AT THE PLAYHOUSES

"The Sambo Girl" at the Boyd.
Eva Tanguay and company in "The Sambo Girl," a musical extravaganza in two acts; book by Harry B. Smith; music by Gustav Kerker. The play is a classic. Henri du Pont, a Parisian modiste of "A Worth" trademark. Harry Short Willie Kinsabout, who was halfback at college, but is wayback now.

Raphael Rubens and company with American Ideas of art and commercialism.

Angelo Martini, ballet master, but no master of Mrs. Martini, Arthur O'Keefe, Celeste, wife of Henri du Pont, a professor of home cooking. Ethel Morton Mrs. Martini, "Signora Samson," of the Olympia circus, but with aspirations for grand opera. Florence Morrison Mrs. Carlotta Darlington. Eva Tanguay "The Sambo Girl" is nonsense, pure and simple. It has been referred to variously as a "musical comedy," a "musical extravaganza" and as several other varieties of entertainment, and yet none of the appellations used exactly fits. It is in a class by itself, and is quite likely to hold it all by itself. But that doesn't in anywise detract from the fact that the people seem to like the foolery that accompanies the movement of the piece. Miss Tanguay is not inclined to take the whole stage for herself, but she does give a good share of the show, and earnestly tries to live up to all her advance agent promises for her. She is sprightly, she is pretty, and she doesn't loaf a minute on the stage. Some of her work is extremely clever, and all of it is her own, even her wiggles and kicks, and she is very droll now and then. She can't sing, and yet she gets away with a couple of songs in a way that recalls the late Mrs. T. The last night she was called for so enthusiastically that she finally responded with a little speech that was nearly as cute in its wording as in its delivery.

Mr. Short, Mr. Lane, Mr. Collins and Mr. O'Keefe add much to the interest of the piece by their clever comedy work. The dancing of Mr. Short is good, and the burlesque of an excitable Frenchman by Mr. O'Keefe is extremely funny. Miss Morrison has a character part which she shines, and Miss Morton contributes the only solo of the evening that is really worth listening to. The hit of the piece is "The Banjo Serenade," sung in the second act by Miss Tanguay and company, and this was called for until the little dancer was fairly worn out. As an instance of the efforts made by Miss Tanguay to please, it may be cited that she changes costumes four times during the first act and five times during the second, so that when she isn't on the stage doing some ridiculous stunt, she is in her dressing room getting ready for another. The chorus is well trained, and the whole piece is given with a dash and snap.

WOODMEN OF WORLD CONTEST
Competitive Drill for Tri-City Silver Service is Again Won by No. 10.

At Germania hall Thursday a contest for the Tri-City silver service set was given between Omaha-Seymour camp No. 16 and Alpha camp No. 1, Woodmen of the World. This set, which is held by No. 16, can be challenged for by any of the camps of Council Bluffs, South Omaha or Omaha Woodmen of the World. The officers of Seymour camp were in evening dress and the drill team in uniform. No. 1 was also in uniform. The judges counted 30 per cent on the military drill, 30 per cent on ritualistic work, and 30 per cent on improvisation. No. 16 drilled first, with J. Simpson as consul commander, M. H. Redfield as past consul commander and J. Kuhn as advisor lieutenant. Alpha's team was in charge of Consul Commander H. Ellsberg, Past Consul Commander J. L. Kaley and Advisor Lieutenant H. Jennings. The judges were: O. Impressive, J. C. Root and Cal Maynard of Council Bluffs; on military, Captain Gwynn of Druid camp and Sergeant Major Heller and Paul Harm; on accuracy, Walter Adams and George Mack. The judges declared the winner to be Omaha-Seymour camp No. 16, by a score of 98. Alpha camp team was scored 88.

"Buster Brown" at the Krug.
Master Gabriel, "the toy comedian," in "Buster Brown," an extravaganza in two acts, built on the drawings of F. Outcalt; by special arrangement with the artist and the New York Herald; under direction of M. B. Raymond, the principal.

Buster Brown, a regular boy.
Buster Brown's dog, "the dog." Mr. George All Jack Wynn, Buster's mother.
C. August Peterson, a visitor.
Michael O'Hara, "a much-used man."
Thames Brown, Buster's father.
Mary Brown, Buster's mother.
Sudie Sweet, her younger sister.
Mrs. Sweet, Mrs. Brown's mother.
Gladys O'Flynn, Mrs. Brown's cook.
Miss Mame Goodrich, Miss La Grande, "Buster's governess."
Miss Dorothy Zimmerman.

"Buster Brown" is not at all bad—those who like him in the Sunday supplement will like him very much better at the Krug. Tige, the Buster Brown dog, with a flexible papier-mache face and a set of eye gestures that would cause a bench show bull terrier, is a very funny dog. The plot of "Buster Brown" does not develop until the third act—and the third act has not yet been written. The first act serves to show the boy and the dog in about all the phases of their joint fun making abilities. It is good. The second

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA
Republican Meetings Largely Attended and Very Enthusiastic.

JOHN L. KENNEDY IS LOUDLY CHEERED
Points Made by the Candidate for Congress in His Frank Addresses Are Greeted with Warmest of Approval.

