HORSE SHOW NOW HAS THE PRECEDENCE

Everybody is Getting Ready for the Exhibit and Talking Horse to the Exclusion of All Other Topics.

When Some One Wears. When Some One wears her tallor gown and I encounter her up town, she looks so proud and so precise, a sim, so stately and so nice, a murmur as she nods her head, "How do you do, Miss Winitred."

When Some One wears her ball room clothes,
With ribbons, laces, furbelows,
She looks so gracious and so sweet.
I seek her sige and thus entreat,
While other swains are waiting too,
"Miss Winnie, May I waitz with you?"

When Some One is on golf alert, Her cute abbravlated skirt, Her easy blouse, her jaunty hat Make her seem so informal that I link my arm in hers and say, "Well, Win, the game is ours today."

Redick, five; Mrs. J. S. Bradf, four; Major and Mrs. Zalinski, four; Mr. and Mrs. Cowgill, two; Dr. Bridges, five; Mrs. Clarence Richmond Day, four. One of the joillest parties was made up of members of the younger set, twenty-four of whom occupied one table.

The person who is not conversant with horse show terms and manners might as well post himself immediately, or prepare to drop out of society at once, for the smart people of Omaha have at last committed themselves, and another week will find every other subject a secondary topic, Forty boxes had been engaged for the season up to noon Saturday, and by the people who make things fashionable, too, and all of those who a fortnight ago were waiting to see what the others were going to do have found out and are talking and plunning as enthusiastically as though they had been in from the first. Everything will be horsey from now on until the show is over, and the red and white, the official colors, will furnish the scheme for many a smart affair during the next month. The hox holders, by the way, may be known by n tiny bow of red and white ribbon worn on the lapel of the coat, while rosettes and streamers of the same colors are beginning to appear on the whips and bridles of the constantly increasing number that has taken to horseback riding of late. Another fortnight and the college set will be packed off back to school again with cushions, their pennants and their golf traps, and all the other paraphernalia requisite to the college-going youth and maid, and the verandas and the spare time of not a few society mothers will be awfully vacant, for the college set are immensely occupying, with all their pranks and impromptu affairs. But in the meanthey will make the most of their time, and indulgent parents are permitting plans for all sorts of things, chief among seems to be dancing parties. Last week fairly abounded in "doings." There were half a dozen porch parties, a couple of dancing parties, coaching parties and base ball parties, and this week they will

Here is what the Atchison Globe has to say about the Topeka Country club. An Omaha man has observed that "it is not quite that bad here":

Topekn society is talking up a country by Membership in a country club costs pere then an automobile. It is a scheme hereby a man pays Pullman diving carries for a meal in the country, and coun't enjoy it as much as it he and his family were eating belied eggs by the side of the road. After a man joins a country club he quits saving money. In keeping up with other members, he finally has to mortgage his home, if he stays at it long enough. There is not the rural, innocent joy in a country club that Topeka people imagine.

CYMKHANA A BIG SUCCESS

Unique Function at Country Club Red Letter Event of Season.

DUMB ANIMALS PLAY ACTIVE PART Automobiles Are Introduced to Help Ridicule Golf, and Altogether Society Puts in a Lively Day.

"I would rather attend a gymkhana than deep until noon and that is saying a great said a prominent society leader yesterday evening on the way to town rom the Country club, where was held the second annual gymkhana, the red-letter outdoor event of the year.

It was the consensus of opinion at the Country club grounds yesterday afternoon that the second gymkhana was a success in every particular; it really surpassed the expectations of even the tournament committee and others in charge of the event The weather was well nigh perfect for outdoor enjoyment and every prospect pleased the 200 spectators who enjoyed the various events arranged by the committee. The big event of the afternoon's divert isement was the automobile race in which six machines participated. The autos were started at intervals of one minute between each machine and two contestants occupied each car. Each gallant chauffeur was accompanied by a fair escort, who alighted and holed the ball at each of nine concerts in conjunction with Mr. Hans greens, until the course had been made in this fashion. The uphill and downhill course added much zest to the contest, which was watched with eagerness. Dick Kimball and sister won in the classic time of "seben-eleben." The names of the alsorans may be hed on application at the box office of the Country club. Mr. Kim-Clerks and Mrs. Johnson as a delegate to ball was awarded a silver drinking cup and his sister a silver tea strainer. Women's Animal Race. Next in point of interest on the pro gram of circus events was the women's animal race. For ludicrousness this attraction certainly was the limit: it was the most popular high priced show on the grounds and besides it was a strictly firstclass, moral show to which men could take their mothers-in-law and where little children could go unattended. The show consisted of eight society women arranged in a row at the head of a course each woman holding a cord at the other end of which was tled a half or threequarter frightened pig, rabbit, hen, rooster, lamb or goat, as the case happened to be. And the birds and animals were all alive, which was the funny part of it, that is funny to all but the animals. The whole affair suggested the livestock department of the Douglas county agricultural fair, but it was not. There was Mrs. Harry Lyman holding the cutest little bantam rooster that ever came along the pike; Mrs. E. H. Sprague looked bewitching with a goat at one end of her cord; Mrs. Will Burns was the cynosure for all eyes with her dear little piggle; Miss Edith Thomas was a study with her hen: Mrs. Cole made a decided impression with her rabbit; Mrs. Msry Redick and her lamb received four encores; Miss Ida Sharp and her guinea pig were much sought after: Mrs. Wilson also had a pig in tow and looked much at ease with her live pork. But when the start of the animal race was announced, then the fun began in earnest. The goat tried to butt in and stop the race; the rooster stopped to crow before the race had been half run, and he was counted down and out by the referee; the pigs wanted to root for the Omaha base ball club instead of attending to the business in hand, and thus it went until Mary Redick and her lamb crossed the plate and won with hands down, nothwithof merit. Winners and Prizes. The winners and prizes of the other events, which were all amusing and interesting, were as follows:
