few table boarders, and is enjoying what Prof. Patton calls "economic independence," he finds that he is unable any longer to work for a living, is she to be blamed for marrying a lazy man?

"Supposing that she prove to be so "economically independent" in time that she is able not only to meet all the legitimate expenses of the family, but to supply him with money enough to attend the eague base ball games and to play the races, and that she is forced after a time to send his breakfast up to him in the orning, or to hire another man to help her with the heavy work, is she to be lamed for having married a lazy man? "The fact of the matter is, the girl who marries has no means of knowing whether the man she marries is going to be lazy after she marries him or not. And such is life, as our eminent sociological thinkers almost invariably fail to see it."

Newer Things of Paper.

Paper table covers may now be had, as well as paper papkins and dollies. Table overings have long been made by gluing ogether crepe paper, which can be bought n long rolls of any color or shade desired, and, like paper printed with border or allover designs, the borders being festooned or otherwise treated for greater decorative offect.

But now there are offered paper table overs of a single piece, designed for outor pienies or luncheons. They are tigs forty-two by seventy inches and are printed n designs like those to be found on the paper napkins. They are made with designs appropriate to various occasions, as, with violets for a violet luncheon; pink roses for a rose luncheon, and holly for the holiday season. A luncheon set of paper ontaining a table cover, twelve napkins and twelve dollies, all printed with the same design, car be bought for 25 cents.

There are now made 500 or more cotiliion favors that are in part or wholly of paper hese favors comprising an almost endless ariety of things, and ranging in price from centa to 23 apiece. There are also made paper flowers of every known variety for the adornment of the home, and for the decoration of entire interiors. including lowering of vines, and that sort of thing.
