EDUCATION WORKS HAVE FAIR SHARE

Frank Carpenter Presents One in the Shape of a Geographical Reader to Make Study Interesting.

"The Dayspring," also from Dodd, Mead & Co. (1904), is by the Dr. William Barry who wrote "Arctic Master." It is a story of the Paris commune. Socialistic theories are discussed and a love story is introduced. The two motives, love and socialism, pull the hero in opposite directions, but in the end they are found to be in harmony with each other and the book ends happily. It adds little to the sum of human knowledge.

"Love Among the Ruins (the Macmillan company, 1904), by Warwick Deeping, will be welcomed by all those who enjoyed his "Other and Igraine." There is a great deal of good stuff, which nobody seems to mind at all, the old days of lawless feudalism, of raiding, burning and pillaging your neighbor, falling in love with his daughter, and all the ways in which the porters of the days of chivalry sport themselves, are found here. Plenty of action and incident, well told, and a love story, of course, make a very readable book.

"In the Dwellings of the Wilderness" (Henry Holt & Co., New York), is a story of the weird and mysterious adventures of some American explorers and engineers who are unearthing the remains of the civilization of the Pharaohs. The descriptions of the Egyptian country, the sunrise and the sunset, amid the strange surroundings, and all the atmosphere of the mysterious east, is so bright and so clear, the object of the book is not quite clear, or maybe there isn't any.

A new volume of standard English classics is issued by Ginn & Co. in Irving's Goldsmith, edited by Charles Robert Gair, especially for school work, a list of questions and composition topics being appended. This edition contemplates a month to be devoted to the study of Goldsmith.

"The Alternate Sex," by Charles Godfrey Leland, P.R., L.S., A.M., a work issued after Mr. Leland's death, and completed just before that time, comes from Funk & Wagnall's. It is a comprehensive treatise of sex intelligence, the effect of sex mentality upon its opposite, dreams, memory and hypnosis, showing the author's conception of the immortality of the soul and the existence of God.

The American editor of Dr. Toby Cohn's Electro Diagnosis and Electro-Therapeutics, says of the work: "It gives concisely all that is important in electro-diagnosis, and in electro-therapeutics all that is of positive value. It places electricity exactly where it belongs in a physician's armamentarium, as a curative agent. It will commend itself because of its excellent plates, its precise and very thorough explanation of the method of investigation and how to make an electrical diagnosis, and the careful instruction it gives for the proper use of electricity as a therapeutic agent," which is a full but brief description of this publication by Funk & Wagnall's.

"The Gordon Elopement," the story of a short vacation, by Caroline Wells and Harry Persons Taber (Doubleday, Page & Co.), has a love story in it; character sketches in light and shade, and enough "go" to make it part of a summer outing's library of fiction.

"The New Century History of the United States," by Edward Eggleston, 8 vols., 623 pages, $1 (American Book company), is the last work by the author. One novel feature is the biographical statistics of prominent Americans.

"Smiles Self-Help," edited by Ralph Lytton Bemer, 12 mo., 204 pages, 60 cents (American Book company), has been adapted by the editor for the American reader. In addition to the edited text there are copious references and a few biographical sketches of persons mentioned in the text.

"What Handwriting Indicates," by John Henford (G. P. Putnam's Sons) is a number of rules and principles, presented in a series of chapters, by which the author attempts to show how to determine the characteristics of a writer from his handwriting.

"A Norwegian Rhapsody," anonymous (G. P. Putnam's Sons) is a season spent among the fjords, fields, mountains and glaciers of Norway by a party, giving impressions of many of the important points of interest in the kingdom.

A manual of famous quotations, edited by Leon Mead and F. Newell Gilbert, G. P. Taylor & Co. is a volume containing short extracts from the speeches of some of the more famous orators of the American bar, covering many points which will repay careful reading, especially by students of law.

"Baldwin's Spelling by Grades" (American Book company), 12 mo., 128 pages, price 30 cents, contains the words used in the well known series of Baldwin's Readers, arranged in the order of their occurrence. The gradation and arrangement of the book, however, are such as to adapt it for practical use in all elementary schools, without regard to the series of readers.

"Money, Banking and Finance," by Albert B. Bolles, Ph. D., LL. D. (American Book company), 12 mo., 226 pages, $1.50, is primarily designed as a text book for commercial high schools, but will not be out of place in the library of the general reader, particularly if he be interested in financial questions.

"The A. B. C. of Our Own Nutrition," by Harvey Fletcher, (Frederick A. Stokes company) is a volume which will find little favor with the purveyors of food, for the author tells everyone that he eats too

Greatest Rug Sale

EVER HELD IN OMAHA

On Sale Monday, August 22

For Spot Cash We Bought From the Railroad Company

A SOLID CARLOAD OF RUGS

Carload of all kinds of Rugs consigned to a well known Chicago carpet house, including all the new patterns intended for this Fall's trade. The roof of the car leaked—some of the goods became wet and were refused by the consignee.

Three years ago we bought a carload from this same Claim Agent. Again he sends for Brandeis, and we made the deal. We bought the whole lot just as it stood for considerably less than half its real value. The majority of the goods are sound and perfect, some of them have been slightly wet, and a small quantity very wet. The car contains:

120 High-grade 9x12 Axminster and Wilton Rugs. 150

9x12 double-faced Smyrna Rugs. 75 7-6x10-6 double-faced

Smyrna Rugs. 350 30-inch Smyrna Rugs. 800 27-inch

Axminster Rugs. 100 Wool Ingrain Art Squares.

The Art Squares have been quite wet, and a few of the other goods are wet on the edge, and some of the outside folds are wet, but none of these goods are badly damaged.

You could not fail to attend this sale Monday, August 22, as we may never again be able to offer such a choice lot of Rugs at such extraordinary bargains.

J. L. BRANDEIS & SONS.

EXTRA—To give an idea of how little these rugs are damaged and how cheap we are going to sell them, we call your attention to our show windows where they are now on display.
