BACK FROM OLD BULL RUN

General Manderson Imposed with Practical Side of Sham Battles.

SAYS THEY ARE NEEDED BY THE TROOPS
Praises Use of Automobiles in Such Operations, as They Greatly Facilitate Maneuvers in Transporting Equipment.

General Charles F. Manderson has returned from Virginia, where he witnessed the recent campaign of the Blues and the Browns, which participated in the war maneuvers on the historic battle ground of Bull Run.

General Manderson gives a graphic account of the battles won and lost, although neither bullets nor shot were used in the engagements. General Manderson, who acted as one of the critics, was the guest of General Corbin during his stay in the east.

"It is as necessary for the men to be drilled in these maneuvers as to be drilled in the use of arms," said General Manderson. "All European countries have these campaigns, for they train officers and men in the maneuvering of the army, and besides their value from a strategic and military viewpoint they are necessary for the sanitary and disciplinary education afforded."

With a large map of the country covered by the troops in their recent campaign, General Manderson showed how the mock battles were fought. Contrary to the impression of those who do not understand how the victories of a sham battle are accomplished, there is no make-believe moving down of soldiers and the battlefield is not strewn with the sham dead. It means, however, a great deal of hard work, and whether marching ankle deep in the dust, whether wading some obstructing stream or whether sleeping under the stars at night, the soldier has to undergo the same discomforts as though he were in actual campaign.

Cannot Decide a Battle.

"How do you decide that a battle actually has been lost or won?" was asked.

"Well, we can't decide that," was the reply. "We cannot say of course what troops would do if they were under actual fire. We can only judge from the positions held by the troops what the result would naturally be under actual engagement, assuming at all times of course that the morale of the troops is good and that they will stand fire."

General Manderson, in another illustration along the same lines, explained how General Grant had placed his troops while carrying out one of the recent military problems. Grant strengthened his left flank and center under the supposition that the brunt of General Bell's attack would be there. Bell made a feint to attack these points by sending a small portion of the army forward to open fire. The main force attacked the right flank and by surrounding battery after battery and regiment after regiment, secured a position which in actual warfare, could have resulted only in disaster and defeat to Grant's force. At noon, when this battle was called by General Corbin, the north wing of Grant's force had suffered complete defeat. Grant who had been watching the operations of the center and south wings of his army, was not aware of the disaster he had suffered as a result of Bell's strategy and generalship, until informed by couriers.

Auto Good Thing.

General Manderson spoke in high praise of the value of the automobile in military operations, not only for bringing up ammunition and other supplies, but in other work where great celerity is needed, as in the destruction of bridges and railroads, the work which was formerly left to the cavalry.

General Manderson referred to the manifest lack of progress in the east. Although the maneuvers were within a comparatively short distance of Washington, the national capital, the roads he described as some of the worst he has ever seen. They have apparently not been touched in thirty years. He attributes a large share of this lack of enterprise to the fact of the poorer productive quality of the eastern farms and the natural emigration of the energetic eastern people to the west, where the opportunities and chances of development are broader.

PAVING BLOCKED ONCE MORE
Repairs on North Sixteenth Again Help Up by Lobeck and Withnell.

Plans and specifications for the North Sixteenth street paving have been blocked and council sessions prolonged for two days because of the failure of the majority members of the Board of Public Works to approve City Engineer Rosewater's specifications. After a long session with City Attorney Wright and the members of the city council, Comptroller Lobeck yesterday gave his assent to modifications which will enable the city attorney to pronounce the compromise specifications legal. It was the same old specification controversy all over again, though an exception had been promised in the case of the Sixteenth street work. The majority insisted upon their old specifications and the attorney refused to approve them. Therefore they were not confirmed by the council.

One result of the morning's conference was the agreement to exclude any asphalt easily affected by water. This bars the Trinidad brand. Lobeck finally gave way in his demand that the board fix the formula of the asphalt mixture after bids are made. The compromise clause gives the bidder the right to present his formula and the attorney's right to reject them upon a showing of the character of the asphalt.

STRIKE FUND RECOMMENDED
Provision Made for Emergency by Steam Engineers in the International Meeting.

Friday morning's session of the convention of the International Union of Steam Engineers was devoted to the consideration of the report of the grievance committee. The report was finally amended was adopted.

An amendment was presented and adopted to the resolutions for the creation of a strike emergency fund. This contemplates that an assessment of $1 shall be imposed upon each member of the association, to be paid in January 1 of each year. This fund shall be set aside in each of the locals to be applied to the relief of strikers, and for no other purpose. In the event of a strike the international association shall exercise control over this strike fund for the benefit of the strikers.

The afternoon session was devoted to discussing the question of the jurisdiction of local lodges and the control that each may exercise in its own vicinity within the limit of forty miles. The proposition brought out an animated discussion, pro and con.

