MOISE CIRCULATES PETITION FOR HOWELL

Deal Consummated for Withdrawal of Socialist Nominee for County Attorney and Substitution of English, the Democrat.

A deal is said to be on foot, engineered by agents, of County Attorney English, whereby the resignation of the socialist nominee for county attorney is to be filed on the last day allowed by law for with-drawals and to be followed by an endorsement of English, which will substitute him as the socialist nominee. As the story to be worn on the left arm and a silk tile is told, there is a cash consideration of for each of the palibearers have already $100 involved, and by this small outlay been purchased, and the yarn for the County Attorney English's managers have mourning gloves is being spun out by the figured that they will get for him some patent jenney of the Omaha fakery. Chairman Cowell has submitted the folinvestigation of ballot printing, of which the World-Herald is trying so hard to make democratic political capital:

"A statement appeared in last evening's Bee, with regard to an interview held with the chairman, which is not exactly correct. So that there may be no misunderstanding, I wish to state that there is no investigation in progress at this time in connection with the printing of the Water board ballots. Mr. Howell had a hearing before our committee and we canvassed the returns at that time very thoroughly, and while the hearing was in progress Mr. Howell asked if the secretary of our committee would take notes of the proceedings. It has always been our habit to take minutes of proceedings at our various meetings, and inasmuch as our secretary, C. C. Valentine, is a stenographer, the minutes were taken down in shorthand. Mr. Howell asked if he might have a typewritten statement prepared by Mr. Valentine, and I stated that I had no objection. Mr. Howell brought in no stenographer. The statement which appeared in yesterday's World-Herald was not complete and did not contain a full report of the proceedings, but contained only such portions as Mr. Howell felt he could use to his own advantage. I have no desire to discuss this matter further. I feel that full justice was done Mr. Howell when the hearing was in progress, as far as the committee could

GOSSIP OF THE POLITICIANS very funny. Among the very active circulators of the petition to least the culators of the petition to insert Humbus Howell's name on the official ballot as can didate for member of the Water board is Echoes of the Local Campaign New in that well known champion of political purity, rectified and distilled in the Willow Springs brewery, Colonel Walter Moles, assisted by several chronically indignanward healers of both parties. All of these are shouting, "Howell or bust." Comedy of Errors, which occupies two double-shotted columns under studhorse head lines, on the front page, next to reading matter, in the World-Herald, morning noon and evening, still remains on the boards, and, according to the play bills, will continue until 6 p. m. Tuesday, November 8, A. D. 1904, when the curtain will be rung down. A requiem dirge is also being expressly composed by the poet "lariat" of the wild and wooly west entitled, "Sie Transit Gloria Mundi," which translated into English means, "Thus vanish all the glories of the world." That packing house employe who flung be averse to voting for candidates labeled the "Impertinent" question at Candidate National; G. B. Smith, assistant cashier of "socialist." "We'll take a chance on it, Berge during the latter's South Omaha speech last Friday night, asking him what "I don't know any way of get- he would do if he was governor and such ting votes cheaper-that is, providing it a garnishment bill as the one Governor Mickey vetoed was put up to him, has stirred up all kinds of trouble for the fusion nominee for governor and his political lowing written statement as to the alleged sponsers. The same question has been taken up by other "impertinent" workingmen over the state until Berge and his friends are said to be fairly swamped by a veritable refrain of inquiries. And still, up to date, no one seems to know what Mr. Berge would do, as he has not yet told anyone.

> Apropos of this policy of evasion the republican state committee has got out a card on the subject which it is circulating throughout the state, with the expressed purpose that "every voter may know that Mr. Berge is afraid to answer a question which Governor Mickey would not evade." The card is headed, "The Artful Dodger," and states:

Friday evening, October 22, Mr. Berge, fusion candidate for governor, delivered a speech in South Omaha. A laborer in the Armour packing house respectfully asked leave to propound a question, and, permission being given, addressed Mr. Berge as follows:

"Mr. Berge, I am a laboring man, and I want to ask you this question: "If you are elected governor and the legislature should pass such a garnishment law as Governor Mickey vetoed, would you sign it or would you veto it?"

To this question Mr. Berge, always wills.

Mickey vetoed, would you sign it or would you veto it?"

To this question Mr. Berge, always willing to take the people into his confidence, made the following frank and lucid reply: "I don't know, my friend, what that bill was. I never read it or never knew what the bill was, but I-I-I-will tell you what I think about it. I-I-Say! I don't want to be diverted from the subject. I didn't discuss that. I am not advised on the subject, and don't think you ought to interrupt me in that phase of the discussion."

Thus all doubt as to Mr. Berge's position has been dispelled forever.

Mr. Berge doesn't know.

Many republican leaders have favored Many republican leaders have favored the enactment of laws providing for postal savings banks. Bills without number have been introduced in congress to that end, both by republican and democratic members. The question is an old one, yet it has not developed any considerable sentiment one way or the other. Very little opposition has been manifested in or out of congressional committees. There seems to be some growth in sentiment favorable to the subject, but it is safe to predict that no law will be enacted until the people show a more earnest desire for such legislation. The attempt to make of it an issue to the subject, but it is safe to predict that no law will be enacted until the people show a more earnest desire for such legislation. The attempt to make of it an issue in the congressional campaign in the Second Nebraska district must prove abortive. There is no sentiment in opposition to postal savings banks, except that which might come from corporate savings banks. Men in control of national banks as a rule are not opposed to the establishment of postal savings banks. Senator J. H. Millard, for a generation president of the Omaha National bank, has for years expressed himself as favorable to such legislation. Ever since the panic of 1853 he has been convinced that the existence of postal savings banks would be a stay to public confidence in times of financial stress and would, in his judgment, have a tendency to ward off the panicky condition of the popular mind which was such a menace to all banks ten years ago. Senator Millard has other good reasons for favoring postal savings banks. He believes that the vast sums of money that would by that means be placed at the disposal of the government could be profitably invested in postoffice buildings in county seats and other important towns throughout the nation; wherein the government can borrow 1½ per cent for such deposits and use them with which to build the Panama canal when the government can borrow 1½ per cent for such deposits and use them with which to build the Panama canal when the government can borrow 1½ per cent money for that purpose, Senator Millard thinks would be unwise for obvious reasons. Congressman Hitchcock heralds this as one of the salient points of the bill he introduced at the closing days of the last session. Evidently the subject is new to him.

Judson, to express regrets.

Nebraska Banks Among Best. Mr. Judson has a warm word of commendation for Nebraska banks and bankrs. He said:

"Nebraska was very prosperous up to 1883-94 and then she had her baptism, a famine or a panic. The banks were hard up, but they pulled out all right with a few failures, but with a splendid nerve and a great exhibition of banking sense. Chicago bankers had confidence in them and did not hesitate to send money freely when needed. Nebraska has been wonderfully blessed of late with great crops and as a consequence great prosperity. You have not had the hot winds to blast things. I am glad to say this of Nebraska banksyou will find it extremely hard to find more substantial banks and more clear heads, clear thinking, conservative bankers than right here in Omaha and the same thing may be said of the bankers of the state. One of our first employes, the late J. C. McNaughton, was state bank examiner here and he had the same opinion Mr. Lacey has been kept at home, much to his regret, through family illness.
