Puter and Mrs. Watson then went to senator's office at the latter's suggestion, where two affidavits were prepared without cost to them. Senator Mitchell then real to the senate the two affidavits, both of them detailing the facts in the case as they have already been briefly stated.

The senator said that later Puter again told him he feared delay in action on the entries and that together they once more visited the land office, where, in the presence of the senator, Commissioner Hermann turned the matter over to Assistant Commissioner Richards, to whom the senator

For ten years I wore a little piece of cloth about an inch long in my neck to keep the place open. Mr. Heyburn then resumed his speech on the statehood bill, continuing his argument in opposition to the union of Arizona and New Mexico into one state. He read a number of telegrams from citizens and associations of the two territories protesting against the consolidation.

In the course of a colloquy with Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Heyburn asserted that Arizona has a greater population than Illinois attained in the first forty years of that state, and said that Arizona's present population, ompared with that of New York, is larger than was the population of Illinois compared with that of New York when Illinois was admitted into the union. The senate at 3:08 p. m. went into executhat the house committee on judiciary had voted "six democrats and two republicans" to present articles of impeachment against Judge Swayne. He reviews the circumstances of Judge Swayne's appointment in the early part of the Harrison administration and following an election in Florida in which it was reported and generally believed that gross frauds had been perpetrated against the republican party. Judge Swayne had told him that it was the desire of the administration that those guilty of these frauds should be proceeded against. This litigation had engendered an intense feeling against Judge Swayne. It was then regarded as hazardous for Judge Swayne to travel about the district, and from that time on Judge Swayne was persona nongrata to the democrats of Florida "Following this unpopularity." the letter continues. "Judge Swayne's district was changed, largely for the purpose of punishing him. The change of the district resulted, as it were, in his being ousted out of his district." He says that Judge Swayne immediately set about obtaining a new residence within his district, which took four or five years. Spirited Reply from Cockran.

Mr. Cockran (N. Y.) lamented that the proceedings might not have proceeded along nonpartisan lines. "Strange as it may seem," he continued, "the first partisan argument comes from outside the house. It comes from the bench itself." This, he said, was reason for extending the operation of the house's scrutiny. There was, he said, a vast différence between an impeachment and an indictment, a fact which the house seemingly had forgotten. No law of evidence binds an impeachment proceeding, as is the case with an indictment. Mr. Cockran took issue with the majority report of the committee on the expense account charge. That was a mat-
