The construction of the great Simpler unnel has proved once more that geology s largely a matter of theories, which may or may not fit actual conditions, even close to the surface of the earth. The engineers have discovered that the geologists were entirely at fault as to the temerature which would be encountered, nissing the mark 25 degrees at the point

HARD LOT OF A KING'S HOST

Red Tape Surrounds Everything When Royalty is Being Entertained.

It must at times despite the honor be a somewhat tedious function for a British subject to entertain the king, for the house and all therein is for the time of the king's visit royal property. At luncheon the dinner, the hosts and their guests remain standing until royalty appears; then the host, if the queen or a princess be present, escorts her to the table, the hostess following with the king; if the king is alone he leads with the hostess. Neither host nor hostess can give the signal for leaving the table, but must wait the royal pleasure. If the queen or a princess be present, when she rises she is followed by the hostess, who, for the moment, is lady-in-waiting. As it is not the proper thing for a servant to hand anything to a sovereign, when tea or coffee is served it is first handed to the hostess, who herself offers it to the queen. Oddly enough, finger bowls at dessert are, when royalty dines, placed for them only. When the sovereign done a wrap no servant is permitted to help, but a lady or gentleman must assist. Another rule is that if there is card playing for money, coin fresh from the mint must be on hand for the occasion. The guests for these royal house parties are selected by the royal personages often weeks and sometimes months in advance, and an invitation to them is really royal command. These house parties are always
