Would like a connuential talk with the Employer and the Employer of BEITER-CLASS labor this morning. First, you both admit that your interests are mutual. That is, without the Employer there could be no work for the Employer, and without the Employer there could be no work for the Employer could accomplish but little. Hence without both the Employer and the Employer there would be no call for an Employenent Agency. But inassnuch as we have both the Employer and the Employer and the Employer and the Employer who should occupy neutral grounds between the two and whose business it should be to serve both, fairly and impartially. To endeavor to accomplish this end we opened this new Agency and we ask the co-operation of Noth the Employer and the Employe. We intend, as far as possible, to demonstrate the fact that the Employment business can be conducted as fairly and squarely as any other business.

We shall endeavor to protect the interests of the Employers of all classes of labor, from the highest clerical position in the Counting room down to the housemald or the gardener in the home, by the requiring of references in every instance and then by securing written testimonials from former Employers and other sources, and shall send no help to any Employer except such as have a proper record.

To those seeking employment we will say GIBSON EMPLOYMENT AGENCY former Employers and other sources, and shall send no help to any Employer except such as have a proper record.

To those seeking employment we will say that our books are open for your applications and, if found worthy, our time and best endeavors will be at your service at all times. But we shall be frank with you, and if we have no place for you we will tell you so and not endeavor to fill up our books with names of applicants at so much per head—giving the interence that we have numberless positions in waiting for you. But we wish you to bear in mind that this is the dull season of the year, and whilst there is not much demand for help just now, with the opening of Spring we look for a large demand for all kinds of employment, and if you have your application on file in the right place your chances will be ahead of those who apply later on.

Now, Mr. Employer and Mr. or Miss Employe, if you are in sympathy with this kind of an Agency, give us your hand and we will help you.
