Reasons for Stience Clearly and insecontingly Set Forth-Redress Against Attempted Hinckmail.

(Copyright, 1804, by Guy T. Viskniskki.) The records of acquittals in the various eriminal courts of the country constitute the best owidence in substantiation of the statement that hundreds of persons are falsely accused of crime every year. While some of the acquittais are no doubht due to lack of sufficient evidence to convict rather than to the innocence of the accused, the proportion of such cases in relation to the acquittals is small indeed. Therefore, it behouves every member of cused of a felony, an untoward event that

It is the only safe way to act; it is the course the law itself prescribes. In effect, the law says to the accused: "No human being on the face of the

No officer of the law, whether he be policeman or judge, has the slightest scintilla of right e endcavor to make you say something that will tend to incriminate you, or to lead the criminal authorities to draw the inference that you have so enmeshed yourself. You have one indisputable right from the time you are accused until the charge ment one way or another in relation to the offense with which you are charged."

Proquently the police idea seems to be, although there are bright exceptions, "Conviet someone, anybody, no matter who, if we can't get the criminal himself." They take in intense personal interest in making thing to do is to see the police and say out cases, knowing that if they are successful credit will redound to them; and this ambition frequently leads them to do many things not in sympathy with the law; for example, garbling and twisting to their ad-

The evidence tended to show that shortly before his wife's death he had been guilty of marital infidelity, had quarreled with her and was known to have bought a concoction containing prussic acid at a drug store. In view of all this damning evidence the jury brought in a verdict of murder in the first dogree, and when the case was carried before the state's highest tribunal, the court of appeals, the opinion of the court, to which only one judge to k exception, upheld the trial court.

Brought face to face with the chair. Benham now did what he should have done at the start. He confessed to his counsel that he had refrained from telling all he know about the case in the bellef that if , he did tell the fair name of his wife and himself would be disgraced. for general use. While the mayor was still in office h was requested by a personal and political friend to interest himself in the welfare of a certain woman whose property was said to be in danger from litigation and who was practically alone in the world. He acceded to the request and from time to time wrote letters to her. Most of them were of so technical a butsness nature that they might have been published to the world without attracting the slightest attention. He met her only two or three times, and then in the presence of omeone else.

But there were some half dozen of the letters which he sent to her upon which a sinister construction might have been placed by the evil-minded. None of them contained a single objectionable word or phrase, but they mentioned the payment o certain sums of money, which had passed through his hands, without explaining the wherefore, and each letter closed with an expression of interest in the weman to whom they were written-an expression the body politic to know what to and what | that upon its face meant nothing more than not to do in case he is ever falsely ac- a chivalrous gentleman's desire to be courteous to one whom he was striving to asmay befall him as unexpectedly as it has sist. Without betraying any surprise, he asked that the copies of the letters be left with him a few days. To his surprise this request was granted. He took the letter to Thomas H. No. 4 hard, testing 55% pounds, soid at 55%, and No. 3, 56 pounds, at 55%, Here are some actual figures that should encourage the cievator men of Nebraska, and with the current high prices on corn—a cereal of which Nebraska is going to have a very large crop, there is no reason why the agricultural community of this state should not etjoy its most successful year and the prosperity of the country will unquestionably be reflected in the cities and their merchants. It is also a fact that Nebraska had harvested a very fair-sized crop of wheat this season. The quality has not been quite up to standard, but where there is such an admitted shortage, as there unquestionably is this year quantity counts much more than usual and quality less—in fact, the prices quoted are conclusive syldence that the lower grades of wheat are worth more than high grades have averaged for years past. It is a novelty for wheat to reach the dollar mark here—much more so for No. 3 and No. 4 grades—to touch the record. But wheat is wheat this year and millers compete for anything good enough to grind and elevator men will clean and make as much as possible out of lower grades. The fact that there is such a shortage in the crop of wheat the world over will necessitate the more general use of corn as a food for man and increase its use as food for sale on the market. There were also sharp advances in the prices of wheat futures in this market, but though the bids moved up materially there were few sellers. The fact of the material the market for months. Chicago started the list with gains of a point followed by subsequent additional co-equal advances. Then there was a rush of profit-taking on the part of longs that turned the tide the other way and September to $1.094 from $1.194, December to $1.094 from $1.194, and May $1.124 from $1.194. With the rush of liquidation over the late shorts took their innings of getting even and covered freely, advancing prices again to $1.154 for May, $1.124 for December and $1.094 for September. The strength of the May future was clearly a feature of the Cosing. The final figures show net advance for the day of a fraction above a point—not such a big gain as the present markets go, but on top of the steady advances of the last four week quite a factor. There was nothing new in the influences. It was the same story, the old, old story of rust and damage, and from the general tenor of the northwestern advices it appeared to be a case of either disastrous damage or complete ruin. tenor of the northwestern advices it appeared to be a case of either disastrous damage or complete ruin.

The market on corn-fed steers has been in rather unsatisfactory condition this week. Strictly choice cattle, or in other words, ripe, dry lot cattle are about steady but few of that kind are being received. On Tuesday there were some cattle on sale good enough to bring $5.75, and another on Friday and brought the same money. Unless strictly choice, however, they have to sell lower, and fair to medium corn-feds, or, in other words, those that come in competition with westerns, are all of 500 per hundred lower and very duil at the decline. In fact, salesmen who had short-fed cattle that showed grass had a hard time.

were in at the opening of the market. Buyers all seemed to be anxious for supplies in spite of the fact that it was Saturday and as a result everything sold in a hurry at good prices. There were five cars of idaho ewes that sold for $3.35 and one car brought $1.25. A small bunch of Nebraska ewes sold for $3.30.

For the week receipts are a trifle heavier than for last week, but as compared with the same week of last year the supply is still less than half as large. The demand has been just about equal to the receipts and as a result a fairly active and not far from steady market has been experienced. In spots the market may be a trifle weaker, but the change from the close of last week is hardly worth mentioning.

Lambs have arrived in very limited numbers at this point, but some of the other market's supplies have been more liberal and as a result the tendency of prices has been downward. A choice bunch of lambs ought to soil up to $5.35 without much frouble.
