Rider Haggard's New Novel, "The Brethren," is Laid in Palestine.

WAR BETWEEN AMERICA AND ENGLAND

"The Expert Maid-Servant" Presents a Solution of What Can Be Done with a Green Servant Girl in Order to Make Her Expert.

Rider Haggard's new book, "The Brethren" (McClure-Phillips), is the fruit of a journey which he took a couple of years ago to Palestine. The fact that the land where Christ had preached His gospel of perfect gentleness and peace had also become, centuries later, the scene of some of the bloodiest battles that the world has known, impressed his imagination forcibly and he felt a curious compulsion, as he states in his preface, "to weave a story wherein any one interested in the romance of that pregnant and mysterious epoch of the crusades, when millions of thousands were glad to lay down their lives for visions and spiritual hopes, could find a picture, however faint and broken, of the long war between the cross and crescent waged among the Syrian plains and deserts."

James Barnes' story of "The Unpardonable War" purports to narrate a series of events leading up to and through a war between the United States and England some years hence. Its central feature is a very long and dramatic account of the great sea fight between the two navies. There is much about explosives and national characteristics, and the delight of Europe over our falling out, and not a little love-making. Published by the Macmillan company.

Miss Katharine Holland Brown, the author of "Diane," was a widely known writer of clever short stories before she wrote this successful novel. Her home is at Quincy, Ill., where her father is a successful business man. Her education was at the French community settlement which forms the background for "Diane" during a visit to the old Mormon town Nauvoo, Ill. on the Mississippi river, where Cabot's dream of an ideal government was shattered. Miss Brown made an intimate investigation and traveled far to visit the few surviving Isariana. Miss Brown has not only written a charming story, but preserved a picturesque incident in American history hitherto overlooked by novelists. Published by Doubleday, Page & Co.

The question of what can be done with a "green" girl in order to make her "The Expert Maid-Servant" (Harpers) is practically and authoritatively treated by Christine Terhune Herrick in her book of that name. It is a family tradition with Mrs. Herrick that servants can be trained, and that a good domestic may often be made of very unpromising material. The servants of Mrs. Herrick's mother (Marion Harland) remained in the household for years, and it was her boast that her best maids had come to her as "green girls" and had been made into satisfactory servants. Mrs. Herrick has had the same experience, one maid coming to her at the age of 15 and remaining through fifteen years of the most trustworthy and competent service. It was the author's intention to show in her book how these fortunate results were attained.

A very interesting book, "Personal Reminiscences of the First Duke of Wellington, with Sketches of Some of His Guests and Contemporaries," by the late George Robert Gleig, chaplain general of her majesty's forces, is just imported by the Scribners. It is edited by his daughter, Mary E. Gleig, and contains a large number of new anecdotes of Wellington, throwing much light on his remarkable personality.

Mrs. Margaret Deland's essays in "The Common Way," which the Harpers have just published, are eminently practical in their views of life. They recall the fact that though, when Mrs. Deland first began to write, her genius turned to poetry, yet the poems were written on the backs of marketing memoranda and account books. This combination of the ideal and real is characteristic of much of her work. It is interesting to note that even Dr. Laven-dar himself, Mrs. Deland's greatest creation, may be said to stand as an admirable representation of the altruistic and the practical combined.

"Niver's School History of England" by Harmon B. Niver, published by the American Book company, furnishes a narrative history of England for the higher grades of elementary schools. It traces not only the growth of those principles of liberty and self government which are the common heritage of the Anglo-Saxon race, but also the gradual development of the British empire and its rise to the front rank of the world's manufacturing and commercial powers. It is written in a clear and simple style, and lays especial stress upon the progress of civilization as exemplified in literature and the arts. Questions and topics for home reading follow each section, and will encourage independent thought and supplement the work of the class room. In the appendix are given lists of books easily accessible, and especially suited for reference. The illustrations are numerous, appropriate and attractive, and the maps helpful and not over crowded.

RAGGING PAINS

Newport News, Va., July 22, 1903. Last summer while recovering from illness of fever, I had a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism in the knees, from which I was unable to leave my room for several months. I was treated by two doctors and also tried different kinds of liniments and medicines which seemed to relieve me from pain for awhile, but at the same time I was not any nearer getting well. One day while reading a paper I saw an advertisement of S. S. S. for Rheumatism. I decided to give it a trial, which I did at once. After I had taken three bottles I felt a great deal better, and I still continued to take it regularly until I was entirely cured. I now feel better than I have for years, and I do cheerfully recommend S. S. S. to any one suffering from Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid or some other acid poison in the blood, which when deposited in the muscles and joints, produces the sharp, cutting pains and the stiffness and soreness peculiar to this disease. S. S. S. goes directly into the circulation, all irritating substances are neutralized and filtered out of the system, the blood is made pure and the general health is built up under the purifying and tonic effects of the vegetable remedy. Write for our special book on Rheumatism which is sent free. Our physicians will advise without charge all who will write us about their case.

