MILWAUKEE, Feb. 23.-Interest in the American bowling congress tournament now centers in the two remaining national hampionships in the doubles and singles. Peace has at last been restored between the American bowling congress and the City association of New York City. New York has been granted practically what was asked. The question of the sixteenpound ball was adopted by a unanimous vote. The ball may consist of any composition. Square gutters carried by a vote of 13 to 9. As to the question of home rule, the com

A motion to reconsider the action taker

GRAIN RATES IN BAD SHAPE Conference is Unable to Reach Conclusion and Dealers Are Uncertain.

So far as local grain men profess to see there is nothing new in the rate war situation. The failure of the conference the other day in Chicago is likely to put off any settlement until the next meeting. which will meet during the first few days of March. This will make the agreement, if any is reached, impossible of effect, so think the Omaha grain shippers, before March 10. The Missouri Pacific has contracts for grain which will not be cleared up before the last of March and it is thought probable nothing can be done before that time to reinstate the old or some modified tariffs/ There is somewhat of a division in opinon as to the desirability, from an Omaha standpoint, of settling the rate troubles. Some of the brokers claim it is a bad thing for the local market to have the rates unsettled even if they are, as at present, much lower than Omaha can expect to maintain. It is said the unsettled ndition has a bad erect, because the farmers and the brokers cannot get used to any one scale of prices. TALK IS BENEFICIAL Discussion Some Tangible

Results May Come. WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.-There was an inusual influx of representatives of foreign countries even for a diplomatic day at the State department, and many of them called upon Secretary Hay primarily to secure any information he might have respecting to go ahead with just a little more than the foundation for the sudden revival of talk of peace negotiations. The Russian ambassador was a prominent caller, but the Japanese minister was absent, being out of town on a duck shooting trip. The secretary had nothing new to communicate, a such information as he has received failed to indicate that the time had yet arrived for any change in the attitude of the government of the United States toward the belligerents, nor was there evidence that the European governments have been doing more than to take careful soundings to test the real sentiments of the belligerents with the result that they also are satisfied that the opportune moment has not arrived for the exhibition of pressure in the direction of peace, even in the most friendly and amicable spirit.

In the opinion of conservative member of the diplomatic body here the revival of the peace movement, though not sufficiently strong at this moment to bring about tangi ble results, actually has been beneficial, and may be regarded as marking one of the initial steps which must be taken before a treaty of peace is finally reached. Every movement brings the principals slightly nearer, and it is pointed out as a most significant and promising fact that the talk of peace is now tolerated where it would have been scouted a month ago by the two governments between whom the great struggle is now in progress. It also is suggested that perhaps some of the in dignation exhibited at the mere talk of peace is really to be ascribed to a deepseated apprehension on the part of both figures which the latest change in the principals that it may mean the interven-rates might entitle them to.