TAX DEPUTIES FACE A GUN
Collect Money from Delinquent, but After Being Held at Bay Some Time.

D. C. Bradford put in the early part of Friday forenoon refusing to have a distress warrant served on his household furniture. He did it with a large revolver and considerable impatience.

Three collectors of the county treasurer's force called at Mr. Bradford's place, 1509 Howard street, with the distress warrants, the amount of personal taxes in question being $11. Mr. Bradford does not pretend to be well acquainted with the workings of the law in such matters and when the three able-bodied persons thrust themselves upon his society and into his apartments and deliberately selected a table and set of chairs to carry away, he was much vexed and chased them away with a firearm. The three obstinate Officer Sheen, and the four were able to explain the legal phase of the matter. Mr. Bradford paid cash and retained his furniture. He is a member of a lumber firm.

CRIME DRIVES HIM INSANE
Shooting of Mike Hart Confessed by John Morley After Seven Years Elapse.

Chief of Police Briggs of South Omaha returned yesterday from Coffeyville, Kan., having in custody John Morley, who confessed to having shot Mike Hart seven years ago. Hart having died of the wound. After giving himself up to the police at Coffeyville, Morley made a confession and said the shooting had worried him so much he could not sleep.

At the time Morley gave himself up to the police at Coffeyville he thought he was denouncing. Chief Briggs says, when talking on any other subject than the shooting, Morley appears rational enough. When the shooting is brought up Morley talks like a person not in his right mind. Morley tells practically the same story here that he told the police at Coffeyville. Since the shooting he has wandered all over the country, trying to forget the affair, but it preyed on his mind to such an extent that he, imagined every man he met was a policeman looking for him.

UNIONS PUSH THE MEASURE
Painters and Decorators Will Insist on Tearing Old Paper from Walls.

An ordinance passed by the council some months ago requiring old wall paper to be scraped from rooms before new paper is applied may be enforced through efforts of the Master Painters' and Decorators' association.

The origin of the ordinance was a mystery, but the council passed it and it was properly approved. No attempt has been made by the health or police departments to insist upon its provisions, but the master painters and decorators are threatening to see that the law is made effective. Action has to be taken at a meeting this week, but no quorum was present. In insisting upon compliance with the ordinance the association is supported by physicians who declare that old wall paper is a veritable paradise for disease microbes and for the propagation of contagious sicknesses.

Any paper is bad, they say, but especially old wall paper.

DOG SAVES MAN FROM DEATH
Watchful Canine Attracts Attention to Stranger, Who is Rescued from Self-Destruction.

Lee Grier, clerk of the police court, and Albert V. Koon, neighbors, at 96 and 98 South Eighteenth street, have reported an apparent attempt at suicide in the rear of the Koon lot Thursday evening about 8 o'clock. Mrs. Koon was attracted by the barking of a dog, and called her husband, who went with Mr. Grier, to investigate. Through the partially lighted gloom of the back yard they could see the form of a man writhing in agony. The stranger gave his name as John Clark, said he had been in Omaha but a few days, and had become dependent from suffering general bad luck. Beside him was a four-ounce bottle of chloroform, and an outspread handkerchief suggested an intention of saturating the fabric with the fluid. Clark was taken to a drug store, where it was found the man was suffering with a badly ulcerated jaw.

HEAVY MOVEMENT WESTWARD
Large Traffic to Pacific Coast Under the Colonist Rates Just Put in.

Not since the Knights Templar west went have the Burlington and Union stations presented such an animated appearance at train time as yesterday. Nearly all the westbound trains had extra tourist cars, and there was a large movement of persons bound for the coast. The unusual activity is attributed to the colonist's rates, which went into effect Thursday. The rate of $25 to the coast is being selected by hundreds of people. Some of the travelers are homeseekers and others are taking advantage of the rate to make long-deferred visits. The farthest point reached by the fare is Los Angeles. Portland being the next longest point. Over 2,000 miles are possible on one of these tickets from Omaha.

LEGISLATION FOR COMMERCE
Action Before Next Congress Object of Coming Meeting of Commercial Organizations.

A convention of all organizations representing commercial, manufacturing, mercantile or agricultural interests has been called to meet at St. Louis Friday, October 28. The object of the gathering will be the devising of means to secure the enactment of legislation at the coming session of congress giving greater scope to the interstate commerce act.

Delegates will be appointed on the basis of one delegate for each 50 membership. E. P. Bacon of Milwaukee, chairman of the executive committee of the interstate commerce law convention, held in St. Louis November 2, 1903, called the meeting, and his body consists of representatives of 30 commercial and manufacturing organizations.

Inebriate Gets Thirty Days.