The November number of the North American Review has an enticing list of contents. Baron Kentaro Kuroki explains why "The Yellow Peril is Japan's Golden Opportunity." Yves Guyot discusses the question "Where is Russia to Get Her Next Loan?" Sir Robert Finlay, attorney general of Great Britain, outlines the history of "International Arbitration." Congressman John J. Eech indicates "What Must Be Done to Secure an Railroad." Florence Macleod contributes the first part of a delightful study of "The Irish Muse." W. H. Lawton traces a connection between the recent increase in "Suicide and Life Insurance" as now administered. George W. E. Russell sketches the career of the late English statesman, Sir William Vernon-Harcourt. Prof. O. F. Lewis gives some interesting information about "The Self-Supporting Student in American Colleges."

"Election Night in a Great Newspaper Office" is the title of a thrilling and up-to-date article in the November Woman's Home Companion. It gives readers a valuable insight into the election returns as collected and dispersed.

The Century announces a great fiction year for 1905. In December will appear the opening instalment of Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice's "Sandy," the story of a young Scotch-Irish boy who comes to America in search of his fortune. The scene is for the most part laid in a country town in Kentucky. Later in the year will be printed a new novel by Mrs. Humphrey Ward, and the list of short-story writers which The Century announces includes the names of Rudyard Kipling, Anthony Hope, Jack London, Marion Crawford, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Elizabeth Robins, Owen Wister and an unusual number of those who have made a success in fiction.

"Until the Doctor Comes" will appear in the 1905 St. Nicholas, an important series of six brief papers contributed by Dr. E. E. Walker. These little emergency talks will tell, briefly and clearly, what to do in case of accident or sudden illness in the interval between sending for the doctor and his arrival—the few simple, safe, and helpful things that can be done, and the mistakes that can be avoided.

DEATH RECORD.

FUNERAL OF JUDGE NEUBAUER. SIDNEY, Neb., Nov. 3.—(Special Telegram.)—The funeral of Judge Julius Neubauer today was one of the largest ever held here. The services at the home, conducted by Rev. Dr. Gray of North Platte, were impressive. The public schools and all the business houses were closed and the city presented a sombre appearance. Promptly at 10 o'clock the mourners marched in a body to the home of the deceased, where they were joined by the Old Fellows and Grand Army of the Republic. Mrs. M. A. Livingston. WOODBINE, Ia., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Harrison county people are interested in the passing away of Mrs. Agnes I. Livingston, the wife of Marion A. Livingston of Woodbine. WOMAN IN CLUB AND CHARITY

Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker has called a meeting of all the officers of the General Federation, and presidents of all organizations belonging to the federation, to meet at Chantauqua, N. Y., June 3. This body is known as the general council, and this will be its first meeting held except in conjunction with the biennials. The purpose of the council is for the promotion of club interests in all lines.

The Chicago Inter Ocean, in a widely copied editorial, rejoices that the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs at its recent convention at Danville refrained from discussing woman suffrage. It says in part:

In the older conventions the main topic of discussion was woman's suffrage or woman's right. Women's clubs were then strong women as suffering under a great wrong because she was denied the privilege of being fully alive to woman's limitations by aggressive spirits preaching a new crusade for the progress of the race through the enfranchisement of women. It will not be denied that the women in the convention at Danville as they represent their own as did those of the convention of thirty years ago, who had a different view of woman's position. The women represented by the several hundred delegates at Danville are fully alive to woman's interests as were the clubs represented in suffrage conventions. It may even be assumed that the women at Danville represent in their delegate capacity more kinds of women than did the delegates to the legislative committee reported favorably on a woman's suffrage bill to be presented to the state legislature and the resolution was passed by a big majority. The convention further endorsed suffrage by electing the member who championed the movement in the discussion, Mrs. George Watkins of Chicago, as president of the league. Furthermore the Inter Ocean seems to take no account of the recent biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs, the largest, most progressive and most influential body of women in America, that placed upon its program one of the recognized brilliant speakers of the country, herself an experienced voter, Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker of Denver, to speak on "Is the Ballot of Value to the Working Woman." This address was one of the most largely attended and enthusiastically received of any on that program of recognized brilliant speakers and authorities of both sexes and the convention later elected Mrs. Decker president of the General Federation. Considering that the majority of the leaders of the club movement are avowed suffragists—that the great majority of the leading women of every progressive movement of the day are avowed suffragists—the well informed person can hardly agree with the Inter Ocean that there is such a great difference between the point of view of the women of today and those of thirty years ago. On the contrary, the difference is so small that it is almost negligible. The woman's club movement of the past is not so different from the woman's club of today as the Inter Ocean would have us believe.

