As compared with a week ago, the market is around 10015c higher, the greatest improvement being on the more desirable grades. The cow market was fairly active and generally steady with yesterday, and also with the close of last week. Prices eased off a little early in the week, but the loss has been just about regained. The few that were offered this morning were sold in good season. The market on bulls, veal calves and stags remained unchanged. There was quite a demand for stockers and feeders this morning, in spite of the fact that the close of the week was at hand. Country buyers have taken hold quite freely for the last several days and consequently speculators were willing to buy fresh cattle this morning at right around steady prices, if they were good, but, of course, the common cattle were neglected and weak.
