"Bunning a Presidential Campaign," Political Feature in Booklovers' Magazine.

REVIEW OF LITERARY WORKS OF ALL KINDS

Pleasing Illustrated Editions, Entertaining Romances, Poems and Lyries, Scientific and Nature Books,

The Booklovers' Magazine for October features a political note by Joseph M. Rogers, "Running a Presidential Campaign," being a nonpartisan sketch of the trials and triumphs of national chairmen, coupled with historic incidents of presidential campaigns. Portraits of Cortelyon and Taggart illumine the article. Supplemental papers are: "When Shakespeare Went to Italy," by Robert Shackleton; "Invasion of the Gold Ships," by Harold Bolce; "Confessions of a Jokesmith," by a nameless joker; "A Great Mexican Industry," by G. Cunningham Terry; "The Oubliette Cryptogram," a story by Julian Hawthorne, and a critical review of present day drams. by Ellis P. Oberholtzer. Several color reproductions of noted paintings grace the number. Equally attractive and artistic are a series of photographs of forest trails in the White mountains and a sea of clouds taken on the top of Mount Tamalpais, Cal

"Ethics of the Greek Philosophers," one of a series of lectures delivered on "The Evolution of Ethics" before the Brooklyn Ethical association by Prof. James H. Hyslop, being the sixth of the series (Brooklyn Ethical association). The present volume deals with the ethics of Socrates, Plate and Aristotle. The volume, in addition to giving the lecture, is copiously illustrated with quotations from the philosophers in question, and forms a volume of consider able interest to persons studying the ques-

"Still on the Search," by George Otts Draper (Peter Eckler), carries in part the thoughts raised in the work "Searching for Truth," by the same author. He records impressions and opinions formed while traveling in the countries bordering the Mediterranean sea.

"The Hour Grall, and Other Plays," volume of three plays for an Irish theater, by W. B. Yeats (The McMillan company) The plays have been produced in Dublin and the present edition is intended for the American reader. They illustrate the power and scope of the Irish author in a pleasing manner.

"Mark Hanna: His Book" (The Chappel Publishing company), contains all that the distinguished statesman and party leader ever wrote for publication. All of the papers have appeared in the National Magazine, but have here been collected. It is remarkable that a man who had such influence upon the country has written no more, as the entire volume contains but eighty-four 12mo pages. Probably the most lateresting paper is "William McKinley as I Knew Him."

"The Brownings and America," by Elizabeth Porter Gould (The Poet Lore company), is a volume showing the relation between this country and the two poets of that name. The author is of the opinion that the new republic had considerable weight upon the thoughts of the writers and that America has always held them in high esteem, an American being the organize a Browning sociaty

"Ethics of Democracy," by Louis F. Post (Mody Publishing company), is one of a series of essays on the natural laws of human society. The author discussed all of the features of government and their peculiar treatment necessary under democracy and is of the opinion that out of all of the apparent turmoil will come the true and perfect success so far as humanity can attain perfection.

Harper & Bros. have issued a very pleasing illustrated edition of Will Carleton's poem, "Over the Hill to the Poor House." A preface written especially for this edition gives some interesting points concerning the vogue and criticism of this poem and the authenticity of the story. Altogether it is a very attractive little

We have received a copy of the "Rocky Mountain Country Club," a handsome volume bound in the club colors. We venture to say that no more tasteful bit of book making has been seen for some time. The illustrations are of dainty pieces of moun-tain scenery or "doings" at the club. The book contains the bylaws of the club, ing and game laws, etc. The object of the club is said to be "congental compan-Hon. Irving F, Baxter of Omaha is one of the trustees.

"Golden Treasury . * American Songs and Lyrica" is the title of a book from the press of L. C. Page & Co., which is just what its name signifies-a collection of poems and lyrica from the pens of different American poets. Many of these poems are old familiar friends and the illustrations are portraits of many of the more noted poets, whose faces are likewise familiar. The book is attractively bound in a cover of green and gold.

"The Little Vanities of Mrs. Whittaker," by John Strange Winter, is a novel in which the author portrays the career of Mrs. Regina Whittaker, known to the public as a "reformer and philantropist" and "extraordinary woman," but to her husband, who is a sensible commonplace English merchant, as "Queenie," and to her daughters, who in accordance with her 30th.
