Robert Wallace brought up the matter of the Tabor Electric railroad, saying he believed that the Commercial club ought to make some move in the matter, as it was very doubtful if the company ever intended building the line, despite all promises to the contrary. He said his firm had sold the company considerable land for its right-of-way, but he did not for a moment anticipate it would ever use it. Mr. Wallace urged that the club invite the motor company to extend its line to the School for the Deaf, street car facilities having been promised at the time the move was $5,000 damages for personal injuries alleged recently made to take the institution away from Council Bluffs. Tuesday, Beptember 6, the second day of the street fair, will be designated as "Old Settlers" Day," and a reunion of the pioneer residents of southwestern Iowa will be held on that day. There will be a special program, including addresses by well known speakers. The Commercial club is now issuing invitations to the old settlers in southwestern Iowa to lake part in the reunion on that day. If the building is sufficiently advanced by that date it is more than likely that the laying of the cornerstone of the Carnegle library by the Council Bluffs lodge of Elks will be carried out that day.

chairmen of the republican and democratic Everything in Readiness Then for an Orderly Party Funeral When November Rolls Around.

> (From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, July 6 .- (Special.)-Local democrats who are watching the actions of the Iowa delegation at St. Louis are gratified at the reports which come from that city of the prospects of a harmonizing of the different elements of the party, and declare the national convention will have the result of removing all factional lines and of placing the party in a more united condition than it has attained since the break away from Bryan in 1896.

At the time of the first nomination of the Nebraskan for president Iowa democrats, who could not swallow the free silver deciarations of the Chicago convention, were among the first in the country to sweep aside party affiliations and declare that patriotism lay above partisanship. Thousands of these democrats went directly to the republican party, casting their votes for McKinley, and a large number of them have voted with that party up the cause of sound money as exemplified in the Palmer and Buckner ticket, chise, which were estimated at from $1,200 times by the engine and pushed nearly and though they openly bolted Bryan, endeavored to keep themselves in line with the party on all other issues and claimed Vermont Woman Recognizes Man train to a stop. The action of this latter class, more than any other thing, has been the cause of the continuous war which has been waged in the ranks of the Hawkeye democracy since, and which was carried almost the breaking point at the late convention held in Des Moines, in which the Hearst advocates wrested the control of the machinery of the party from the conserva tives. The test of strength between the two elements of the party on the state central committee showed them to be nearly evenly divided, with the Hearst men in a majority by the naming of C. A. Walsh as a member of the committee by action of the convention. This and the further act of the Hearst delegates in choosing A. W. Maxwell of Seymour as chairman of the central committee raised a good-sized row, and there have been threats of bolting on both sides and declarations of the opening and maintaining of two state headquarters for
