MUKDEN, Nov. 8.-Lieutenant General

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Nov. 8 .- (Special.) - Election day was quiet and orderly and the weather was ideal. The county headquarters was a busy place all day, as was the office of the city clerk, over 400 voters who had failed to register having secured certificates that entitled them to vote. In precinct B of the Fifth ward some delay occurred in starting the voting because the judges forgot to bring the poll books to the voting place. A number of men who wanted compelled to go back again. At the Tusion headquarters nothing was doing. All of the girl employes were given a holiday and Chairman Allen, Secretary Farris, Dr. Hall and a few of the faithful spent the day telling stories and answering queries over the relephones. A few carriages were on the streets hauling voters to the polling places, and this was about all that indicated a presidential election was on.

Probably the happiest man in Lincoln that this was election day was J. W. Winger, who is hovering between life and death, a sufferer with consumption. The venerable gentleman expressed a wish several days ago to live long enough to cast his vote, as he had cast his first one for Lincoln and wanted to cast his last for President Roosevelt, Scarcely any of his friends thought his wish would be gratified, as it was not believed he could stand the trip to the polls. The wish was made given for work in that department. known to Judge Parker this morning, how ever, and with J. H. Ager, secured an automobile and the dying man was tenderly taken to the polls.

And here was where a most inhuman judges of election the condition of Mr Winger and asked them to carry the batlot box to the door and allow Mr. Winger to cast his vote. Irrespective of party affiliation the judges gave their consent, when some person whose name was not ever since his departure. learned insisted that if the ballot box was carried out of the room he would challenge the vote.

The judges were of the opinion that un less all present gave their consent they could not remove the ballot box. The aged man was then carried tenderly into the room, made his cross at the top of the ticket and in his weak, dying voice expressed his pleasure that his greatest wish had been gratified.

Bad Row of Stumps.

Matthew Bainbridge, living in the north ern part of the county, has been up against a hard row of stumps for a long time and today he asked the courts for relief. The stumps are all that are left of some large locust trees that grew on the line of the farm of Dee Fullmer, and Mr. Bainbridge wants the court to have Mr. Fullmer remove them, as he claims they prevent him from cultivating a good slice of land. The defendant in his answer to the petition filed said Bainbridge has had the H use of the trees for thirty years for shelter for his cattle in winter and shade for them in summer and that he will remove the stumps when he gets good and ready, unless requested to get busy by the court.

Charge Boy with Stealing Horse. Detective Dawson arrested Oscar Patterlonging to Dow Norris, which he found tied to a fence north of Lincoln on First street, but he declared that he did not mean to steal it. In the buggy was a gun and several other articles, which Patterson took out and hid, after turning the horse loose near a straw stack about five miles from the place where he had found it.

Norris, with a friend, went hunting yesterday afternoon. They were north of the city and went out into a cornfield after prairie chickens, leaving the horse tied to the mail box. When they came out it was gone. Patterson said today that he had found the horse there, unhitched it and drove away up the road. After he had gone a short distance he decided that it would not do to keep the rig, so he turned it loose near a straw stack near a farm house. A girl saw him and after catching the horse she notified the officers and Patterson was soon placed under arrest. De tective Dawson took the prisoner out this afternoon to look for the gun and other goods that were taken from the buggy and "planted." The young man will likely be given his preliminary hearing tomor row.