J. A. Hall of Cedar Rapids, Ia., a paroled inmate of an Iowa reformatory, has been sentenced thirty days by Acting Police Judge Bachman. One of Hall's sisters, a resident of Omaha, called at the police station and requested that her brother be sentenced and of the meantime she would endeavor to arrange with the Iowa authorities for the return of Hall to the charitable institution, with the hope that a permanent cure may be effected.

FOR A NOISELESS TYPEWRITER
Manufacturers Hope to Reduce the Present Racket by Three-Quarter.

The noiseless typewriter is something the experts are now working on, and they hope to give machines that will do the work with a quarter of the noise.

"It is this strenuous age," said a manufacturer of typewriters, "everything that makes noise is tabooed in offices and other places where men and women use typewriters more than their bodies. Every little sound causes irritation."

"It has been found that there is much complaint against the typewriting machine. Its clicking, the din of the busy keys, disturbs the heads of firms, even though they shut the doors to their private offices tight and sometimes even stuff cotton in the keyholes. Then, too, it interferes with conversation by telephone."

"In the stress of business this little annoyance caused by the typewriter adds just one more element to increase the fatigue incident to the day's work."

"We are experimenting with a machine that we think will fill the need for a noiseless typewriter. It is almost encased in rubber, and the sound is muffled by several ingenious devices."

"We now and then make machines to order for nervous customers, who have worked on ideas of their own for getting rid of the typewriter din. We have made a few machines encased in glass, with levers protruding under the glass to move the carriage, adjust the paper, etc."—New York Sun.

GULLS CROSS THE PACIFIC
Follow in the Wake of Transports and Get the Crumbs Thrown Overboard.

We are proud of our great ocean liners and the speed that they make, a speed which has made foreign countries ridiculously near and has brought the nations close together. To the people of 100 years ago the story that a vessel could cross the broad Pacific within a month would seem like the sheerest fancy of a romancer.

Yet, at that time sea gulls existed as they do at the present day and they made their long trips without provoking any special comment. Today it is looked upon as nothing very marvelous that birds are able to fly from America to Asia and back again. But, if we pause to consider it, the feat is really something after all.

These birds are especially fond of the United States army transports, for these ships carry many men, who denied the taste for books which renders an ocean journey less tedious and having limited facilities for deck sport, take to feeding the gulls as a pastime. When one of the big vessels leaves the Golden Gate and passes the Farallone Islands 100 or more brown bodies with long, sweeping wings leave their resting place and take up the flight in the wake of the transport.

The birds seem to know when they are to be fed, for they come flying in ever narrowing circles until they are within a short distance of the ship. Then the food begins to fall on the waters and the brown-winged forms swoop eagerly down upon the waves and seize what has been thrown forth. This is continued until the food is exhausted and then the soldiers go below, leaving the gulls to get away with their food as they fly. They never seem to rest, these queers birds. Day after day they follow the ship, cleaving the air with swift wings, flying easily and without apparent effort. Indeed, it seems as though they were not made to rest.

Only One Obstacle.

"Well," inquired the prohibition candidate, "how is the outlook?"

"Fine, fine," responded his first lieutenant, enthusiastically, "the Siswimodagh has declared for us."

"That so?"

"Yes. The Nieces of the Revolution are on our side, and the Boston Back Bay Daughters are with us to a woman."

"You don't tell me."

"It's a fact. The Federation of Old Maids' Clubs is going to support you solidly, and the Daughters of the Whisky Insurrection are ours. In short, there's only one element that appears to be against us."

"What is that?"

"The voters."—Houston Chronicle.

James G. Gray, Gibson, Mo., writes about Drake's Pain-Relieving Wine as follows: I live in the Missouri watershed of Drake's Pain-Relieving Wine and have been sick with Malaria fever and for fifteen months a weakling, but after one bottle of Drake's Pain-Relieving Wine has done me more good than all the medicine I have taken in that fifteen months. I am buying two more bottles to stay cured. Drake's Pain-Relieving Wine is the best medicine and tonic for Malaria, Kidney and Liver ailments ever used or heard of. I feel well now after using one bottle.

A. A. Fridman, writes: I had a bad case of Sour Stomach and Indigestion. I could eat so little that I was "falling to bones" and could not sleep nor attend to my business. I used the trial bottle and two large seven-cent bottles and thus truthfully say I am entirely cured. I have advised many to write for a free trial bottle.

J. W. Moore, Monticello, Minn., makes the following statement about himself and a neighbor: "I was given up to die by a Minneapolis specialist and he and our local doctor said they could do no more for her. She has been taking Drake's Pain-Relieving Wine one week and is rapidly recovering."

Dr. Drake Formula Company, Drake Bldg., Chicago, Ill., will send a trial bottle of Drake's Pain-Relieving Wine free to any address if you enclose this paper. A letter or postal card is not only expense to get this free bottle.
