LORE IN JUDICIAL DECISIONS Beams of Sunshine Filter Through the Gloomy Caverns of Judicial Thought.

The attribute which is supposed to benefit a judge is gravity. We do not look to flage. From the supreme courts particularly we are taught to expect nothing save dull seriousness propounded with great sedateness of demeanor. Indeed, we are expected to tread softly and speak with hushed voice in the presence of the highest courts of the land. Still there are times when even the supreme judges let a little sunshine filter through the gloomy caverns of their rhetoric-when they become as human as other men, or even humaner. In proof of which we give below some ex-tracts prepared by the American Law School, reported from decisions handed down by the different supreme courts of the states:

"There is nothing certain about a lawsuit except the expense of it."

ENGINEER'S CLOSE CALL

Lands Under the Debris of a Locomotive in the Soft Side of a Ditch.

Facing what he felt to be certain death. out conscious that the lives of a score of passengers, among whom was his wife, and of his son, an employe on the train, lepended upon his nerve, Engineer Floyd Pollison stuck to his post when, diverted by the act of some miscreant, his locomotive flew off the track on the Susquehanna & Western road at Middleton, N. Y.

The big engine plowed through the roadbed and plunged into a ditch beside the track as Pollison brought the machinery to a stop, and he went down under the debris of ties, earth and twisted iron.

First of the score of badly shaken up passengers in the three coaches to recover from the terror of the accident was the engineer's wife. She had been hurled from her seat by the shock, but when the car which had bumped and toppled over the ties for several yards, came to a stop, her one thought was for her husband, and she ran to where the penderous locomotive, emitting great clouds of steam and shricking like a monster in pain, lay on its side in the ditch.

Her son was soon at her side as she stood there moaning, helplessly wringing her hands. He was followed by the fireman, Harry Pierce of North Paterson, N. J .- where the Pollisons also live-who, having jumped when the engine left the rails. had escaped injury. Other trainmen ran up and, one after the other, the frightened passengers. Mrs. Poliison, almost frantic with grief, was wailing piteously and calling to her husband, while her son and some of the sympathetic women tried to comfort her. Two trainmen started off for help. Others approached the locomotive.

To the amazement of the sorrowful little crowd there came from under the debris a man's voice, saying things that in other circumstances might have caused the women to thrust their fingers in their ears. The general purport of the unexpected flow of eloquence was an exhortation to all and sundry to "get a move on," which all and sundry promptly and joyfully proceeded to do. It took careful work to get Pollison out, and then it was discovered that beyond a few painful bruises and sprains he was unhurt. A cavity in the ditch and the interposition of some wreckage between the engine and the bank had been his salva tion. In fact, more badly injured than he was Conductor William B. Kitheart of Lodi, N. J., who was in the forward car and was hurt about the hips.

The wreck was caused by an old-fash ioned fish plate being driven into a frog, with the end resting on the rail. The train was speeding at the rate of forty miles an hour on the outskirts of Middletown when it struck this obstruction. The fish plate railroad men say, has not been in use on the road for ten years, and must have been taken from a heap of scrap iron. It is believed to have been the work of tramps. many of whom have been prosecuted for stealing rides on trains.

Six hundred feet of track were torn up and in addition to the wrecking of the engine the cars were more or less damaged. The fact that none of the passengers was injured was commented upon as remarkable.-New York Times.

The University of Michigan society of drug provers, the so-called "Poison Drink ers' club," organized last spring, is eating ginseng, a drug which for 3,000 years has been the greatest medical remedy known in the Chinese empire, while scoffed at by the rest of the world as mere superstition. The experiment has been under way only two weeks, but already Michigan's students have made one startling discovery, which practically raises ginseng from the state of the world's greatest medical superstition to one of the most powerful of "In the happy hunting ground there are no corporations, as they have no souls, and consequently no hereafter."

CRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Wheat Weak-Light Demand and Specu lative Activity on the Bear Side.

DECEMBER CORN STEADY, OTHERS STEADY

Better Demand for Cash Corn, Grade Improving Under Weather Conditions-Oats Firm-Gossip of Pits and of Wall Street.

There was less doing in the speculative markets, but there was a rather better demand for cash grain. The receipts of wheat in Omaha were light, practically no good grades being on the market, and as a result prices were but little better than normal, but had there been a supply the demand would have quickly absorbed it. In the speculative center there was a disposition to even trades. The absence of Armour buying was also noticed, and this was sufficient to encourage the bears to more energy. Cables were slightly higher, indicating some uncertainty over the Argentine situation, although the smaller World's shipments may have had some influence. The outside markets showed little change. Kansas City was practically the same as yesterday, Minneapolis was slightly lower and Duluth unchanged. St. Louis was indifferent to market values, the first visit of the president since election and the transfer of Missouri to the republican states being observed as a holiday. Receipts at Minneapolis were large; at other points light. Much of the Chicago trading is on the scalping order, with some disposition to take profits whenever they show up. Fine weather is a factor in keeping up the receipts. The future depends on the solution of the problem of the percentage of the crop yet remaining in producers hands and the Argentine conditions.

Despite the apparent strength of the position of wheat the specific or the problem of the profits the apparent strength of the position of wheat the specific of the problem of the profits the apparent strength of the position of wheat the specific or the problem of the profits the apparent strength of the position of wheat the specific of the profits of the profits the profits the profits the profits of the prof in producers' hands and the Argentine conditions.

Despite the apparent strength of the position of wheat, the speculators, if alone to their own will, through the absence of outside orders, broke wheat about a cent a bushel. December opened about at yesterday's close, or at $1.09\follow{1.09}, then gradually declined to $1.08\follow{1.00}. May, $1.10\follow{1.00}.

to $1.094.61.10; July lost to from $1.101.62.

It begins to look as if the speculative longs in December corn would have to take quite a liberal amount of actual corn. The fine weather is causing an improvement in the grade and quite a little of No. 3 corn is being received. Before the end of the month of December the corn will be thoroughly dry. There was also some demand for corn by exporters from southern ports, this being especially true of the Omaha market. The speculative element recognized the probability of large contract receipts in December and the price broke a point under this influence, going to 484c and closing at 484c. May held fairly steady.

There wasn't enough chance in the oats market to cause comment. Conditions are thoroughly understood and it is about settled that current prices are about where they should be hence the fluctuations are inconsequentful.

It was evident that packers were anxious for well finished cattle and such kinds could safely be quoted a little higher than they were a week ago. The common and warmed up cattle, however, were neglected to some extent and are certainly no more than steady with the close of last week. Good to choice cattle may be quoted from $5.50 to $5.60; fair to good, $4.25.65.60, and the common to fair cattle from $5.50 to $4.25. Quite a liberal proportion of the receipts this week has consisted of western range beef steers. The early part of the week. packers were rather bearish and succeeded in breaking the market to some extent, but the latter half of the week prices strengthened and closing prices are just about the same as those in effect a week ago. Good so choice cattle have been rather scarce, but they may be quoted from $4.00 to $4.85; fair to good, $3.25 to $3.30, and the commoner kinds from $3.15 down.
