The public discussion held last Monday night for the purpose of making a com-parison of systems of shorthand was inrgy by attended and was unusually interesting. The following were clearly demonstrated by Prof. Mosher: I. That Mosher Shorthand is free from position writing, shade and various other incumbrances found in other systems. 2. That this system is better adapted to amanuchis, work and court re-porting than any other. 3. That it can be written more quickly and read more easily than any other. 4. That it has past the experimental stage and is now used in many of the largest business houses in Omaha by stenographers who receive the highest sal-RS-234 35

Bridges, engineer, Bee building, Omaha. Q-533 of the largest business houses in Omaha by stenographers who receive the highest sal-aries. At the close of the discussion a remark able exhibition of speed writing was given by Miss McCarthy, a student. She dem strated that Mosher Shorthand for speed and legibility is not excelled by any other. A severe test of it was made, and the fact that difficult matter was written at a high rate of speed and read back with such fuency and accuracy stamps it as a superior system. The following letter was re-ceived the next day after the discussion from Mr. J. L. Cook, at present employed by the Rees Printing company: M. G. Rohrbough, Omaha Commercial College, Omaha, Neb.: Dear Sir-Being in-terested in shorthand, I attended a public discussion held last Monday night at the Omaha Commercial College. I was particularly interested in the exhibition of writ-ing given by Miss McCarthy. She wrote at a high rate of speed and read her notes accurately and rapidly. So marvelous was her work that I had some supicion that she was writing familiar matter. I therefore, on the following day, determined to find out something more of her ability. I called at the college office and read her notes fuentily and accurately. She never had seen what I read to her, as it was my own composition and was of a hature that no ordinary stenographer would be able to write at an average speed. She took this matter at 15 words per minute and tead her notes with best wishes for your continued success, I remain. Mosher Shorthand will stand the severest practical test.
