

THE CAREER OF CHOLLY CASHCALLER

"Ah, this is the line I have yearned to follow. It is my opportunity to brighten love's young dream, and—"

"Some valentines? Yes, ladies. I'll wait on you in a moment, sir. Now, do you wish the comic variety, or—"

"Very pretty, these. It's so appropriate to have the cupids and birdlets gamboling about on them. This large one? It is intended for a symbolic gift."

"It is meant as a frame for a photograph, you see. Quite a clever conceit. Means 'May I be your valentine?'"

"What's that, madam? You'll take this comic? This is no COMIC!"

"You need not apologize, madam. Although I am a workingman, I have a soul above some forms of wit. I don't care if you DO report me. I'm not going to be anybody's comic valentine."

THE VALENTINES THEY GOT

A Warning.

I've shtood yer tricks an' foolish pranks
This good long while—for them no thanks.
Aich wake ye've thried yer besht to see
How yez could make a fool av me.
So now, take war-rnin'. This musht shtop
Or there'll be throuble sure.

THE COP.

To a "Nice" Little Girl.

Whin' ye've a shmoilein' face I know
Ye're up to thricks that fool me so.
Whin' ye've a look that's schwate an' koin'd
I'm watchin' ye, now, do ye moind?
Wan day ye'll get some warrum touches
From wan ye persecute.

THE DUCHESS.

To a Faithful Officer.

The roundsman thinks you're on your beat—
You're in our kitchen, where you eat
The meat and bread and cakes and pies
Some day you'll get a great surprise—
The sergeant will learn you are tricky
Unless you're good to

LITTLE MICKEY.

To the Ruler of the Kitchen

Dear Duchess, I admire you so—
That's why I never like to stop
Arranging pleasant plans, you know,
To cheer you and your faithful cop.
O, Duchess, when you get your palace,
Do not forget kind little

ALICE.
