Opinions of Individual delegates are not to be had, for no one knows but the committee what is in the platform; their first knowledge will be had when they read it in the papers in the morning, although Chairman Daniel went through the motions of reading it to the convention tonight.

Make Tempting Offer. Harry C. Evans of Des Moines, a son-inlaw of General Weaver and a delegate to the convention, told one interesting story of the completeness of the Parker organization. He said:

'Iowa has eight anti-Hearst men in the delegation. When the election of a successor to Charley Walsh as national committeeman came up the Parker crowd in the delegation came to me with the suggestion that I be a candidate for national committeeman from Iowa. They promised me their 8 votes and then named over members of the delegation of our party who would support me as against Walsh. I told them it was out of the question, that I would stand by the friends of Hearst, who had elected a majority of the delega-tion, and though Walsh might be unpopular I would not be a party to his defeat. Later the Parkerites held out a most alluring proposition. They said if I would stand for national committeeman and be elected the national committee would elect me its secretary at a salary of $5,000 for four years, but, loyal to the instructions of the state convention, I told the Parkerites that they could not buy me."

men was so great that many persons without tickets forced their way into the hall. The first genuine reception of the evening was given to David B. Hill of New York, who made his first appearance in the hall. General Nelson A. Miles was also present for the first time. At 8 o'clock there was intense. On the outside the crowd was even greater than within the Collseum, Tickets sold so cheap that they were was that the cheapest tickets were for seasons gone by and the buyer took his to and fro. own chances on getting by the doortenders. The streets on the four sides of the Collseum were impassable. Street cars got through with difficulty and with danger to the crowd pressed against the entrance, loath to give up the hope of getting in. Convention Called to Order. A series of energetic thumps on the presiding officer's table were given by Chairnon Clark at 8:03 o'clock in an endeavor to call the convention to order. The reading clerk, ordered the floor officers to clear the aisles. As Mr. Clark stood at the desk Senator Daniel of Virginia, chairman of the resolutions committee, made his way to his side with a copy of the platform.

It was announced that the report of the committee would be received and at the statement the first demonstration of the night session occurred. Senator Daniel began his announcement during the uproar. "I am instructed to make to the convention," he began, "this unanimous report from the committee on resolutions." senstor's persistence had the desired effect, although it was several minutes before the convention composed itself, and warning had to be given by the reading clerk that quiet must be preserved.

Daniel Reads Platform Senator Daniel's exhaustion from his long session with the resolutions committee was apparent. To the vast audience which faced him he was but a silent figure with moving lips. Ten minutes went by with the same disorder, the reading of the platform not being heard. Chairman Clark demanded order ineffectually.

Disturbances resulting from cries order from various portions of the hall exhausted the pattence of Chairman Clark and he gave personal directions to have several persons hushed or put out. Senator Daniel refused to be disturbed. He proceeded with the reading of the platform regardless of the fact that not one soul in the hall heard a word, except, perhaps, the stenographer who stood at the steps just beneath him.

Moves for Adoption. Senator Daniel said: "I am unanimously instructed by your committee on platform to move the previous question and its adoption, and I now make that motion." It was adopted by a viva voce vote, two or three delegates voting in the negative. apparently in a spirit of fun. Chairman Clark then put the motion to adopt the report and another viva voce vote car-

Temporary Chairman Williams mounted the steps leading up to the platform. swung his hat around his head and the delegates, following his lead, roared their applause again and again while the band played "Hall Columbia." "The clerk will now call the roll of states for the nomination of a candidate for president," shouted the chairman. A wild ery of delight came from the galleries, who seemed to think the whole thing a show run for their entertainment.

"Alabama," shricked the clerk. "Alabama yields to the Empire state of New York," called Delegate Russell of Alabama, standing in his chair, one arm grasping the standard of his state marker.

Nominations in Order. Martin W. Littleton of New York, of edium height and sturdy figure, with a full, clean shaven face, with a heavy mass of dark brown hair tossed back from his brow and ears took the stand amid ringing applause to place Judge Parker of New York in nomination. Mr. Littleten's manner of speaking is calm and deliberate and he uses but few gestures. His voice is full, resonant and of decidedly pleasing quality and could be heard further than that of any speaker who had preceded him, with the possible exception of Richard P. Hobson

Littleton Nominates Parker. Martin W. Littleton of New York said

In part:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention—We do not expect here that stupid peace which smells of chloroform. We do not wish that unctuous unanimity which springs from the unconflicting emotions of a solitary man. We would not have our harmony in a single harness. We, too, love the stir of a strenuous life; but we believe in equal strenuousness for none. We do not derive our power from the seats of the mighty, but the souls of the humble. We do not ask for mane agreement springing from faithless fires; but rather out-bursts of dissension issuing from robust ing from faithless fires; but rather outbursts of dissension issuing from robust freedom.

The country called upon New York for the best of its brain and blood, and New York answers with a man who cut his way through poverly and toil until he found the highest peak of power and honor in the state. The country called upon New York for a democrat and New York answers with a man who learned the simple lessons of democratic faith in the furrowed field, who took them with increasing strength to the bar and finally honored them by his exalted station on the bench, a man, who throughout his career from poverty to power never in fair weather or foul forsook the standards of his party faith or deserted the colors of his command. The country called upon New York for a democrat free from factional dispute and New York answers with a man friendly to all factions, but a favorite, and afraid of none; a man who will take counsel and courage of both, but who will take the bliterness of neither, a man who will not sift the haired of the past nor share the acrimony of the present, but who will lead us up toward the future into a cloudless atmosphere of party peace.

