PEABODY EXCUSES HIS WORK

Explains Why Military Was Turned Loose in Colorado.

SAYS STRIKERS BROUGHT ON TROUBLE

Miners Who Were Striking for More Pay Would Not Let Others Take Their Places Without Trouble.

DENVER, July 30.—Governor James H. Peabody today issued an address explaining and vindicating his acts in dealing with the labor troubles in Colorado. He relates the contention that the strike inaugurated by the Western Federation of Miners at the ore reduction works in Colorado City was called because of the failure of the legislature to enact an eight-hour labor law, pointing out that it was called on February 14, 1903, six weeks before the adjournment of the legislature, which then had under consideration an eight-hour law. Later a sympathetic strike was declared by the Federation at Cripple Creek to cut off their supply in the mills.

Governor Peabody goes into the history of the Western Federation of Miners, which he declares, has been replete with assassinations, dynamite outrages and murder. In affording protection to men who desired to labor, the governor explains, "it became necessary, in my judgment, to confine certain men in military guardhouses as one of the safest and most expeditious methods of restoring order. It was loudly proclaimed that this was without authority of law. The question was submitted to the supreme court and the action of the militia in that respect fully sustained. It is a useful and necessary power and the class that should dread its exercise is now numerous.

Intimates Strikers Caused Trouble. "The general policy pursued in Cripple Creek was followed in other parts of the state and particularly in Telluride, where the excessive and extreme of the Federation had been still more inhuman than in any other district and the reign of terror still more complete. Order now prevails there."

Quiet had been restored at Cripple Creek and the troops withdrawn when the dynamite outrage was committed at the Independence depot June 4, followed by the riot at Victor. The governor places the responsibility for both these occurrences on the Federation.

When the excitement had somewhat subsided and the country was still under martial law, the governor continued, "I was found that there were several hundred members of the federation in the district who would not work and had resolved that others should not, if by such methods as those employed at the Independence station they could be driven away. We resolved that they should be dispersed, and I dispersed them." Governor Peabody denies the charge that he is waging war on labor unions generally, and closes as follows:

"I have had to deal with an organization which has no counterpart in this country. Its official proclamations, full of defiance and challenges, issued upon time to time, have amounted, as has been said, to 'a declaration of war.'"

"I have met the challenge with a policy more vigorous for the outwary I was called upon to oppose. But through it all I have had but one object, and that was to show that the laws of Colorado will be upheld and that the military force will be used to enforce the policy of this administration, and that everywhere within the borders of the state."

KILL TWO MEN AND GET CASH

Pennsylvania Possie is Searching for Band Who Robbed Coal Company Paymaster.

PORTAGE, Pa., July 30.—Charles Hays, a driver employed by the Puritan Coal company, was shot and killed today and Patrick Campbell, the company's paymaster, was fatally wounded by three men, who escaped after taking a match containing $3,000 with which it was intended to pay the coal company's employes at Puritan.

The two men were passing in a buggy when the robbers, armed with shotguns, emerged from the woods near the road and fired at them. Armed posses are seeking the robbers and threaten to lynch them if captured.

Campbell said he thought their assailants were Italians. They began to use their shotguns, he said, before he and Hays, who were both armed, could get out their revolvers.

Campbell was also the general superintendent of the Puritan mills.

It is reported that two suspects have been arrested at Beaver Dam.

An Englishman, whose name is not known, was caught while running from a house in Portage this afternoon. He had been seen earlier in the day near where the holdup occurred, but escaped. Late this afternoon three Italians were arrested at Wilmore's foreign settlement. They were almost exhausted and came from the direction of Portage. The men denied their guilt and no money or weapons were found on them.

West's Condition is Unchanged. SWEEPSTAKES SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 30.—The condition of ex-Senator Vest today was practically unchanged although he rested well last night.
