

GAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Sharp Advance in Wheat and Corn Aggregating One Cent a Bushel.

SHRITS GET SCARED OVER THE SITUATION

Demand for Cash Wheat Early, But Fair Inquiry Later—Outs are Also Strong—Gosip.

OMAHA, Nov. 9, 1904.

There was an erratic and uncertain tone in the wheat market, with a sharp advance only to be lost later on. The advance was followed by quietness, due to the scarcity of the cash article caused by a slight advance in both December and May deliveries. Corn was up 2½¢/bushel. Oats showed a gain of ½¢ and provisions were steady.

A sharp advance in grain prices at Liverpool opened the wheat pit at 11:30 a.m. on Friday. The December opening was ½¢ to 1½¢ higher at $1.12½/bushel. Early in the morning the market was quiet, but in Argentina and this fact helped to create some demand here for wheat. The market was also influenced by the large amount of grain available, and made a leader of the bull crowd. Under the selling pressure December declined to $1.12½.

There was a heavy outpouring of stock during the first hour by those who had bought in the past in anticipation of the election, and that would follow the election. There was a reaction to near Monday's closing level. In the last hour, again, there was the usual disposition to buy by short December advanced to $1.12½ and up to $1.12½/bushel.

An active demand from shorts caused an advance of over ½¢ in the price of December, and the market was up.

The United States Steel stocks were not exempt from this tendency and their opening prices proved to be the highest of the day.

The Stock exchange was firm, the monetary outlook encouraging business. President Roosevelt's victory was also regarded as a point in the simultaneous quotations and the extreme advance of ½¢ over Monday.

The common among the industrials on the exchange was the American Can.

Southern Pacific. Trading, Rocking Isl. and Erie became aggressive leaders of the market. The market was up throughout the afternoon.

The final hour demand for corn was strong and there were advances of about

from four to five cents.

Corn was a shade firmer than on Monday, but there was no special activity in the market.

December opened ½¢ higher at 49½¢/bushel, sold up to 51¢ and closed at 51¢. Local traders were anxious to buy with an inclination to the theory that the crop is fairly well marketed, together with higher foreign markets, turned the market more active.

December opened at $1.20, a gain of ½¢, then up to $1.21, after which there was a period of taking and a break of ¼¢ or 5¢, and then a rise to $1.22/bushel.

Strength in the close, May wheat gained

½¢, lost it all, and then made a slight rise to 51¢.

There was another advance in the grain market in the last half hour, the trading member being very heavy and shorts

about a bushel over the final figures

Monday last. This display of strength was quite a demand for cash wheat and the market was made more active on test.

Strength of other grain has had a buoyant effect on the market, and there is a desire to get out. December is especially firm, coming from a close of 48¢, up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Monday, May corn advanced practically same as December and was throughout the final hour the demand for corn was

strong and there were advances of about

from four to five cents.

Corn was a shade firmer than on Monday, but there was no special activity in the market.

December opened ½¢ higher at 49½¢/bushel, then up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Strength in the close, May oats gained

½¢, lost it all, and then made a slight

rise to 50¢.

There was another advance in the grain

market in the last half hour, the trading

member being very heavy and shorts

about a bushel over the final figures

Monday last. This display of strength

was quite a demand for cash wheat

and the market was made more

active on test.

Strength of other grain has had a buoyant

effect on the market, and there is a desire to get out. December is especially firm, coming from a close of 48¢, up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Monday, May corn advanced practically same as December and was

throughout the final hour the demand for corn was

strong and there were advances of about

from four to five cents.

Corn was a shade firmer than on Monday, but there was no special activity in the market.

December opened ½¢ higher at 49½¢/bushel,

then up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Strength in the close, May oats gained

½¢, lost it all, and then made a slight

rise to 50¢.

There was another advance in the grain

market in the last half hour, the trading

member being very heavy and shorts

about a bushel over the final figures

Monday last. This display of strength

was quite a demand for cash wheat

and the market was made more

active on test.

Strength of other grain has had a buoyant

effect on the market, and there is a desire to get out. December is especially firm, coming from a close of 48¢, up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Monday, May corn advanced practically same as December and was

throughout the final hour the demand for corn was

strong and there were advances of about

from four to five cents.

Corn was a shade firmer than on Monday, but there was no special activity in the market.

December opened ½¢ higher at 49½¢/bushel,

then up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Strength in the close, May oats gained

½¢, lost it all, and then made a slight

rise to 50¢.

There was another advance in the grain

market in the last half hour, the trading

member being very heavy and shorts

about a bushel over the final figures

Monday last. This display of strength

was quite a demand for cash wheat

and the market was made more

active on test.

Strength of other grain has had a buoyant

effect on the market, and there is a desire to get out. December is especially firm, coming from a close of 48¢, up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Monday, May corn advanced practically same as December and was

throughout the final hour the demand for corn was

strong and there were advances of about

from four to five cents.

Corn was a shade firmer than on Monday, but there was no special activity in the market.

December opened ½¢ higher at 49½¢/bushel,

then up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Strength in the close, May oats gained

½¢, lost it all, and then made a slight

rise to 50¢.

There was another advance in the grain

market in the last half hour, the trading

member being very heavy and shorts

about a bushel over the final figures

Monday last. This display of strength

was quite a demand for cash wheat

and the market was made more

active on test.

Strength of other grain has had a buoyant

effect on the market, and there is a desire to get out. December is especially firm, coming from a close of 48¢, up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Monday, May corn advanced practically same as December and was

throughout the final hour the demand for corn was

strong and there were advances of about

from four to five cents.

Corn was a shade firmer than on Monday, but there was no special activity in the market.

December opened ½¢ higher at 49½¢/bushel,

then up to 50¢, and closed at 50¢.

Strength in the close, May oats gained

½¢, lost it all, and then made a slight

rise to 50¢.

There was another advance in the grain

market in the last half hour, the trading

member being very heavy and shorts

about a bushel over the final figures

Monday last. This display of strength

was quite a demand for cash wheat

and the market was made more