The dowager empress of China has contributed 100,000 taels, or about $200,000 toward the formation of a Chinese branch of the Red Cross society. The action of China in thus becoming at last one of the signatories of the Geneva convention is received with satisfaction by philanthropists and peace societies generally. The Red Cross society is strong in Japan, the Women's Red Cross society being the strongest women's organization of that country.

SWINDLER IS UNDER ARREST. Labor Agent Who Sent Men to Alaska to Work for Firm that Does Not Exist in the Toils. ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 3.—George E. Hall of Kansas City was today arrested by a deputy United States marshal on the charge of having obtained a fee of $2 each from 200 laborers for securing them employment and then sending them to Alaska at their own expense to work for a company that did not exist. The specific charge against him is that he used the mails to defraud. The case was worked up by Postoffice Inspector J. J. Bennett of Kansas City, who alleges that Hall was in business there last winter, representing himself to be an employer of labor for the Alaska-Yukon Construction company. Inspector Bennett charges that Hall secured 500 laborers to go to Valdez, Alaska, and after collecting $7 from each, $3 as his fee and $4 for transportation, he sent them to Alaska. Inspector Bennett declares that when the laborers reached their destination they learned that there was no such company as the one named and they made their way back as best they could, after much suffering and hardship. Hall will be taken to Kansas City for trial.

ROURKE DENIES SELLING OUT

Pa Still Owns Team and Will Win Pennant Again Next Year.

NO FOUNDATION FOR RUMOR OF SALE

This Information, Conveyed in Morning Dispatch from Rourke, is Confirmed on His Return from the East.

"There is no foundation for the rumor that the Omaha base ball franchise has been sold to Mrs. Brew or anyone else," said Manager W. A. Rourke of the Omaha base ball team when he reached base ball headquarters yesterday from his eastern trip of nearly two weeks.

"The matter was broached to me along in the summer, but further than that there is no more foundation for the story. There is here is for the theory that the moon is made of green cheese, and you know there is no cheese in the moon," continued Pa Rourke.

"Omaha cannot get into the American association without the matter going through me, as I own the base ball rights for the Danville area for another year, when the contract expires.

"There were just twenty reporters after me in Chicago yesterday. They all said, 'Well, Bill, we heard you sold out. How about it?' I told them all I had not heard about my selling out, but probably would know when I reached home just what I had done while away."

At the Big Meeting. Mr. Rourke was in attendance at the meeting of the National Association of Base Ball Leagues, which body met for three days, October 25, 26 and 27, at the Victoria hotel in New York City. Sixty-seven members were present and twenty-three leagues are now represented in the association, which includes about 170 clubs. Besides Rourke, Burns of Colorado Springs, Burke and Tebeau of Denver and President Sexton of the Western league were at the meeting.

The matter of creating a double A class is under consideration by the association, further action being postponed until the meet of the major leagues in January. It is proposed to include the Eastern league, American association and Pacific Coast league.

Mr. Rourke reports the National association as being stronger than ever. A meeting of the Western league managers will be held some time within the next ten days, at the call of President Sexton. The date of the meeting has not been decided on. At that meeting the St. Joseph situation will be gone over by all concerned. It was Manager Rourke's expressed opinion that the Omaha team would be materially changed for the next season's campaign.

DOCTORS FOR MEN. We are living in an age of specialism; an age when success can only be attained by the concentration of every thought upon the unwavering pursuit of a single object. We are precisely such specialists. This accounts for the difference between success and failure in the treatment and cure of diseases of men. The physician who tries to explore and conquer the whole field of medicine and surgery becomes proficient in no particular branch. We have confined ourselves entirely to a single class of diseases and the complications that ensue and mastered them. We do not scatter our faculties, but concentrate them on our particular speciality. We have made a life study of diseases and weaknesses peculiar to men, spending thousands of dollars in researches and evolving a special system of treatment that is a quick, safe and certain cure for all skin, nervous, blood and private diseases. Our name has been a household synonym throughout the west for over a quarter of a century for remarkable skill and ability in the treatment and cure of the diseases and weaknesses so prevalent among men. If you are drifting in a sea of sickness and disease toward the rocks and shoals of chronic invalidism, you should stop drifting and consult the eminent specialists connected with the STATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE at once, before it is too late. Our success is the result of superior knowledge gained by 25 years of conscientious study and experience. There is nothing doubtful or experimental about our treatment. We know the effect of every medicine we use.