The republicans of South Omaha held two rallies Thursday night. At both of these meetings John L. Kennedy was the principal speaker, but other candidates were present and delivered short addresses. The first meeting was held at New Settlers' hall, Thirty-sixth and I streets. There was a good crowd and Mr. Kennedy and the other candidate were given a hearty greeting. At this meeting George Johnson occupied the chair and introduced the speaker. As Mr. Kennedy had a number of other meetings to attend he spoke first and only briefly. He talked on the general prosperity of the country under republican rule and mentioned specially the condition of the laboring man now as compared with the years when Grover Cleveland occupied the president's chair.

L. C. Gibson, republican candidate for state senator, and Judge W. W. Slabaugh, candidate for county attorney, followed with short talks.

At Duffy's hall, Twenty-sixth and Q streets, Mr. Kennedy made a more extended address. The hall was crowded and many voters stood. When Chairman Walter Slote introduced Mr. Kennedy the crowd cheered lustily.

In his opening remarks Mr. Kennedy said that the good crowd and the enthusiasm showed what might be expected of republicans at the polls next Tuesday. He then turned his attention to national affairs and talked of the campaign of 1892, when the democrats inserted a plank in their platform favoring the revision of the tariff. "When the wires flashed the news over the country that Grover Cleveland and a democratic congress had been elected," said Mr. Kennedy, "the wheels of industry eased off and business men commenced to accommodate themselves to changed conditions. They had no confidence in the democratic administration. It is not necessary to recall to you the Kelly and Coxe armies and the soup houses, as the conditions existing at that time are too fresh in your minds. Now the democrats want to revise the tariff again. Do you men want this to be done again? If so, vote for Parker and G. M. Hitchcock, and you will get just what you have earned. If you want a continuation of the present conditions and the protective tariff to stand, as it is voted for Roosevelt and myself, I pledge myself to stand by republican principles and policies that protect you and your wages."

Continuing, Mr. Kennedy said that the democrats never tried to aid the laboring men. "If you men vote the democratic ticket this year you will not land on the republicans, but on yourselves," declared the speaker. "In my opinion the laboring men of the United States have had enough of the tariff for the present. Mr. Kennedy predicted that Roosevelt would carry Nebraska by 50,000 and South Omaha by a safe majority. Applause followed this remark.

"You men who came here from foreign lands," said Mr. Kennedy, "came here to obtain better wages and to better your condition. You get both on account of the protective tariff. If you want to be paid in cheap money vote for Gilbert M. Hitchcock, but if you want to be paid in 100-cent dollars vote for me."

Referring to Mr. Hitchcock's postal savings bank bill he called attention to the fact that this bill was introduced on the last day of the last session of congress. "The bill was introduced on the last day of the last session of congress," said Mr. Kennedy, "and it is not yet introduced in congress, thirty-nine by republicans, and none had ever been passed."

"Certainly," said Mr. Kennedy, "Hitchcock cannot think that he can force the bill of his to become a law, being in the minority in the house of representatives. I believe in postal savings banks, where the laboring man can put his money knowing that it is absolutely safe. I am elected to congress, and I expect to be, I will support any measure tending toward the postal savings bank system. Therefore, if you want to get substantial results vote for me." In closing Mr. Kennedy gave some good advice to the voters in general, cast their first vote at the coming election. Mr. Kennedy was loudly cheered at the conclusion of his speech.

Judge W. W. Slabaugh was given close attention when he spoke of the meeting. After announcing his candidacy for the office of county attorney the judge called attention to his opponent. He said that the man who has held the office of county attorney for two years and has to have statements made to his worth in a sign of weakness. Just as a house that has been occupied for two years needs showing up at the end of that time shows signs of weakness. He spoke of his own record as assistant county attorney and as judge on the bench and said that he did not have to go out and get recommendations from people, as his record was recommendation enough. Further the judge said that he is not seeking the office for himself alone, but for other republicans. He declared that if elected one of his appointees would come from South Omaha. Judge Slabaugh spoke briefly of national affairs and declared that Bryan is not sincere in making speeches for Parker, especially as he has declared that he proposed reorganizing the democratic party as soon as election was over.

October Feeder Shipments.
The shipments of stockers and feeders from this market to the country was not particularly heavy during October. Only 45,000 head were sent out, this number being 18,000 less than was shipped in October, 1903. Dealers at the stock yards say that it was the smallest October since 1901. Out of the total number of head shipped from this market 28,700 head went to Nebraska feed lots, the majority of the balance being distributed between Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

Shipments of feeder sheep were large, a total of 153,688 head being sent out last month. Iowa secured the bulk of the shipments, 68,190 head, while Nebraska comes next with 54,969 head. Large numbers of feeder sheep were purchased by Illinois and Michigan farmers. Horse shipments for October were unusually large, the number sent from this market to other states being 7,527 head.

Paving Material Scarce.
Yesterday Contractor Dan Hannon was compelled to lay off his force of pavers which has been working on Railroad avenue on account of the non-arrival of brick from Galesburg, Ill. In reply to an inquiry Mr. Hannon was informed that it would be a week or ten days before any quantity of paving brick could be shipped to South Omaha. About 500,000 brick are needed yet to complete the paving. Hannon says that he can use 50,000 brick a day, and that it will be useless for him to start work until the daily arrival of the number is assured. There is also some delay in securing sand for the paving. "Despite of all the contractor can do, he does not seem able to get more than one car of sand a day. Mr. Hannon is confident that he can finish the paving before real cold weather comes, and he is considerably annoyed at having to stop work when the weather is so good for paving operations."

Last night the nurses at the hospital stated that the boy was resting as easily as could be expected. Besides the injured limb young Arnot sustained a number of severe cuts and bruises.
