After Being Out All Night Returns a Verdict of Manslaughter.

EIGHT YEARS THE MAXIMUM PENALTY

Will, Who Was with Him at Time of Killing and Also indicted, May Not Be Tried in View of

This Verdict.

That Rabert Turner, the negro who shot and family wounded George Chilson, president of the Bollermakers' union of Omaha, was guilty of manaiaughter and not murder, was the vardict of the jury before which he was tried in the district court. The verdict was reached yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, the jury having been out since 9 o'clock Saturday night. The maximum pecaity for mansiaughter in this state is eight years' imprisonment in the peni-

Turner's defense was that he did not intend to shoot Chilson, but attempted to sirike him with the revolver, and that the weapon was accidentally discharged; further, that if he did fire the shot intentionally be would have been justified on the ground of self-defense. Chilson was shot on a motor car on the night of July 14 last while returning from the Eagles' carnival in the western part of the city. The testimony of eye witnesses showed that Chilson was in a quarrelsome mood and started the trouble which ended in his being shot by Turner, who, with a negro companion, Andy Hill, was occupying a seat in front of Chilson and his friends. Chilson, it was shown, left his seat and went to that occupied by Turner and Hill and started to assault them. Hill, fearing trouble, took Turner's revolver from the tatter's hip pocket, but returned It to him when Turner demanded it. There was some discrepancy in the testimony of the state's witnesses as to whether Turner fired the shot while on the car or while standing on the ground beside the car. The wound indicated that the shot had been fired at close range and the contention of the state was that Turner, after being forced off the car by Chilson, jumped back on the car and fired the fatal shot. The shooting occurred about midnight near the Illinois Central crossing on Broadway, and Chilison died a few hours later at the Woman's Christian Association hospital after being operated on by Drs. Macrae, sr., and V. L. Treynor. Andy Hill, Turner's companion the night of the shooting, was indicted with Turner, but it is doubtful if he will be tried this term, and it is possible, in view of the verdict in Turner's case, that the county attorney may decide not to try him at all,

Drainage Matter Comes Up. ounty Supervisors will be convened this on. The first business to come before the board will be the official canvass the vote cast at the general election last Tuesday, in accordance with the reuirements of the statute.

A matter likely to receive the attention the board at this session will be the question of serving notices for the Harrison-Pottawattamie county drainage fitches. The question to be determined is whether these notices have to be served whether it is special work and the notices shall be served by any person or persons selected by the county auditor. The number of notices to be served will run uplate the thousands and it is contended on hehalf of the sheriff that if he was required to serve them it would not only the sheriff as part of his duties or

Rev. Henry De Long, familiarly known as "Uncle Henry," the friend of the poor of this city, especially the children, had the gratification and pleasure yesterday aftertoon of witnessing the formal opening and dedication of his new mission and industrial school on Avenue F. Mr. De Long recognizes the fact that he is fast approaching the allotted span of life and yesterday he announced that he expected this would probably be his last work in this direction

The exercises were attended by the children and teachers of the Broadway mission and industrial school, founded and maintained by Mr. De Long, in the eastern part of the city. . The need of such an institution in the western part of the city impressed itself upon Mr. De Long and the result is the building dedicated yester-

The building was well filled when Rev. James O'May, pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, opened the exercises with prayer. In the audience were the members of the Grand Army poet and Woman's Relief corps, while Major Wal McFadden's fife and drum corps furnished the music. Rev. Mr. O'May preached the dedicatory sermon, in which he feelingly referred to the work accomplished by Mr. De Long, and short talks were made by Judge Reed, Judge Carson and Jacob Sims

Iowa Preparing Plans for the New Institution for Their Care.

WILL TEST THE NEW DITCH LAW

Supreme Court . Will Construe the Statute Before Any Great Expense is Incurred Under Its Provisions.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Nov. 13 .- (Special.)-There will be two classes of inmates of the Iowa state institution for dipsomaniacs when it hance of departure at all times as the inates of the state hospitals, the other onfined behind prison bars at night. This uch has been determined upon by the state authorities and it was necessary to do so before the plans for the buildings culd be made. The board of centrel has located the new buildings and decided upon by the state at Knoxville, which is to be ade use of will remain substantially as it is now. Another large building to be rected will have prison bars over the winows and the inmates will be confined as if they were prisoners instead of patients. Practically all the new arrivals will go first into the new building, but if they prove tractable they will be placed with the trusty class in the more spacious and omfortable building. The state will build one new dormitory and an administration building and to the rear of this a power use and machine shop. There will be no large general enclosure around the grounds and the only restraint will be when the dipsys are asleep, when they will e locked up. The plans now being perfected call for buildings to cost probably $100,000, to be constructed early next spring The state has purchased additional ground and will have a beautiful park in conneccity of Knoxvilla tion with the institution which adjoins the Soon to Test Ditch Law. It is learned that efforts are being made to get the new Iowa drainage law before the supreme court at the January term for determination as to some of its features. It is regarded as desirable that the courts shall establish its constitutionality before preparing for the ditches. Consequently a case is to come from some northwestern lowa county under certifrari proceeding, which will take the case into court for quick determination. Although the bill was one of the most carefully drawn and most thoroughly considered of any of the bills passed in recent years, good lawyers had their doubt about the ability of the legislature to make a law that would accomplish the purpose and still be constitutional. Ditches and drains have been planned already under this law that will cost millions of dollars if finished and completely change the character of the drainage in many counties, Opposed to Charter Cities. Judge Reed of the United States district court for the northern district recently decided that the fire excape law of Iowa does not apply to special charter cities. This has brought up again the question of the great difficulty making legislation uniform throughout the state so long as there are four or five special charter cities in the state, and it has started a movement to have the next legislature abolish all these special charters. There are no benefits under them

Will Dig Into Mounds. Prof. D. H. J. Ward of the State university has completed arrangements for making exploration of the big mound on the shore of Lake Okoboji, where it is reported remarkable discoveries were made by other persons. The mound is fifty-five feet long and the skeletons of a number of Indians are known to rest there. Other mounds are in the same vicinity. The owners of the land have given their consent to the explorations. Prof. Ward has been conducting explorations in mounds on behalf of the State university the past year and will make an exhaustive report.

Large Iowa Creameries. According to reports to the state dairy commissioner, the creameries of Iowa are becoming larger and their number less The number has decreased forty or fifty, but the butter output is about the same as last year. Forty per cent of all the butter in lowa is now made in centralized stations or hand separator creameries. There are now 383 creameries using the hand separator cream and there are 25,-887 hand separators in use, but the reports show that the use of these separators decrease the butter output per cow and per patron. There are now sixty-five creameries that handle cream exclusively. The average creamery of the state has 130 patrons and 998 cows. Of the 720 creameries the state reports were obtained from opened some time next year, one of 516, and these made 62,222,457 pounds of which will have the same freedom and butter last year, for which they got $9. The average creamery in Iowa turns out more than 120,000 pounds of butter annually, a larger amount than the average creamery in any other state. Experiment Station Crop. During the past summer the State Agricultural college maintained on the county farm of Marshall county an experimen that this system of conducting exper ments in grains and grasses by extend generally in the state.
