

WORK ON GRAIN TERMINALS

Operations Progressed Far Enough to Permit Raisin and Buildings Soon.

EXCELLENT SITE FOR ELEVATORS OR MILLS

Most of Filling-in for Freight Houses and Switches of Great Western Done and Other Grading is Pushed.

Now work is under way which soon will put one-half of the Omaha Grain Terminal company tract in condition for raisin and buildings. Some six weeks ago the incorporators of the terminal company, through President Stockey and others in St. Paul, closed a contract for the grading of the tract with a firm located in the Twin cities. Immediately a considerable force of men was put to work on the ground and it is thought by local members of the company the work will be finished in about one week.

The district to be graded under this contract will include about one-half of the acreage bought for the terminal. The work was begun at Twenty-third street and has been carried westward almost to the Boulevard viaduct, just north of South Omaha. Work is on the central portion of the ground bought last year which runs from the vicinity of Twenty-third street to the South Omaha line, and includes a portion of Sheelytown.

The houses that stood on the tract were sold at auction and removed by the purchasers. This left a large piece of uneven land, running generally along the valley. The grading work now being done is cutting down the higher parts of the slopes and filling the lower. When it is finished this part of the terminal will be ready for the tracks.

Good for Elevators or Mills. This land will form excellent foundation space for any elevators and mills which may be erected, and the filled land will be sufficiently solid as soon as graded for the tracks. The incorporators are not willing to say whether or not allotments have been made to private companies or whether Mr. Stockey will proceed as soon as the ground is ready to put up his long promised elevator. The intention of the terminal company was to secure land where any person or company desiring to put up buildings for the grain business could be accommodated.

It was thought at the time the Union Pacific and Burlington railroads might refuse to take for elevators on the Great Western and other lines, and Mr. Stockey took this move, it is said, to kill the possible excuse that ground was not obtainable. Plans for grading the terminal tract were drawn in St. Paul last winter, and the work would have been begun in the spring, but the Great Western people were so busy with the grading of freight yards and terminal tracks south of Leavenworth street that the other work was not attempted until this fall. The greater part of the filling-in work for the freight houses and switches is now done, and it is said that terminals for grain companies will receive undivided attention.

SIGN ARTIST AND THE WOMAN

Former Taps Gently on Window and Latter Thinks He is Calling to Her.

She was stylishly dressed, beautiful of face and figure and she wore an expression of indifference. When she passed the Missouri Pacific office she heard someone tap at the window and started back. She saw only an artist who was working away on one of the new window signs. Puzzled, she started to continue her journey. Again someone tapped at the window and again she hesitated and turned back. No one was there but the artist and she started to move away when the same tapping occurred. This time she turned with a startled face and flushed eyes. It was evident something was going to happen. She made a move for the office, but as she did so the tapping was renewed by the artist on the inside. Then the truth dawned on the attractive and stylish stranger. She smiled, blushed and went on her way. The trouble was caused by the artist, who was filling in the letters on the window and giving them a frosty effect by tapping the varnish with his brush. And there were rude men in the vicinity who actually seemed to enjoy the discomfiture and the confusion of the pretty, blushing little woman, who at first supposed the tapping was for her special benefit, as it happened at very short intervals.

BERTHA HELD IN CHICAGO

Faunting One Yields to Temptation and is Up Against a Stern Reality.

According to police records of Omaha, St. Louis, Chicago and Milwaukee, "Painting" Bertha Liebecke has been making a transcontinental tour of the country, practicing in her gentle art of fainting and removing articles from shop counters and other places. Her last local engagement was on the evening of October 6, when in a rooming house at Twelfth and Dodge streets, she relieved a Wyoming citizen of $100 and a gold watch. Flushed with prosperity, she immediately went to St. Louis, where she had a "fainting" spell in front of a Sixth street theater. It is the prominent man of the World's fair city
