather, cool, clear and delightful. The delegates and the audience gathered more promptly than yesterday. As prominent and distinguished men enter the hall they are recognized with applause. Senator Fairbanks, soon to be the vice presidential nominee, received quite an ovation as he walked down the alale and cordially and impartially shook the hands of delegates within reach upon either side. A large vase of American beauty roses now decorates the platform.

Cannon Gets Applause. The principal point of interest in the report of the committee on permanent organization, which was duly accepted, was he naming of Speaker Cannon as the permanent chairman of the convention. His name was greeted with applause, and he received a most magnificent ovation as he stopped upon the platform and was introduced to the convention by Mr. Root. In discussing the general political conlitions and the responsibilities of parties will be withdrawn. Senator Dolliver will present the name of Senator Fairbanks to he convention. With the platform completed and in the hands of the full committee, every element of speculation seems removed from the remaining sessions of the convention. The members of the Colorado delegation said that following the action of the Illinois delegation they would not present the name of John W. Springer as a vice presidential candidate from that state.

Cannon Central Figure. Because Speaker Joseph G. Cannon was the central figure the proceedings of the republican national convention today took on a picturesqueness and demonstrativeness which yesterday was looked for in vain. From the moment he was escorted to the platform to wield the gavel as the permanent chairman the entire atmosphere of the convention changed. Enthusiasm which had laid dormant burst forth and the applause rang strong and hearty. He made a speech and the audience cheered whanever he spoke jocularly or in serious

It contained declarations of party policy that are to form the basis of much of the oratory in the coming campaign. But the perma nent chairman's personality almost overshadowed the platform.

The second day of the convention might have been the close had it been the desire of the assembled delegates. Early in the day a movement was inaugurated to proceed with the nominations, but the original program which was prepared to extend over three days, prevailed and the standard bearers for the 1904 republican campaign from all forms of entry of 1,013,000 acres of will be named formally tomorrow.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) CHICAGO, June 23.-(Special Telegram.)-Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa will place Senator Fairbanks' name in nomination for the vice presidency tomorrow. This was decided upon late this afternoon as a result of the Illinois delegation deciding not to place the name of Hon. R. R. area nineteen square miles; population. will be made by Senators Foraker and De-

An effort was made today to secure a pledge from the Nebrasks, Missouri and Colorado delegations that they would not present the names of their respective candidates for the vice presidency. Springer of Colorado insisted that every man who has secured an sudorsement from a state convention for an office like vice president is entitled to have his name go before the national convention. This position he endeavored to impress upon Mr. Webster, but the latter was not wholly satisfied in his mind that it is good politics to go before the convention with but sixteen votes and accordingly took the matter of allowing his name to be presented under advisement. Delegation Feels Sore.

It was urged about the Nebraska headquarters that Senator Fairbanks had not honored the delegation with a call upon them, neither had any member of the Indiana delegation solicited a vote out of the Nebraska delegation. It was pointed out to these men, many of whom are attending a national convention for the first time. the W. E. Reid company today caused the collapse of the factory brick building for six delegates.

Foraker offered an amendment increasing was the lowest bidder. He offers to erect that it would have been impertment on the collapse of the factory brick building for six delegates. It was disposed of through an amend- satisfactory work before on government brasks delegation and sak for their votes date. When it was understood that Mr. Webster had decided to withdraw from the race, then it would be ample time to wait upon Nebraska's delegation in the interest of Mr. Fairbanks. While it is not believed that either the through the Navy Aspartment and Admiral name of Mr. Webster, Mr. Walbridge or Mr. Springer will be presented to the convention, the specious reasoning of one or progress is not being made and it is intitwo of these candidates may have weight, and although they have no show of winning some of the delegations may insist upon executing the trust placed in them by

> It is estimated that there are at least 1,000 Nebraskans in Chicago today, many of them arriving this morning to participate in the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt and Charles W. Fairbanks. Everywhere you went today you saw a Nebraskan or an Iowan. You knocked elbows with him in the lobbies of hotels, in cafes and also in drinking places. He was good-natured, loud in his praise of his commonwealth and you could not doubt his honesty when he spoke of its future.

> Brome Gets Mixe A funny incident occurred today with the Nebraska delegation. When a vote was being taken on the resolution to give Hawaii two votes, John Piper, the secretary in polling the Nebraska delegation, informed Chairman Brome that there were sixteen ayes. Two of the delegation changed as Brome was announcing Nobraska's vote, so that the vote appeared as sixteen ayes and two nays, a clear gain of two, Brome started to correct the vote, making the result of the vote fourteen and two, but Speaker Cannon's wagon was in motion and another state was announcing its vote before Brome could secure recognition, and he subsided. Governor Mickey came into town this morning. He remained during the session of the convention and left for Nebraska tonight.
