The president's appearance on the street was the signal for a great ovation. Broad street station is only two blocks from the Academy of Music, but along this short line of march there were thousands of persons, who cheered wildly as the president's carriage passed. When the president reached the building where the exercises were to be held Broad street was packed with humanity and it was several minutes before the president could enter It is as follows: the academy. As he walked up the stairway a band played "Hail to the Chief." Inside the building were crowded hundreds of students, who gave the Pennsylwania yell with vigor as the president appeared. President Roosevelt smiled and seemed to enjoy the deafening yells.

Degrees for President and Emperor. President Roosevelt and Emperor William today received the degree of doctor of laws from the University of Pennsylvania. The degree was conferred upon the German Emperor in absentia, Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German ambassador, ac-Oupting the honor for his sovereign. The conferring of the degrees was a feature of the commemoration of Washington's birthday by the faculty and students of the university. President Roosevelt was the orator of the day. He delivered a pariotic address on "Some Maxims of Washington.

The excertises were held in the Academy of Music, which seats about 3,000 persons and at least 20,000 requests for tickets had been made. By special permission of the mayor the trustees of the university were given the privilege of issuing admission tickets, the supply of which was soon exhausted. The class and college cries of the students mingled with the cheers of the spectators in the balconies and galleries, and the women frantically waved their handkerchiefs.

The excersises were opened with prayer followed by the hymn,"Now Thank We All Our God," sung by the audience. Dr. the chapel of the Chaudoff monastery and S. Wier Mitchell, the "public orator," presented each of the candidates in turn for their degrees.

It is as follows: The Hull commission met this morning in the ministry of foreign affairs and again this afternoon in order to proceed to a final examination of the report recapitulating its conclusions. The report is rather long, com-prising about ten large pages. The prin-cipal author is Admiral von Spaun (Aus-trian), but all the members of the commis-sion collaborated in drawing it up. The commission gives no opinion on the question of the presence or absence of Japanese tor-pedo boats in the North Sea, declaring merely that the Russian admiral quite le-gitimately believed that his squadron was endangered and that he had the right under the circumstances to act as he did. The ment of what it has done on its own account might be ill-advisable, owing to the extreme sensitiveness of both belligerents when any open view is shown of a purpose to bring outside pressure to bear upon while peace is not regarded as immediately at hand, at least the foundations have been laid for negotiations that bring the principals together in the end, and it will probably be found that the United States has had some share in this work. even accused God Almighty of being arrayed against the people of Nebraska." Jones and others who stood for the Mc Mullen bill charged that every time a suggestion was made of amending the revenue bill some republicans who helped frame and pass the measure took exceptions as if the bill was sacred. Perry of Furnas was one of the staunchest advocates of the McMullen bill. Jones' speech led Dougins, who was chairman of the house side of the joint revenue committee two years ago, to explain that the fusionist leader then, Representative George L. Loomis of Dodge ounty, had helped frame the bill and commonded it as a good and able measure, and how former Chief Justice Sullivan had pronounced it a splendid measure, calculated to do justice to all interests. What Wrought Changet

"The gentleman from Polk comes here now and condemns this act, and the leading fusion organ of the state condemned it, saying it was framed by the railroads and passed by their tools," said Douglas, 'Whose word are you going to take, that lower house of the legislature today passed of George L. message from Governor Folk, and a similar | legislature went out one night and banqueted at the home of William Jennings Bryan they had never seen the evil of the revenue bill. There they learned that it was to furnish the basis for the next campaign and from that on they opposed it.

As proof of Douglas' assertion that it was politics now that actuated Jones and the other fusionists every one of this party today voted for the McMullen bill.

Douglas asserted that had George L. Loomis had the courage of his convictions on this revenue bill two years ago and not gone over to join his party leaders to make campaign material by fighting the bill on the floor of the house he would be the biggest democrat and one of the biggest figures of any political party today in Nebraska.

Charges Against County Officers

Dodge of Douglas declared in the house this morning that a certain public officeholder (a county commissioner) was the most potent factor in the defeat of the Kyd bridge bill, "the best bill that has been before this house." and that he did it that he might perpetuate his "unlawful graft."

Lee Opposes Bill.

Lee opposed the bill because he said it conferred upon one man too much power and sought to reverse the natural order

"The bill transfers the power from the county board and places it all in the county engineer and does not even allow the board to so much as approve the plans after they are drawn. This is contrary to the theory of government which my colleagues from Douglas have been advocating in other measures. I furthermore oppose this bill because it does not provide that these plans shall be kept on file in the county clerk's office, where they may be inspected by the public. We want all these matters to be open and above board." Douglas made a forcible argument against the bill, following out the objections raised by Lee as well as others.
