ORIGIN OF COPPER COMBINE

Tommy Lawson Tells How the Trick Was Turned and Where the Public Came In.

The great Anaconda mine, and affiliated properties, previous to the creation of the Amalgamated, were owned by J. B. Haggin, Lloyd Tevis and Marcus Daly. The control of the properties and their operations were absolutely vested in Marcus Daly, and he alone knew where the lean veins ended and the fat ones began. Deep fown in his mind Marcus Daly cherished a dream-a dream of immense riches, and it was to be realized in a simple enough way. He should get together the millions to buy out his partners on a basis of the valuation of the "ore in sight," then in supreme ownership himself, reap untold profits out of the milling of the plethoric veins he had een so careful to leave unworked.

Mr. Daly met Henry H. Rogers, The niner confided his dreams and his aspirations to the magnate, who at once magnificently undertook to realize them. The trade was almost instantly made. Rogers would buy the properties of Daly, Haggin and Tevis at "in sight" prices, and Daly would be his partner, but the partnership must remain secret until the purchase was consummated. The ownership of the Anaconda company at the time consisted of 1,200,000 shares, and with the purchase of a few shares over the majority of the "in sight" lean vein valuation of $24,000,000, would carry the turnover of the management and the control. It took but a very brief time to get together the other properties which were finally included in the first section of Amalgamated. They consisted of the Colorado, Washoe and Parrot Mining companies, and timber, coal and other lands, and mercantile and like properties situated in the state of Montana, for which Mr. Rogers paid in round figures $15,000,000, a total of $39,000,000, for what within a few days after the purchase was capitalized at $75,000,000 in the Amalgamated company .- T. Umpire of Italian Commission Completes

His Labors. DISPOSES OF CLAIMS FOR 360 CITIZENS

Aggregate Awards for Damagea Sustained by Italian Citizens During the War Cut Down to $600,000.

WASHINGTON, July 31 .- Jackson H. Raiston of this city has just signed his final award as umpire of the Italian-Venezuelan commission and this completes the labors of all the recent Venezuelas mixed commissions. About 30 claims, aggregating $6,000,000, were filed with the tailan commission, there being many more Italian claimants than for any other nationality and the aggregate awards wer-

Many questions of doubtful citizenship ame before the commission and the um pire held in all cases of differences be tween Venezuelan and Italian laws that the law of domicile in the claimant after the time of birth should control. The largest claim presented was that of the Cervala heirs for over $3,000,000. The original claimant was born in Sicily, but passed a large part of his life in Venezuela, going abroad at different periods in various capacities for that country. The umpire held that according to the law of his native land he had forfelted his original citizenship by his diplomatic employment and his heirs therefore could not be heard before the Italian commission.

Another case of importance was that of the Martini company, which held a conssion for coal mines and the railroad from Guanta to Barcelona. The company claimed $1,800,000 because of interference with business by the paper blockade and the seizure of the harbor of Guanta, etc. Among the Large Claims.

The umpire held that under the terms of the concession the port should have remained and the paper blockade, or blockade by proclamation only, was illegal and that Venezuela was liable for damages directly resultant therefrom granting the company $95,000.

A claim of $600,000 was presented by the Poggiolis, who had been merchants in the state of Los Andes. The Poggiolis claimed they had been assaulted, that their assailants, by connivance of the authorities escaped punishment, and that their extensive properties had been destroyed through the joint action of the authorities and private individuals, none of the parties engaged in such destruction being punished and personal protection being practically refused. The umpire held that under the circum stances of the case, Venezuela was legally liable for the wrongdoing of her officials and granted an award of $107,000.

Several cases of expulsion from Venezuela came before the commission. The umpire recognised the governmental right of expulsion, but found in particular instances that it had exercised in disregard of the law and granted damages. For the unlawful killing of two Italians by or in the presence and with the sanction of gow ernment officials, awards of $8,000 and $10. 000 were given,

Responsibility of Venezuela. The question most debated before the commission was as to the responsibility of Venezuela for the acts of unsuccessful revolutionists. The umpire, following many precedents, held in a number of cases that such responsibility did not exist.

In several cases of contract where the concession had provided that all questions For Iowa-Fair Monday; cooler in the of interpretation and execution should be east and south portions; Tuesday fair, referred to the Venezuelan courts for setement and never should be made ject of international claim, the umpire held that an individual claimant could not cor tract away the right of his governmen diplomatic by to present a claim and that the commission and urisdiction. In several cases Venezuela had collected a second time taxes once paid to a de facto revolutionary government, but in the umpire's opinion such payment was held illegal and refund was ordered. Mr. Ralston be. I barred by lapses and in conformity with the principles underlying prescription claims for damages which had not been presented to Venezuela for thirty years after the alleged occurrences Interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, the legal rate in Venezuela in the absence of the contract, was sllowed in claims from the date of presentation to the Venezuelan government or the commission, January 1, 1904.
