FIGHTING AT PORT ARTHUR

efter the Japanese ships have had all winfer to clean, repair and refit. While hopes are still entertained that Port Arthur may be able to hold until the appearance of the Baltic fleet, the question of the fall of that stronghold does not, apparently, enter greatly into the calculations of the admiralty. The only thing expected of the Port Arthur squadron is to break out of the harbor and inflict as much damage as possible upon Togo's Such ships as escape are expected to make their way to Vladivostok, where the repairs on the cruiser Bogarati are Viadivostok, although icebound in winter for commercial uses, can easily be kept open for a fleet of war vessels by means of ice breakers. If the Japanese fleet is caught in such a weakened condition that the Baltic ships are able to win a victory officials here hold that other problems will solve themselves, and with Japanese communications severed the Japanese army on the mainland will be at the mercy of Russia.

This boldly announced program seems to stake the whole issue upon sea fighting. The Japanese ships, it must be remembered, have been in active service seven months. No matter how greatly the efficlency of the guns and the speed of the vessels have been impaired, the crows of Admiral Togo's ships have enjoyed the prestige of continuous victories, while opposed to them will be a fleet of brand new shi s. more or less untried, and none of w.f.ch have fired a shot in actual warfare an I whose crews have never yet been under

Should all go well with the squadron on the voyage and Rear Admiral Wiren be able to strike a telling blow upon Admiral Togo, even if half his ships go to the bottom, the Baltic squadron will be purried on with all possible speed. If defects develop in the vessels or if Wiren falls utterly, the squadron can at worst return and await the completion of other ships now building. Nothing, it is argued will be lost and much may be gained by the mere departure of the squadrou, and the fact that it may have to be reckoned with ater may make Admiral Togo wary about risking his ships when the time comes for Rear Admiral Wiren's sortle and thus give the latter a better opportunity to escape.

No official dispatches from the front were received on Sunday. The military situation as far as the public is concerned remains unchanged. Numberless stories are affoat regarding important command with the new army and the disposition of the various prominent officers whose names have been mentioned in connection therewith; but nothing conclusive has yet been given out. It is merely evident that preparation for the dispatch of fresh troops is being pushed as rapidly as possible. It is understood that the Second division of the guard regiments is already under orders to go to the front.

Blames Republicans for Trusts. It is estimated that there are in the United States between 200 and 300 combinations of capital and corporate interests, known as truats, which have grown up in the last few years under republican rule. Some of them are so conducted as to be pernicious and harmful to the general interest. With the power they are able to exert they can lessen competition control terest. With the power they are able to exert they can lessen competition, control prices and regulate to their own advantage the law of supply and demand. Individual effort is helpless against such strong rivals, and the natural right of all persons to barter and trade is unnaturally restricted. The effort of these trusts is to control or monopolize, and these monopolies, when unrestrained, seem to produce conditions which bring about strikes and disorders, and disturb the business affairs of the country.

Local self-Government.

Local self-government, that came to us not as the sift of the national government, but as the legitimate outcome of the reserve powers of the states and of the people, is the very cornerstone of our political structure, and the best assurance of liberty regulated by law. It can only be maintained by strict observance of the limitations of the federal constitution. The democratic party has always resisted, and will continue to resist, the encroachment by its enemies upon the fundamental right of the people of the several states. All power comes from the people and should be surrendered only in the interest of the people, and whenever this power is used for selfish interests it is not only an abuse, but usurpation. Local Self-Government. International Arbitration.

All lovers of their country must deprecate the rehabilitation by the republican party of a disappearing race issue, at a time when every effort should be made to promote rather than retard the progress which was being made in the states where slavery had existed, toward kindlier relations between the two races. The revival of this issue, with all its attendant evils, must of necessity retard the development of the southern states, whose people are struggling manfully with conditions left by the war, and seriously interferes with the industrial progress of both races.

Frand in the Public Service.

Fraud in the Public Service. Fraud in the Public Service.

Peculation and fraud in the public service under the present administration, especially in the Postoffice and Land departments, reached such proportions that knowledge of the evils practiced became public property. Precautions naturally followed, but a thorough and impartial investigation by congress proposed and urged by the Gemocratic minority, was refused by the republicans at the mandate, it is believed, of the administration. Congress adjourned earlier than at any long session for many years for the purpose, it is believed, of preventing further agitation of the question, and in an effort to curtail expenses.

Charge Violation of Civil Service Law. Charge Violation of Civil Service Law.

Offices are created and filled in pursuance of law to carry on the government, and not to further party ambitions and the selfish purpose of any citizen. Many of the 100,000 federal officenoiders, servants of all the people, while under salary, are now vigorously, some covertly and some openly, working and contributing in the prosent campaign to secure the success of the republican party, in defiant yiolation of the civil service laws, rules and regulations. Several members of the cabinet and other officials of the government, forsaking their duties and the departments at Washington, are spending their time in making speeches and using all the influence and power of their official positions to elect their chief.

Judge Parker.

Judge Parker.

The late democratic convention and its candidate for president have given signal exhibition of a mutual respect and confidence almost unprecedented in our political history, and our party has received new inspiration and hope in its appeal to the people, who always appreciate and admire courage, character and discretion in their leaders. Our candidate has these qualities and can be depended upon at all times to observe the self-control and speech and action which is 32 necessary to safe reasoning and sound judgment.

With unabated trust in the efficiency of the cardinal principles of our great party, when apiled to the practical administration of government, to realize the blessings of peace and prosperity for all, and believing that the people will correct the present abuses of administration by a change of party in power, I await with confidence the result of their judgment at the polls. Very truly yours, Judge Parker.

She was born in a small town in the north of Germany in 1860, and until seven years old enjoyed good health. Then she nad a fall which hurt her head. She began to have spells of sleep, lasting for months from which she was aroused only to re hapse into longer periods of unconscious

Finally, in 1886, she fell into a sleep which was not broken until a few months ago, when she again awoke in the full pos session of her senses.

She remembered distinctly facts which happened before her sleep, and asked all about her brothers and sisters as if she had been asleep only one night. She was, however, too feeble to raise herself, and had to learn again like a child to walk. She has improved greatly since and is again able to do light work. Her case is exciting great interest in the medical world and is being made the subject of a special investigation by Dr. Paul Farez, professor at the School of Psycho-
