Burglars Make Unsuccessful Effort to Crack Bank of Treynor.

TWO SUSPECTED OF CRIME UNDER ARREST

Team of Mules and Buggy Stolen by Robbers, but Abandoned When They Get Stuck in a Snow Drift.

An attempt to rob the Bank of Treynor was made Friday night by cracksmen who used nitroglycerin on the safe, but falled in their attempt. Two men giving their names as John Bernstein and James Arthur are behind the bars of the county jail, having been arrested yesterday on suspicion of being implicated in the attempted robbery. They are strangers and claim to be harvest hands returning from Dakota.

The attempted robbery is thought to have been committeed between the hours of midnight Friday and 4 o'clock yesterday morning, as persons living in the immediate vicinity of the bank building heard two explosions, one at 2 o'clock and the second at 3 o'clock. The authorities believe the attempt was made by amateur cracksmen and not professionals, although the work of blowing the safe was evidently gone about in a systematic manner. While the sound of the two explosions was heard by persons living near the bank, the fact that an attempt to blow the safe had been made was not discovered until Thomas Flood, the cashler, opened up the bank at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and found the doors of the vault blown off and the furniture and fixtures strewn around the place in confusion and more or less injured.

Entrance to the bank building was se cured by forcing the front door with a The handle of the door of the vault containing the safe was broken off with a sledge hammer, this and other tools used by the cracksmen being obtained from a nearby blacksmith shop. The inner door of the vault was blown open and off its hinges evidently by a charge of nitro-glycerin. Once Inside the vault the burglars began work on the safe, and after succeeding in smashing the combination and handle off the outer door blew it with nitroglycerin. The force of the explosion warped and jammed the inner door so hard, however, that the cracksmen were unable to dislodge it, and abandoned the attempt to secure the cash, evidently fearing that if they remained in the building any longer they would be detected.

Safe Resists Explosion.

After leaving the bank building the burg lars secured a team of mules belonging to James Macrae, rural mail carrier, and hitched them to an old buggy found at the blacksmith shop. They started west from the town, but on the outskirts drove into a snow drift and in their efforts to get out broke a singletree. This accident caused showed that two men, supposedly the burglars, proceeded west on the main road on with the harness still on them. They were | taken under advisement. seen making for the barn by a truck farmer, who was on his way to Council Bluffs between 4 and 5 o'clock.

Two Suspects Arrested. Word of the attempted robbery was at once sent broadcast over the rural tele-Deputies Woolman and McCaffery at started for Treynor. During the part of the afternoon word was rephone line and the sheriff's office was notified. Deputies Woolman and McCaffery at early part of the afternoon word was received that two strange men had been turned out of the barn on the farm of Arthur Saar, and Marshal Fritz of Treynor, accompanied by Arthur Saar, Robert Mc Kenzie and William Lorringer, started in pursuit. The posse overtook the two men near the Pony creek crossing of the Wabash and detained them until the arrival of the officers, who brought them to the city The younger and smaller of the two suspects gave his name as John Bernstein and claimed to be from Dayton, O. He said he was a carriage painter by trade and that he had met his companion at Henderson, Ia., and with him was making his way to Council Bluffs when arrested He gave his age as 24 and said he had been in Dakota for some time. In his possession was found a copy of the issue of De cember 22, 1904, of the Beresford (S. D.) Republican, which evidently had been secured from the exchange desk of some newspaper, as it was addressed to The Courier, but the name of the town had been torn off. Bernstein claimed he did not know his companion's name. The other man gave his name as James Arthur, but beyond this refused to talk Both were clothes of a laboring man and each carried a loaded revolver. Bernstein's revolver was a 45 caliber, while that carried by Arthur was a 38 caliber. Arthur also carried a sack containing about fifty cartridges, evidently belonging to both

In Bernstein's possession was found small memorandum book with Wimbledon N. D., on it and the name Bernstein writ ten in pencil inside. On one finger of the left hand of Bernstein was a fresh cut and his pocket handkerchief was bloodstained. Blood marks were found on the door of the bank vault, indicating that one of the burglars had been cut or wounded in attempting to blow the safe. Bernstein showed considerable concern about the handkerchief when Sheriff Canning took it. from him and refused to return it on his

When the officers were bringing the two suspects to the city last evening they met Otto Saar, a well known farmer living near Treynor. Mr. Saar at once recognized Bernstein as a man who had called at his house Friday evening and inquired the way to Treynor. At that time Bernstein appeared to be alone and making his

An overcoat was found in the abandoned buggy supposed to have been stolen and thandoned by the cracksmen just outside Treynor. The coat bore the mark of the Nebraska Clothing company of Omaha, which leads the authorities to suspect that there were probably three men implicated in the attempted robbery.
