I had all the war there that anybody did. I never had a pension, because I never asked for one, and I never asked because I never sustained any injury or incurred any disability that I felt en-titled me to one. At last, however, the government granted a pension to every soldier that had passed the age limit, and that included me with the rest, so I filed my papers and received my money. It ain't very much, and I didn't particularly need it, but regarded it as a sort of honorable recognition for what I had done, and I felt and says that if he is elected he will cut off that service pension. That's all he has promised. I don't care for the money; it isn't that, but I don't like the principle of the thing and I am not going to vote for Parker this year. Denies Story of Overture.

The Tribuna, commenting on the statement that one object of the meeting berenewal because of the competition of tween Signor Giolitti and Count von Buelow was a desire on the part of the German emperor to make overtures to the Italian government for a reconciliation between the Quirinal and the Vatican on the occasion of the baptism of the prince of Pledmont, and that those overtures were coldly received in Italy and were probably now doomed to failure in view of the approaching elections in that country, briefly remarks that no such overtures were made Whatever may be the possibility of a reconciliation between the Vatican and the Quirinal, it is not conceivable that it should take place under such auspices. If the revival in fact of the holy Roman empire under the leadership of a Hohensollern be the dream of the German emperor, it is a dream which it would be prudent not to tell in Italy, who will not suffer that even the shadow of vassalage should fall on the house of Savoy. for the Vatican, it would, no doubt, desire that any arrangement it may come to with the Italian government should have the consent and guarantee of the Catholic powers, but it would hardly submit its differences to be arranged by the friendly offices of Germany.

SCOTTISH TRADE IS POOR of Its Poor During Times of Distress. GLASGOW, Nov. 5 .- (Special Cablegram

to The Bee.)-Presiding at the Glasgow Charity Organization society's annual meeting this week the duke of Montrose expressed fear that trade prospects on the Clyde were poor. In London and Mauchester most pessimistic views were taken.

His grace deplored the increasing number of foreigners amongst those seeking charity in Glasgow and denounced the government for permitting pauper aliens to land in Great Britain. 'Twenty-six per cent of the relief cases were traced to intemperance. Intemperance might be inssened by legislation and better housing.

but the best remedy was the incarceration of drunkards, who were a drain on the charity of every large city. If they overcame intemperance they would do away with one-fourth of the charity sosettes.

The lord provost of Glasgow said Glasgow had years ago, during a period of trade depression, taken moss land not worth 1 shilling an acre and today it bore rich crops. The corporation had much waste land on the borders of the city, which might be the means of giving employment to a great army of unemployed men. Even if the corporation went the length of crecting a temporary village the results would absolutely justify the exshots at the judge and two assistants, one of the latter being wounded.

The deplorable events at Innsbruck can only determine the government for the present to direct its efforts to the adoption of vigorous measures for the maintenance of public order, and this it will enforce by all the means at its disposal. At the same time, however, it is impossible to ade-quately condemn the extravagant agitation which has preceded the disturbances and which has undoubtedly invested them with their passionate, unlawful character. Dr. yon Keerber telegraphed to the burgo-Gendarmes and public scurried pell mell from the court and Maracineano leaped from the dock, rushed toward the judges and again fired as they fied from the bench, wounding Judge Klou. I consider it the first and foremost duty of the government to restore complete tran-quility. In which I count upon the co-operation of the common council and the good judgment of all thoughtful inhabi-tants.

A memorable demonstration for the victim of the rioting at Innsbruck, Prezzey, the artist, who was killed by a bayonet thrust Friday, will be held November 7 in the lecture hall of the Vienna university.
