"SLOPPY" SMITH STANDS PAT

Ex-Convict Insists He is Innocent of Complicity in Crimes.

POLICE ARE SUSPICIOUS OF HIM

Youthful Outlaws Who Confess Depredations Are Photographed and Measured for Future Reference by Police.

"Sloppy" Smith is still standing pat at the city jail and refuses to incriminate himself in any of the crimes already detailed in the confessions of Trattner, Case, Madison and Doran. The youthful outlaws who planned the robbery of the car barn and were bound over to the district court Thursday morning. Smith was to have had his preliminary trial in police court this morning. Instead of pressing business of Assistant County Attorney Magney in the district court, Smith will have a trial in police court Saturday morning. Smith is believed by the authorities to have been in the holdup of Mike Caspewski's saloon at Twenty-fourth and Hancock streets, and William F. Huffaker's drug store in South Omaha, both places being held up on the evening of October 12. Smith says he returned to Omaha from the Iowa state penitentiary September 29, having been released on the day before. As yet Smith has no counsel. He says he is entirely without funds. Roy Case is the only one of the five who has a lawyer. The attorney was secured by his wife, who is sticking by her husband. Talking of his past life Smith said: "I have lived in Omaha twenty years with the exception of the five years I have just served at the Iowa penitentiary. My father was a well digger here years ago and died out in Colorado. My mother and the other members of the family have left the city. I do not know where they are. I was married here years ago and my wife secured a divorce while I was in the penitentiary. She remarried and lives in Omaha. Her name now is Van Burden. I had cause to see her several times since I came back." Five years ago Smith was sentenced ten years in the Iowa penitentiary for shooting a Northwestern brakeman who was trying to put Smith off a freight train between Des Moines and Ames. While working on a circular saw in the penitentiary some time ago Smith's right arm was badly injured by the saw and his sentence was reduced to five years. His arm is yet partially lame.

Smith Again Suspected.
It is now thought by the authorities that Smith was implicated with Doran in the robbery of Alfred Keller's saloon at 2903 North Sixteenth street at 12:30 p. m. of the 6th instant. Keller was locked in a room and $7 and a gold watch taken.
Mike Caspewski of Twenty-fourth and Bancroft, whose saloon was robbed, has called at the station and partially identified Smith, Trattner and Doran as the three men who entered his place on the evening of October 12, so Chief of Police Donahue says.
Joe Trattner, the smallest of the five young men, apparently takes an abnormal pleasure in relating some of the escapades of himself and pals. As one of the city jail attaches put it, "He likes it better than he does to eat his meals."
One of Trattner's stories is in connection with the picnic holdup in Riverview park on the evening of July 1. On the day following detectives policed the park with the hope of gaining some clue.
Trattner says he and Doran saw the detectives during the day, and in the evening the boys laid in ambush for three hours, waiting for the detectives to return, when they intended to fire several shots over the heads of the "plain clothes men," just to see whether they were game or easily frightened. This is one of the reminiscences Trattner tells with a smile as he thinks of the fun they expected to have with the officers.
The police department yesterday was busy measuring and photographing Trattner, Case, Doran and Madison, who went to the county jail as soon as these preliminaries were over.

CHEAP LUNCH SUITS ELBOURN

Twenty-Five Cent Meal is All City Clerk Will Allow Officers of Registration.

When I told supervisors of registration unable to leave the booths for meals, that the city would pay for food delivered to them, I did not contemplate serving a Christmas dinner," said City Clerk Elbourn this morning as he surveyed a bill for $2. Here are two men in the third precinct of the Eighth ward who have placed their O. K. on a bill for that amount for four meals. A 25-cent lunch is always good enough for me, so I guess this bill will have to be cut right in two."

NEGRO JUMPS ON COAL PILE

Fleeing Man Seeks Refuge from Police, but Finds His Haven Not Secure.

William Young, colored, arrested yesterday by Sergeant Dempsey and Officer Shepherd on the charge of daylight breaking and entering, tried to spring something from the Omaha police when he made an effort to sink his identity in a pile of coal in the yard of C. B. Havens at Fifteenth and California streets. After an exciting chase of half a mile Young scaled the coal yard fence at one bound and sought refuge in a pile of black diamonds, thinking his color would mingle effectively with the fuel and cause his pursuers to continue on through the yard and give him a chance to escape. But Young reckoned without his host.

When C. F. Boyer, a colored laborer living at 1412 Davenport street, returned home for his dinner, he says he found Young in the house with a large basket packed with the coal yard fence and ready to take his leave with the plunder. Entrance was gained by forcing a door, it is said.

In response to a hurry call from the Windsor stables the patrol wagon with Sergeant Dempsey and Officer Shepherd responded, arriving on the scene in time to take up the chase that Boyer had started. The sergeant saw a man with a light coat running like a deer toward the coal yard and he followed. The man with the light hat was Boyer. Officer Shepherd pressed a grocery wagon into commission and took another tack, while Driver Wilson on the patrol made a flank movement. Young, Boyer and the sergeant reached the coal yard almost at one man, Young jumping the fence just in time to hide in the coal.

The plunder, which had been packed in a large basket, consisted of two suits of clothes and numerous articles of smaller value. Even such trivial a thing as a box of matches was packed.

Speaking of the affair at the station, Boyer said: "I was wuking at de time on Eighteenth street in a house 'n' Ah heard something 'saying to me 'Chas, yah better be gwine along home.' Ah tried to wuk, but Ah heard it agin' an' den Ah starts fer home, an' when Ah gets there dat man was in de room an' everything was messed up. Ah was a frien to dat man, too."

LITTLE IS COMING HOME

Man with Money in the Court Will Remain in Closer Touch with It.

The officers and retinue of the county court are getting ready to receive George Little. He is expected to return fresh from his trip to San Francisco. The money was forwarded Thursday and George is expected as a return on the investment. Mr. Little bears somewhat the same relation to the county court as did Iolanthe to the lord chancellor. That is, he is dependent on the court because the court has charge of his estate.

Mr. Little lives in McArdle, but his people on the other side of the Atlantic did not hold that against him and some one left him a small fortune. Louis Nes-

POLITICS STOPS THE COURTS

Election Matters Consume Time of Many Attorneys and Judges Get Lay Off.

The district and county courts have been running very light since the beginning of the October term. The Ak-Sar-Ben festivities caused a lack of interest during the first week, and since that time the attorneys largely have been too much occupied with politics to wish their cases to come to trial. For this reason whenever possible hearings have been set forward and the jury has had an easy time. In the scavenger law cases the defendants have been slow to appear.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP

Has been used by Mothers for their children with success for over fifty years.

This little child, whose name is given below, was the best of his kind, and the best of his kind, until he was a year old.

He was very noisy and his mother was very anxious to get him quiet.

She tried everything she could think of, but she could not get him quiet.

Then she heard of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

She bought a bottle and gave her child a few drops.

She was very glad to find that the syrup was so good for her child.

She has since given it to all her children, and they are all well and happy.
