

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Values go Skyhigh and Shorts Scramble for the Cover. WHEAT AND OTHER CEREALS ARE VERY DULL.

Corn Bid Up by Some Dealers Who Are Short on Deliveries, but No Business Rush Follows.

There was a scramble of shorts to get under cover today, and well they might. Values which were strong yesterday were inflated even more today and went sky-high with a bound.

Wheat market was dull and Omaha was not a single move to disrupt the stagnation. Corn was bid up by some on professional manipulation, but there were no sellers in July.

International Manufacturing Enjoined from Making Washing Machines. COURT DECIDES FOR DAVENPORT CONCERN.

After Year and Three Suits Iowa Company Decides to Protect Its Patent Against Infringement.

Judge John E. Carland of the United States circuit for the district of South Dakota, who occupied the equity and civil bench of the United States circuit court in Omaha last month, has granted an injunction to the H. F. Brammer Manufacturing company of Davenport, Ia., against the International Manufacturing company of Omaha restraining the latter company from the further manufacture of certain washing machines, which it held as an infringement on the patent owned and controlled by the Brammer company.

The decision grants that the plaintiffs may recover from the defendants amounts and savings made and realized by defendants in the manufacture and sale of washing machines and all damages sustained by reason of the infringement upon the Brammer patents.

The cause is referred to Charles G. McDonald as special master of the United States court, by consent of counsel for the respective parties to take and report the account of damages under this decree.

The question of increase of damages under section 4221 of the United States statutes is reserved until the coming in of the master's report.

In Court for a Year. This case has been pending in various forms in the United States courts for nearly a year. Suits first was brought by the Brammer company, with the United States as a party plaintiff, against the International Manufacturing company for damages for infringement of patent. This case was decided in favor of the defendant and then another suit was brought for damages resulting to plaintiff from the manufacture and sale of the machines in question.

Immediately thereafter the plaintiffs brought suit to enjoin the further manufacture of the machines by the defendant on the ground that they were not only an infringement of the Brammer patents, but also a violation of the law of the state of Iowa, which provides that no person shall manufacture or sell any machine which infringes upon the patent of another.

The International Manufacturing company of Omaha was doing a fine business in the sale and manufacture of the machines, which it held were made under a patent owned and controlled by it. The members of the Omaha concern are F. C. Healy, Thomas W. Healy, John W. Power, A. J. Cooley and James W. Martin.

NOT TOO OLD TO CATCH BEES. An Old Inhabitant, known in the city directory as John Haley, and an 82-year-old veteran of the civil war, figured on the heroic exploit of the day Monday afternoon. A large swarm of honey bees came to town and lit on the ornamental lamp at the northeast corner of Thirtieth and Farnam streets. Walter Taylor, a colored porter, and Alex. Russell, hackman No. 55, secured some stoppers from the can, put a can for a drum, and started to live the bees. Russell mounted a ladder and gave the honey-makers the water cure, while Taylor played a merry tattoo on the can.
