Petrovsky, Neuchlet and Wilminstar regiments stormed the Japanese trenches at Soukhetung and carried them after desperate resistance, capturing ten guns. The Japanese losses were enormous.

On October 16 the enemy made six counter attacks against our left column which were repulsed with heavy losses. The enemy's dead left on the field in the direction of the left army is estimated at 4,000.

A report dealing with the Russian attack on Sienshiching (Shanchin) in the effort to reach the Japanese communications at the Yalu river was received last night.

According to a report received from Sienshiching, the Japanese retreated at first to the mountain and later in the direction of Huanchienzi and Singling. No information has been received from the direction of Wetsuiku and Shiaoientzu.

The main fear is that the unexplained quiet on the Russian left may preface some tactical stroke of which Kouropatkin has not yet been apprised.

On the afternoon of October 17, the Russian detachment advanced from Sientin to Chienchiang and pursued the enemy on October 18 ten miles southwest of Kaoliang.

An official estimate prepared at Imperial Headquarters at Peking, which is an offensive movement would be approved. Only by hammering away can we ultimately hope to smash the Japanese.

General Sakharoff telegraphs that the Russians yesterday recaptured Lone Tree hill, south of Sientin, and captured eleven Japanese guns and one quick-firer.

Retreating the details of the fight at Lone Tree hill, General Sakharoff adds: The fighting did not cease until this morning. The Japanese were driven back with great stubbornness and accepted a bayonet attack in which many of them were killed.

At the present moment, it is estimated that the whole of our position. The troops are very tired, but they are in splendid spirits.

ing the retreating Russians who defended the town. This was the most stubborn of the entire six days' battle. All day the Japanese poured a rain of shells on the position with no effect, and finally it was taken by the infantry. The entire line is now in possession of the Japanese.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—The Foreign Missionary Society of the Christian church convened in annual convention today at the Exposition building as part of the series of national missionary conventions that are being held under the auspices of the Christian church.

The meeting began with devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. R. G. Frank of Liberty, Mo. Committees to act during the convention, which will be in session two days, were appointed, and the annual reports of the officers of the society were read and approved.

Rev. R. H. Miller of Buffalo, N. Y., delivered an address on "The Program of Jesus," and the remainder of the opening address was devoted to listening to talks by foreign missionaries, who were introduced by Mr. Frank.

There were no sessions today of the American Christian Missionary society, but the sessions will be resumed tomorrow and continue until Wednesday night.

Observance of Milwaukee Day at the exposition was opened today with a military parade. The formal exercises of the day were held in the Plaza St. Louis, Hon. W. D. Hoard, president of the Wisconsin board of World's fair managers, presiding.

With eighteen entries, representing America, England and Japan, the first kite-flying contest of the kind ever held began today in the Aeronautic concourse, the Stadium and other clear spaces at the World's fair.

Among the entries, many of whom who were in the contest, were Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone bearing that name; William E. Eddie, inventor of the Eddie kite, and Major Baden-Powell of England.

Forms of kites never before seen in this part of the world were shown, and the contests attracted considerable attention. The most interesting competition was the mile-high contest in which Baden-Powell and Eddie flew kites.

The heights were determined trigonometrically by means of a theodolite. The kite which did not attain the height of at least one mile. In the 500-foot contest the height was determined by means of the quadrant.

Fourteen kite-flyers participated in the contest, and two of the competitors kept their kites in the air for the required two hours. F. B. Wardwell of Stamford, Conn., and Elias G. Coyne of Chicago were the men who met the conditions of the contests.

Major Baden-Powell, Dr. Bell and Aeronaut Baden-Powell, representing America, did not participate in the contest. The unfavorable wind and the fact that one of the contestants fouled nearly every other kite flown in his efforts to get a favorable position, led to the failure of the contest, which was declared off for the day.

standard of the men who would be sent to the front from the various states.

It would prevent the scandalous no so frequently incident in the election of such officers by state legislatures.

It would remove one of the great temptations of agrarianism in the appointment of legislative representatives by states.

It would confer power upon the people, instead of taking it away, as it would be less effective among large bodies of voters than with a limited number of electors.

Mr. Hill quoted from the democratic platform of 1892 its recommendation that congress establish a department of labor in charge of a cabinet officer.

That action led to the selection of Mr. Cortelyou, the president's own private secretary, for the position of cabinet officer in charge of the department of labor.

The speaker then continued: The action of the administration in the Panama affair has done more to undermine the respect which 100 years of honorable history had secured for this country than the people of other countries than all the mere triumphs of our arms can ever restore.

Mr. Hill closed with a warm tribute to the democratic nominees.

NEBRASKA CONCLUDES INDIANA TOUR

During the Day. MARIION, Ind., Oct. 17.—The fifth day of William B. Bryan's tour of Indiana, which closed with a speech before a mass meeting of democrats in this city tonight, eclipsed the success of any previous day of the tour in point of attendance and enthusiasm.

The itinerary included Lafayette, La. and Mobile, Ala. The speakers were Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone bearing that name; William E. Eddie, inventor of the Eddie kite, and Major Baden-Powell of England.

Some of the sentences which characterized the speeches of Mr. Bryan today were: "You need not be afraid of Parker's silver views."

Those who voted for me ought to be ashamed. It is not for personal reasons that you voted for me, but because you were misled by the gold bugs, who have not come under republican rule.

If you vote against Parker because he is for gold, you are voting for the gold bug, the paramount issue, whereas imperialism is not an issue.

If republicans are consistent they ought to advise the silver democrats of the west to vote against Parker because he is for gold, and the gold democrats of the east to vote for Parker because he is for gold.

I would rather go down to eternal oblivion than be instrumental in the election of a man who would sell the soul of his country for a few dollars.

Mr. Davis, Senator Daniel, John P. McGraw, national committee man for the state, and Wood Daley. Mr. Daley, however, took a party to speak in Lewisburg, rejoicing the delay at Roanoke tonight.

An all-night run is to be made to Lynchburg, where the train will be transferred to the Norfolk & Western railway. Senator Daniel will address meetings early tomorrow at Roanoke and Radford, Va., Bluefield, W. Va., the next stopping place, will be reached in the afternoon.

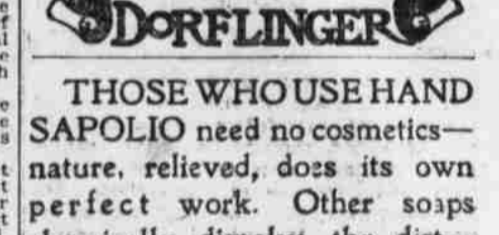

A fire in the governor's mansion at Charleston, an alarm for which was turned in as the meeting was in progress, created some disturbance, especially as it was hastily rumored that it was a trick to break up the meeting. The fire did little damage, either to the mansion or the meeting.

DAVID R. HILL SENT MR. DAVIS A TELEGRAM FROM INDIANAPOLIS, which was read at the Charleston meeting, to the effect that after conferring with numerous state leaders, Mr. Hill felt confident in predicting democratic victory in Indiana.
