Divorced a Second Time. Viola Stanner has been divorced from John T. Stanner for the second time. The first divorce was secured in Council Bluffs in January, 1895. Judge Troup granted her a second release yesterday, finding it true that she had been cruelly treated and finally deserted in January, 1903. After the first divorce the Stanners lived apart until June of 1897, when they were married a second time at Lincoln. The first marriage occurred in August, 1890, at Council Bluffs. The wife is given full control and possession of the two children, a boy and a girl, aged respectively 13 and 6 years.

The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off Thousands of women have found that the use of Mother's Friend during pregnancy roles confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. This scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does Mother's Friend carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other dis-comforts of this period.

COMMERCIAL CLUB OPENING

"Housewarming" Draws Large Attendance and Proves Uplifting.

SIX MONTHS' PROGRESS IN ORGANIZATION

bers and Guests.

The rejuvenation of the Commercial club of Omaha that has been in progress for the last several months was fittingly observed last evening by an enthusiastic house warming. About 300 members, representing every activity of the city's commercial and professional life, gathered and congratulated each other on the advent of the new life of the club. They strolled through the newly furnished rooms and expressions of praise were heard on every hand for the house committee who had in hand the work of transforming the rooms from their recent condition to one of imposing elegance and taste.

The speakers sounded the keynote of Omaha's present prosperity and deprecated in no uncertain tones the advertising to the world the city's shortcomings, whatever they may be, or heralding abroad statements that the city lacks a moral tone, thus repelling prospective citizens and industries.

The new club rooms are certainly such that any city might be proud of and indicative of the present power of the Commercial club. The north room, used for reception and smoking purposes, has been finished with Flemish furnishings, relieved by a green color scheme, a harmonious combination and restful to the eye. The next room south, the women's dining room, has been embellished with weathered oak furniture, art glass and two fine mantles. The other departments have been fitted up in a splendid manner.

Club's Caterer is Ready. Particular attention has been devoted to the culinary department, to be opened at 11:45 this morning by Steward E. B. Pryor, for eighteen years with the Omaha club and recently appointed to cater to the material wants of the Commercial club members. The most modern appurtenances To Messrs. John Steel, H. S. Congressman Kennedy quoted, "There is ide in the affairs of men, which, when taken at the flood, leads on to fortune,' and drew the lesson that the club and Omaha are now on this tide of fortune. He wished the club godspeed on its way and asked its co-operation as he is about looked brighter." said Mr. Kennedy.

General Manager Mohler of the Union Pacific said the city needs more manufacturing interests, which may be secured by presenting a solid front and extending the hand of fellowship to new industries. tween the railroads, the Commercial club, city and state. "Exploit our good qualities," the speaker urged.

Growth of City and State. Mr. Wattles reviewed the commercial growth of the city and state. He said the progress of Omaha last year was phenomenal and said that a director of the Commercial club had been told the other day by a prominent Chicago grain man that Omaha is destined to become the greatest corn market in the world. "We should be and can be a great center for the manufacture of the products of corn, oats and wheat even as we now are a great packing center," declared Mr. Wattles. President's Cabinet.

OMAHA, Jan. 18.—To the Editor of The Bee: Could you inform me of the cabinet officers which made up the cabinet at Washington, D. C., before the November election of 1994. Yours truly, GLADYS THOMPSON, 29:4 North Sixteenth street.

Ans.: Immediately prior to election the president's cabinet consisted of: John Hay, secretary of state; Lesile M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury. William H. Taft, secretary of war; Paul Morton, secretary of navy; Ethan Allen Hitchcock, secretary of agriculture; Victor H. Metcalf, secretary of agriculture; Victor H. Metcalf, secretary of commerce and labor: Henry C. Payne, postmaster general; William H. Moody, attorney general. Since election Mr. Payne died and Robert M. Wynne has been given the position of postmaster general. The other members of the cabinet remain unchanged.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

After the supper Mrs. W. P. Harford, president of the association, welcomed the new nembers and Mrs. Emma F. Byers, general secretary, spoke briefly of the other associations of the country and how the Omaha organization compared with them.

The Omaha association is seventh in size in the United States and is the largest independent association in America. Los Angeles comes first with 3,300 members; Harlem, N. Y., second with 2,600; Pittsburg, 2,400; Minneapolis, 2,400; Scranton, Pa-, 2,100; Detroit, Mich., 1,800, and Omaha, 1,645. The aim of the local organization is 2,000 members by April 1, but by that time 860 of the present memberships will have expired, so it will be necessary to have all these renewed if the aim is attained. In the meantime a membership contest between the various committees will be held. Mrs. Byers said that about $8,000 has been secured in cash or pledges toward the new building and assured the members that that work is progressing surely if slowly. A reading recital given by Mrs. Elta Matheson followed the supper, it being the third number of the association's entertainment course arranged for the winter.

Mrs. Fairbanks has worked hard for this building, and, in fact, it is largely due to her efforts and her enthusiasm that the building has progressed so rapidly. She retires from the work of the Daughters of the American Revolution, she says, because after the inauguration of her husband as vice president her social duties at Washington will be very exacting, and she feels that such duties will have first claim upon
