Remember

You can no more gain a practical, thorough business education in a business college that is not business from top to bottom, practical in its course, in its teachers and in its training of its pupils, and thorough in its discipline and in its molding of its students' minds and business habits, than you can fatten a fanning mill by running wheat through it.

Boyles College has a claim on the consideration of everyone thinking of taking up stenography or accounting, because it is absolutely and uniquely business—its instructors are business men and women—its course is one formulated by business men and tested by business as it is practiced with profit by the master business men—it instills into the pupil's mind a deep realization of the fascination of business properly conducted—it puts into its graduates the stuff out of which successful business men and women are made.

Nebraska Business College

A. C. ONG, A.M., LL.B., Pres.; A. J. LOWRY, Prin. 17th & Harney Sts.

COLLEGE NOTES.

"Show me your teacher and I will judge of your ability." is a saying brim full of logical truth. This institution has a faculty of teachers of an entirely different mental caliber from those usually employed in business colleges. They possess not only that thorough general education, but have practical training and long experience in the business office themselves, thus enabling them to teach the things the business man expects one to know and is not found in text books.

Prof. A. J. Lowry, principal of the Commercial Department, is probably the best known commercial teacher in the west. He has spent over twenty years as principal of schools and behind the desk of the accountant. His students, who have gone out into the banks, and almost every wholesale house and office of the railroads, by the hundreds, and in no voice proclaim his skill. They are waiting for the day when they can graduate from the Missouri State Normal, two years in the University of Missouri, finished with class honors all the courses in the leading business college of Illinois and holding a diploma from the Missouri State Normal, a graduate of the Nebraska School for Teachers. These qualifications, together with four years of the most successful experience as instructor, give Miss Miller a rank in her profession far above the mediocre teacher—too often found in schools.

It means everything to a student to be under teachers of rank, learning and distinction. It means disappointment, defeat and failure to be under poverty-stricken and inexperienced and impractical teachers. Don't forget the saying, "The teacher makes the school." This institution has employed the most skillful teachers to be found east or west. Do you not wish to be under the best?

GREGG SHORTHAND

There have been a great many systems of shorthand devised, yet only a few have been found practical. The Gregg Shorthand has made its mark because of its simplicity, its wonderful possibilities for high speed, and the fact it is so easily learned and written. The system has made it possible for the student to acquire a shorthand system in a few weeks, and if you are contemplating a course of this kind, Gregg Shorthand will be taught by the most successful teacher in the country. This institution employs more practical and highly qualified teachers than all the schools in Omaha combined.
