A revision and reduction by those who regard the tariff as a robbery must awaken serious apprehension among all whose cap-ital is employed or who are engaged at la-bor in various enterprises throughout the country which depend in large measure upon the maintenance of the protective system. A revision of the tariff along rev-enue lines means the increased importation of the products of foreign manufacture which come into competition with our do-mestic production. It means a loss to the American wase entrers and to American capital. This is, therefore, not a theoretical question which is presented to them, but is one of immediate and practical moment. Party's Vindication. The development of the country during the last forty-four years is a complete vin-dication of the virtue and efficiency of a protective system. Its benefits have been diffused through all sections of the coun-try and among all our people. It has en-iarged our home market until it has become the greatest in the world. > An impression is growing generally that an engagement will soon take place at Mukden. General Kouropatkin is evidently preparing to make a determined resistance to any attempt to disposess him and is entrenching and constructing defenses. He has an immense force available, but the opinion is expressed that Tie Pass would he a more favorable location for defense. The Russians, however, are unwilling to suffer the loss of prestige which would be involved by the abandonment of Mukden. There is much speculation now as to the extent of the fall and winter campaign. It is generally thought that Field Marshal Oyama will continue pressing Kouropatkin back until the winter falls and will then strongly guard his advance line until spring. The Japanese carried on an aggreasive campaign against the Chinese during the winter, but conditions are different in this war.

A renewal of the attack upon Port Arthur on newer and more aggressive lines is expected this week, and it is predicted in well informed quarters that the reduction of that fortress will be accomplished within ten days or a fortnight.
