When it came to the lighter weights, however, the market was slow with the feeling weak and that was particularly the case with common light cattle. HOGS-There was quite a liberal run of hogs in sight this morning, but the market was in good shape. At this point opening prices were right around 5c higher than yesterday morning or 24:45c higher than yesterday morning or 24,675c higher than yesterday's general market. Trading was fairly active on the early arrivals and most of them were disposed of in good season. The bulk of the sales went from $4.69 to $4.65, the most popular price being $4.62\forall Some of the conmoner hogs and light stuff had to go under $4.69.

SHEEF-There was a fairly liberal run of sheep here, considering the condition of the weather yesterday, but the demand was fully equal to the supply and an active and very satisfactory market was experienced. Buyers were all out early and practically everything changed hands as rapidly as offered. The quality of the sheep was hot particularly choice, so that the sales, on paper, do not look very high. Considering the quality, however, the prices paid were past about steady with yesterday. Some fair wethers sold for $5.25, fair yearlings for $5.75 and fair ewes for $4.55.

The demand for lambs was even more brisk than for sheep and prices paid today were safely 15@25c higher than those in force at the close of last week. As high as $7.10 was paid for western lambs of only fair quality and some natives brought $7.35. The demand for lambs has been in excess of the supply all the week.

$1.776 prices reached at the beginning of the week was within a small fraction of the extreme top, established some two months advance eventually, it would be in harmony with everything that usually goes to establish a higher market for a commodity. Scarcely an item of news has come up for the trade to consider lately that did not denote strength and soundness in our domestic situation. Receipts in the Northwest are down to a figure where milling requirements necessitote drawing large quantities of wheat from store. Bradstreet's report places interior elevators stocks at about 2,750,000 bushels against 7,000,000 bushels a year ago and 11,000,000 bushels in 1903, and says the decrease in country houses last week was around 500,000 bushels and that without reinforcements to farmers deliveries there is likely to be nothing held back except the small reserves in first hands at the end of the next six or eight weeks. A Duluth authority estimates that the country cannot supply the mills with more than 68,000,000 bushels to August 1st and that the requirements for this time during 1904 of $1,000,000 bushels, must be curtailed to the extent of difference, or 13,-000,000 bushels. Crop experts now go still further with reference to our probable further supplies and concludes that we have only 46,600,000 bushels available for export for six months and for reserves July 1st, 1905.

Already the inquiry for wheat is being felt keenly. The lowest grades have advanced 2 to 10 cents in the last ten days and No. 4 spring wheat is 25c a bushel higher than a month ago. There can be no mistaking the worth of wheat because the buying is for interests that want it to use, or, understanding its future value, are seeking to control the small stocks of contract. The only question in doubt is how high will the price go to offset these persistent demands. A good many well informed people in the trade believe in $1.25 for May. Some look for $1.50. Of course the possibility of reaching either will depend upon how argent are the orders for flour during the spring months. If visible supply should decrease rapidly, as now seems likely, a situation will be created that would give us these the prices. Another decided source of anxiety to shorts is the condition of winter wheat, which went into winter ten points under the ten-year average. The plant is small and lacking in vigor, and should even moderately unfavorable weather develop, the spring might see a sensational situation, and in this event higher prices may be expected to prevail right through into the year following.

These are the conditions in wheat today, stated briefly. The prospects abroad are quite similar, so far as the vital question of supplies and demands are concerned. Broomhall predicts that world's shipments for the next four mouths will not average over 6,800,000 bushels weekly, while minimum requirements of the United Kingdom demand 8,100,000 bushels. The loss so far to world's stocks from the high point is 10,000,000 bushels during December, and 6,250,000 bushels so far in January; from this it is easy to see that the position of wheat throughout the world is strong, and offerings of both cash and the future have come under the control of strong hands, and it would certainly seem like a good time and an easy matter to advance prices.

The market for months, or since prices reached this level, have had only normal fluctuations, this is for the reason that traders have followed theories and facts. We now have a very strong statement of facts before us. Our wheat is disappearing on every hand and nothing is left on the farms to move to the front, all talk that top prices have been reached for such an unusual situation, and so far from relief is unreasonable, and more than small temporary declines is absurd. It seems to us, therefore, that wheat should be bought whenever it acts weak, and that it is plain consumption has overtaken our production. This condition has been developing for several years, and has rapidly during the last year, on account of the crop being of inferior quality, and so much has already disappeared that an early You should keep your attention on things of this character and absorb offerings from those who would discount them.