The country called upon New York for a man to fit this, the critical hour and place in our national life and New York answers with a man who puts against an executive republic, a man who puts against an executive usurpation s knowledge of and a deep love for the poise and balance of its three great powers; a man who puts against executive usurpation s knowledge of and a deep love for the poise and balance of its three great powers; a man who puts against executive usurpation s knowledge of and a deep love for the poise and balance of its three great powers; a man who puts against executive usurpation s knowledge of and a deep love for the poise and balance of its three great powers; a man who puts against executive usurpation s knowledge of and a deep love for the poise and balance of its three great powers; a man who puts against executive usurpation s knowledge of

Mr. Littleton was given close attention. For the first time during the session there was silence in the hall and his fine voice suppressed the flend in the gallery with his cry of "louder." His speech was received with alternate cheers and outbursts of approving laughter, few points being lost on his audience. A terrific outburst of cheering followed Mr. Littleton's remark about Judge Par-

"If you ask me why he has been silent, I answer because he has not attempted to be the master of his party, but is content to be its servant."

Enthusiasm Follows Speech. All that had happened in the convention up to the time Mr. Littleton concluded his address multiplied many times was as alnost nothing compared to the hurricane that broke out when he mentioned the name 'Alton B. Parker" on the part of the Parker delegates. It was a revelation in the passion of politics. Like one man they sprang up in their chairs with everything that could be waved tossed high in the American flags appeared magically and tossed flaming bits of color into the scene. At the expiration of twenty-two minutes efforts were made to still the demonhumanity. Long after the hall was filled stration. A megaphone shout near the platform was begun for "Parker!"

"Parker!" "Alton B. Parker!" however, and things again broke loose. The demonstration lasted twenty-five minutes.

> Bryan Was Quiet. Throughout the enthusiasm the Nebraska delegation, Bryan at its head, sat, the thusiastic, were much less in volume than members craning their heads to see what was going on, but without rising. When the demonstration was at its height

Mr. Bryan sent a message to someone in the other part of the hall and soon he was in conference with several anti-Parker men. Commanding the highest view of anyone on the floor of the hall were five boys in the New York delegation who were lifted on their fathers' shoulders and from that height led the cheering of the delegation, keeping time with waving flags. "Arkansas!" shouted the clerk when quiet was restored. "Arkansas yields to Tennessee," answered the chairman of the delegation. Senator plause, making perhaps a stronger demon-Carmack of that state was recognized and at once took the platform and began a speech seconding the nomination of Judge

Parker.

Senator Carmack concluded his speech a 10:15. The galleries seized the opportunity minutes, while Chairman Clark of his utterances was confined to handpounded with his gavel for order. "California," called the clerk.

"Mr. Chairman," responded Delegate "California recognizes as its Tarpey. spokesman E. M. Delmas." Delmas Nominates Hearst.

"I recognize E. M. Delmas of California," said the chairman, and a volley of cheers | Hearst. He made this fact plain at the came from the audience, Mr. Bryan leading it by standing up and waving a small American flag.

Mr. Delmas, who took the platform to speak for William R. Hearst, while not possessed of a voice of the strong carrying malities of Mr. Littleton's, could easily make himself heard by the majority of the people in the hall.

Mr. Delmas' address was as follows For the first time in history California presents as a candidate for the great office of chief executive of the republic one born and reared upon her soil. She bespeaks your induigence while she sets forth the motives which animate her hopes and the claims which justify the aspirations of her son. California's candidate is no stranger to public life.

claims which justify the aspirations of her son. California's candidate is no stranger to public life.

He is today the representative in congress of the imperial state which is now his home. Without New York it is confessedly idle to look for victory next November. Can he carry New York? Less than two years ago he ran for congress in a district which the year before had given the democratic nominee for mayor of Greater New York a majority of only 1.800. That district he carried by more than 16,000. Such a majority exceeds by over 2,000 that given in the some district but a few year's before to the learned and distinguished jurist who was then elected chief justice of the state, and it is greater by nearly 5,000 than that given a year later to the democratic candidate for mayor, although he threw into the contest the weight which posterity accords to an honored and historic name. That majority represented 72 out of every 100 votes cast. In hours which tried men's souls others have deserted the ship. His democracy has remained steadfast and constant as the Northern star.

His political practice and political creed finds fitting expression in his address accepting his nomination for congress, where, in words that Jefferson might have uttered, he said: "I have always devoted my energies and abilities, whatever they may be, to the cause of the plain people and I shall continue to do so. The laws must now be applied, and where necessary must be strengthened, to protect the amid great cheering. Wright declared that he came from a section of Iowa which elects democratic congressmen and where democrats are not educated in "Coin's financial school." He seconded the nomination of Judge Parker. This developed great cheering. When he returned to his seat his fellow delegates from Iowa attempted to deprive him of his

Hon. M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, was United States Senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., from Washington, D. C., he says: "I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."-M. C. Butler. The only rational way to cure dyspepsia is to remove the catarrh. Peruna has won its way into thousands of homes and millions of hearts by its marvelous cures of catarrhal affections. Peruna does not produce artificial digestion. It cures catarrh and leaves the stomach to perform digestion in a natural way. This is vastly better and safer than resorting to artificial methods. Peruna has cured more cases of dyspepsic than all other remedies combined, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If catarrh has fastened itself in the throat or bronchial tubes, Peruna cures it. When catarrh becomes settled in the stomach, Peruna cures it, as well in this location as any other.

Peruna is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Peruna cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh. Most Wonderful Cure of Dyspepsia
