Beatrice first appeared in the conference minutes as an appointment in 1858. In March, 1859, it received its first preacher in the person of Rev. D. H. May, father of Mrs. G. P. Marvin of this city. The first class consisted of five members.

In 1861 Rev. Mr. Tinkham, father of Mrs. Blakely of this city located in Beatrice, and with his family united with the church, increasing the membership to nine. From this small beginning has grown the Methodist church of Beatrice, the membership now numbering about 700.

The pretension of its opponents that the protective tariff is inconsistent with the extension of our foreign commerce with the extension of our lorsign commerce is thus denied by actual results. In com-sidering the effect of the respective tariff policies of the republican and democratic parties, we are fortunately able to consult past experience. What a revenue tariff will accomplish we know, for we have hitherto seen how it has arrested industrial development and embarrassed enterprise to the induct of both information and capital.

hitherto seen how it has alrested enterprise to development and embarrassed enterprise to the injury of both labor and capital. Neither excepts its blighting effects. Commercial reciprocity with foreign countries "consistent with the principles of protection" has long been one of the well-recognized policies of the republican party. The present administration, in the face of serious democratic opposition, secured a treaty of reciprocity with Cuba which prom-ises to give us control of a large share of the commerce of that Island. Both Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt attempted to negotiate a treaty of reci-procity with Canada. That subject, to-gether with the Alaskan boundary and other matters, was submitted to a joint high commission for consideration, but the differences which arose between the Ameri-can and the British commissioners with respect to the boundary made it impossible for the commission to agree upon any of the remaining subjects submitted for its determination. determination The American commissioners desired to

The American commissioners desired to remit the boundary dispute to the two gov-ernments and to proceed with the consid-eration of all other questions, including reciprocity, but the British commissioners declined to proceed further while the boun-dary remained undetermined. Subsequently the boundary commission was created and the boundary line has been settled, but no agreement has been reached for further consideration of the remaining questions embraced in the protocol. It is hoped that the two governments may be able to agree in due course to take up the subject of reciprocity with Canada according to the principles hald down in the republican na-tional platform. tions on the same day and combined on

The republican party is more direct and rational. It does not strike down good and bad alike. It invokes the authority of con-gress and the power of the couris to deal with specific, well-defined combinations in restraint of the rights and interests of the people. It is as insistent upon the pro-tection of capital employed in wholesome enterprise as in preventing its use in con-travention of the public interests. The convention very properly declared it "to be the duty of the republican party to uphold the gold standard." There is no more important duty than to maintain the stability and the character of the money of the people. Their manifold exchanges should be effected in a currency as free from blemish as the national integrity. The republican party has been essentially the guardian of the financial credit of the country, and the steadfast supporter of sound currency. No one need have any grave concern with respect to the future of the archipelago if the United States goes forward as heretofore, inspired by the same lofty purpose which has char-acterized the administrations of President McKinley and President Rooseveit. They should not forget that the United States did not go to war with Spain for dollars and cents. They should remember that when it comes to it a matter of duty, the United States does not consider the cost. But looking for an issue on which a campaign might be won, our democratic friends thought there was nothing more promising than this populistic issue, and they held their convention first and took it, put it in their platform and called it Jef-fersonian democracy. friends

For the campaign of 1304 our democrati friends are again in trouble. I do no say it would be difficult to devise som Bay if would be difficult to device some progressive policy for the wise government of the nation, but our friends have given no evidence of having sought such. They give every evidence, however, that they nave sought an issue for the sole and only purpose of winning this campaign. As a matter of expediency they have thought it unwise to declare in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 with gold, for that has twice failed. They have thought it inexpedient to de-clare in favor of the gold standard, for it was discovered that the majority of the convention did not believe in the gold standard. They did not think it expedient to declare that the money question was settled. The New York delegation de-feated, by a vote of 50 to 25, a resolution offered by Bourke Cockran in the follow-ing languate: "Resolvea, That in the opinion of this delegation a plain statement in the demo-cerate platform that the decision of the progressive policy for the wise government

"Resolved, That in the opinion of this delegation a plain statement in the demo-cratic platform that the decision of the people as twice expressed on the standard of value should be accepted as a final set-tlement of the coinage question, is abso-lutely essential to any prospect of success in the election." It will be noticed that not even Bourke Cockran favored a declaration that the gold standard was economically right, or that it ought to prevail. He simply thought it "absolutely essential to any prospect of success." That the establishment of the

DEATH RECORD.

George W. Fairfield.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Sept. 21.-(Spe cial.)-George W. Fairfield, aged 80 years, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. our monetary system against persistent nd powerful opposition. The money question has seemed to be utiled at various times, but the contest settled at various times, but the contest has been revived by the enemies of sound money whenever they have thought that they might be successful. We should not relax cur vigilance in upholding the in-tegrity of our currency so long as a con-siderable element of our country are at war with it. When democratic candidates cannot hope to win preferment in a na-tional convention without industriously concealing their mone ary views, and when democratic national and state conventions dare not declare their faith in the virtue of the gold standard, the hour has not ar-rived when the forces of sound money should disband and leave the field. Stability of Monetary Standard.

Stability of Monetary Standard,

Should discand and leave the new.
Stability of Monetary Standard.
We not only established the gold standard, but we provided such safeguards as will maintain our silver and paper currency at a parity with it. But all of this may be changed at any time by a hostile congress, or endangered by an untriendly secretary of the treasury. Our past experience warns us that it is only a question of time when those who are always opposed to a sound monetary policy will again seek to overthrow it.
The republican convention did well not only to pledge anew our fidelity to the gold standard, but to declare its purpose to uphold "the integrity and value of our national currency." There should be no equivocation or doubt as to our inflexible purpose, not only to maintain the gold standard, but to keep all silver and paper currency at a parity with it.
The assumption that the gold standard is "irrevocably established" does violence to for engress, but congress may alter, amend or repeal that act at any time. It is no more irrevocably established than are our tariff schedules. The one may be changed as readily as the other.
Sound imoney is so vital to our welfare. So important to our industrial development that we should let its open ensules or negative friends know that we abate nothing of our determination to uphold and defend it.

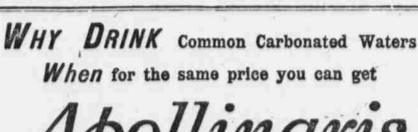

fend it. Since 1896 we have improved the system as well as increased the volume of our currency. We have now in circulation $2.521.15.527, or $880.942.058 more than we had seven years ago. The increase has not been due alone to the larger yield of gold. for $252.530.509, or nearly 30 per cent of the increase, is composed of silver and national bank motes, which, under the republican policy, are essentially the equivalent of gold. may be intrusted to enact it along rational lines. The president's course in Panama merits the most generous approval. He dealt with a telicate and difficult situation clearly within our national rights in such a way as to make possible the early completion of an isthmian canal, which has long been demanded in the interest of our commerce and the national defants. The concluded the negotiations with Great Britain for the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. He negotiated a treaty with the Republic of Colombia for the still colombian government. Thereupon the colombian government. Thereupon the species of Panama renounced their allegi-ance to the parent government and de-clared their independence. The president, withority, and in conformity with well stabilished precedent, promptly recognized with Panama, whereby the United States obtained the necessary rights and fran-chises for building and operating the canal. When the insurrection occurred upon the isthmus, the president safeguarded Ameri-can interests. He acted promptly, that de-ilberately: prudently, not rashly: firmly, not unlawfully.
