TROLLEY LINE IS PUSHING Promoters of Electric Road from Omaha to Lincoln Are Busy. BRIDGING THE PLATTE DURING WINTER Grading Will Commence Early in Spring and Dirt Will Fly Fast When Work is Once Under Headway. "The weather has put a check on us, but we do not propose to remain idle," said E. C. Hurd, general manager of the Omaha, Lincoin & Beatrice Interurban road. Mr. Hurd arrived from Lincoln Tuesday evening and will be in the city for a few days rare opportunities to shoppers. to confer with Omaha stockholders regarding some of the details of the work on the new line. "A few contracts for the minor work have practically been let," said Mr. Hurd, "but none of them are yet in such shape that it is worth while to say anything about them. "The weather has cut off all chance of doing anything with the grading, but we will be in shape to begin work at this end as soon as the weather gets settled in the We shall lose no time getting down to business and the grading will be pushed. We expect to do some work of the bridge at Ashland this winter. In fact, we are going right at this work. There is a great deal we can do. We shall begin to drive the piles for the foundation and prepare the piers. There will be several of these. We expect to have wooden plors, to be filled with stone and sunk. These will last about twelve years. When they have outlived their usefulness we can replace them with concrete foundations. 'We have considerable of a bridge to put up there. The entire viaduct will be 1,526 hats would sell up to $35.00. feet long. It will have spans of sixty-five feet. The bridge will be of steel and will We offer the entire lot be fully as strong as the Burlington viaduct over the Platte. We have closed the work at..... on the line at the Lincoln end of the route and expect to have cars running over about ten miles of the road by spring, as we have anticipated." Fruit Growers Dissatisfied. A fight is being made by fruit growers in the southern part of Nebraska for better rates to points in the central part of the state. The growers assert that they have practically been shut out of the northern Nobraska markets as a result of the high tariffs put on apples and peaches. They say that they have been forced to let thoucial at $2.98. The second assands of bushels of apples and peaches rot on the ground because they could not get sortment worth up to $5, is them to market at a profit. Now they have quoted for Saturday, at banded together and they have already begun efforts to get better rates for next senson. This is the first time they have all stood together and they expect that by acting in concert they will not again be shut out of the markets. "Yes, I understand they are trying to get better rates for next year," said a Burlington representative. "It is still a ities that are now displayed in our front show long ways ahead to fix rates for next fall's fruit crops, but I presume the matter will be taken up by the Transmissouri advise you to come early Saturday freight bureau at one of its meetings. Burlington Extensions. Preparations are being made by th Burlington for Important extensions into the Big Horn basin. Two routes are under consideration to reach the Thermopolis district and surveyors are in the field looking over the ground. The routes to be taken depends, of course, on the report that the engineers make. It is expected that the new extensions will be commenced in the spring if it is found advisable to make the improvements. Valuable agricultural and mineral fields will be opened up by the proposed line. The improvements have been under consideration for a long time but action has been forced upon the company by the announcement of the Northwestern to build into that country from Casper division.

'We have the matter of the extensions into the Big Horn basin under consideration," said G. W. Holdrege, general manager. We have surveyors in the field who are going over the ground. It it is decided to build we shall strike out from the Cody branch, either at Frannie or Garland. Two routes are under consideration. Assistant to Lucas.

When W. L. Lucas, district superintendent of the Puliman company reached the office yesterday he found an assistant superintendent waiting his arrival. This is W. B. Prouty of Chicago. Mr. Prouty's appearance was the first knowledge Mr. Lucas had as to who would succeed Mr. Dewey, the former assistant superintendent, who has been called to Chicago.

"I don't know what position Mr. Dewey will have," said Mr. Lucas. "It is a promotion of some kind. All I know is that he has a position in the general superintendent's office and that it is a much better thing than he had here. Mr. Prouty began his work in the local office yesterday. He has been with the company for several years at Chicago and worked there in the Union depot as ticket agent for the
