About Ready for Dredging. The ponderous looking scow on which the dredge is to be floated in Indian Creek is nearing completion. Part of the dredge only is on the ground, but the remainder is expected here in a few days as the contract with the Bellefontaine company provides that it be set up and in workng order by August 15.

The work will be done under the super vision of the city council committee or bridges and city property, of which Alderman Weaver is chairman, and it is unlikely that City Engineer Etnyre will have anything to do with it, as the aldermen persisted in going against his advice in matter of dredging the creek. As the time draws nigh for commencing the dredging Alderman Weaver and his fellow councilmen are confronted with a serlous problem. There is not sufficient water in Indian Creek at the present time to float a canos much less a ponderous vessel like the scow. How they will solve this problem remains to be seen.

title of the office of president into disrepute.

In your election, on the other hand, this chief requirement will be fully met. In the full strength of middle life you are prepared for the exhausting duties of the presidency. Your successful and distinguished career, the ability and probitly with which you have already discharged the duties of high office, the universal respect and esteem of the people of Indiana who have delighted to honor you, the attachment of hosts of friends throughout the union—all assure us that you have the character and the ability to govern wisely and strongly should you become president. Many indeed among our people have already turned toward you as a suitable candidate to be elected directly to that great office. It is the earnest wish of your party and of many good citizens who have no party and of many good citizens who have no party affiliations that you shall accept this nomination, and that you shall be elected in November to be the next vice president of the United States. In expressing to you this wish, we beg to add an assurance of our own personal respect, esteem and loyalty.

Senator Fairbanks Accepts. Senator Fairbanks was given another evation as he arose to accept the nomination. He said:

Mr. Root and Gentlemen of the Committee: I thank you for the very generous terms in which you have conveyed the official notification of my nomination for vice president of the United States. The unsolicited and unanimous nomination by the republican party is a call to duty which I am pleased to obey.

I accept the commission which you bring with a profound sense of the dignity and responsibilities of the exalted position for which I have been nominated. My utmost endeavor will be to discharge in full measure the trust, if the action of the convention shall meet the approval of the American people.

The platform adopted by the convention is an explicit and emphatic declaration of principles in entire harmony with those policies of our party which have brought great honor and prosperity to our common country and which, if continued, will bring tion. He said:

policies of our party which have brought great honor and prosperity to our common country and which, if continued, will bring us like blessings in the future.

The monetary and economic policies which have been so forcibly reannounced lie at the very foundation of our industrial life and are essential to the fullest development of our national strength. They give vitallty to our manufactures and commerce and if impaired or overthrown there would inevitably ensue a period of industrial depression to the serious injury of the vast interests of both labor and capital.

The republican party, since it preserved The republican party, since it preserved the integrity of the republic and gave freedom to the oppressed, never rendered a more important service to the country than when it established the gold standard. than when it established the gold standard. Under it we have increased our currency supply sufficiently to meet the normal requirements of business. It is gratifying that the convention made frank and explicit declaration of the inflexible purpose of the party to maintain the gold standard. It is essential not only that the standard should be as good as the best in the world, but that the people should have the assurance that it will be so maintained.

Must Guard Gold Standard. The enemies of sound money were powerful enough to suppress mention of the gold standard in the platform lately adopted by the democratic national convention. The leader of democracy in two great national campaigns has declared since the adjournment of the convention that as soon as the election is over he will undertake to organize the forces within the democratic party for the next national contest for the purpose of advancing the radical cratic party for the next national contest for the purpose of advancing the radical policies for which his element of the party stands. He frankly says that the money question is for the present in abeyance. In view of these palpable facts it is not the part of wisdom to abandon our vigilance in safeguarding the integrity of our monetary system. We must have not only a president who is unalterably committed to the gold standard, but both houses of congress in entire accord with him upon the subject.

In congress and not with the president

In congress and not with the president rests the supreme power to determine the standard of our money. Though the chief executive should oppose, the congress, acting with its independent constitutional authority, could at any time overthrow or change the monetary standard.

The wisdom of our protective policy finds justification in the industrial development of the country. This policy has become a most vital part of our industrial system and must be maintained unimpaired. When altered conditions make changes in schedules desirable their modification can be safely entrusted to the republican party. If they are to be changed by the enemies of the system along free trade lines uncertainty would take the place of certainty and a reaction would surely follow to the injury of the wage earners and all who are profitably employed. Uncertainty undermines confidence and loss of confidence breeds confusion and distress in commercial affairs.

Convention Acted Wisely. congress and not with the president

Convention Acted Wisely.

The convention was wise not only in its enunciation of party policies, but in its nomination of a candidate for the presidency. During the last three years President Roosevelt has been confronted with large and serious questions. These he has met and solved with high wisdom and courage. The charges made against him in the democratic platform find an irrefutable answer in his splendid administration, never surpassed in all the history of the republic and never equalled by the party who seeks to discredit it.

The election of the president is imperatively demanded by those whose success depends upon the continuance of a safe, conservative and efficient administration of public affairs. We have an ample record of deeds done, of beneficent things accomplished in the public interest. The vast ousiness of the government has been well administered. The laws have been enforced fearlessly and impartially. The treasury has been adequately supplied with revenue and the financial credit of the government was never better. Our foreign trade balance continues to increase our national wealth. We have adopted an irrigation policy which will build home in the arid regions of the west. The Panama canal, the hope of centuries, is in course of construction under the sole protection of the American flag.

We have peace and great prosperity at home and are upon terms of good neighborhood to the entire world. The conditions constitute the strongest possible assurance for the future. Ample Accommodations at Reasonable Rates.

The alarming and altogether erroneous reports which have been circulated from time to time regarding the probable overcrowding of visitors to the exposition and the lack of accommodations may be entirely discarded, as the arrangements which have been made in the Cascade City are such as to provide good accommodations and entertainment for all who come. Chief among the prominent hostelries which have opened their hospitable doors is The Inside Inn, situated actually within the grounds of the exposition itself and erected under the supervision of the World's Fair management. It is three stories in height, is 400 feet wide, 800 feet long and contains 2,257 rooms in addition to its parlors and waiting rooms and a from $3.00 to $7.00, American, including admission in both classes, the range of prices being solely controlled by the size and location of the rooms.

The advantage of a large, comfortable and thoroughly equipped home-like hotel right inside the grounds will at once be obvious to all who remember the long. wearisome journeys so often entailed both at the World's Fair in Chicago and at Buffalo by those who lived some distance away from the exposition. No admission fee other than the first one is needed, visitors being within the precincts of the exposition all the time. They thus save all oss of time, expenses of street cars, etc., and are able to devote the whole of their time to the pleasures and enjoyments of the exposition.

Reservations may be made for any date nd full details regarding the many adcantages of The Inside Inn may be obtained by addressing a postal card to The Inside Inn. Administration Bldg., World's Fair Grounds, St. Louis.
