

IRELAND'S STORY TOLD AGAIN

St. Patrick's Day Ends with Appropriate Patriotic Celebration.

SWEET SONG AND ELOQUENT PHRASE

Ancient Order of Hibernians and Their Friends Hear Musicians and Speakers at Washington Hall.

It may be that the recent adjustment of the land laws or some other softening influence is at work, but the St. Patrick's day celebration of the Ancient Order of Hibernians did not overtax the capacity of Washington hall.

M. P. O'Connor was chairman of the demonstration and made a brief opening address. He said he feared many of those present had the St. Patrick's day habit—that is, they thought of Ireland once a year.

A musical program followed, in which "Kathleen Mavourneen" occurred frequently, to be greeted with warm applause each time.

John McCree, Miss Stacia Keyser and Clint Miller were also on the program for songs. Everybody was applauded.

T. J. Doyle of Lincoln was the speaker of the evening and spoke at length very eloquently on the history of the Irish nation.

From Paganism to Present. Mr. Doyle then began a course of Irish history, bringing the nation from its early state of civilized paganism to the present, recounting its virtues of learning and devotion, when left to itself, and the persecution of which it had been the object at the hands of the Danes, the Normans and the English.

The ceremonies of the evening ended with the singing of "God Save Ireland," led by Messrs. J. C. Swift and F. J. Keene. T. F. Dunn is president of Division No. 1 of the order; J. P. Savage is vice president; Peter Donnelly, recording secretary; George Sullivan, financial secretary; W. R. O'Shaughnessy, treasurer; John Bowles, sergeant-at-arms; Dr. M. J. Scott, physician.

LIFE'S TROUBLES TOO MANY

Peter Froide Tries to End Them by Cutting His Throat with Pocket Knife.

Peter Froide, a man about 48 years old, attempted to commit suicide yesterday afternoon in a rooming house at 7194 North Sixteenth street, at 1:30 o'clock, by cutting his throat with a pocketknife.

It is thought that Froide became despondent because he was sick and out of work and his money had run out, and thought that it would be better for him to end his troubles in this world and take his chances with the hereafter.

Froide ran away from the county hospital early in March, where he had been taken January 7 from the county jail by Dr. Lee. For the past ten days he had been rooming on Sixteenth street, where it has been his custom to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning and return about 8:30 in the morning, always quite intoxicated.

Upon looking through the keyhole they saw Froide sitting on the edge of his cot. They then called to him and told him to open the door. He got up, unlocked the door and walked past all those round the door to a sink and took a drink.

The wound was a large one and very jagged as the knife was dull. It was also evident that Froide had slashed himself four or five times, making the wound irregular. The larynx was divided and the epiglottis was completely severed from the windpipe.

AT UNITY'S ANNUAL DINNER

Women's Alliance Again Treats Men of the Church to Pleasant Spread.

Three flower-decked tables in Unity church last night, with their snowy linen and shining ware were a very pleasant sight for the men of the church when they were brought into the dining place at the invitation of the Women's Alliance.

The men of Unity church have given annual dinners to the men of the congregation for eight years now and each time it has been said that the dinner of that time is better than any of the preceding dinners.

Mr. Doyle sat down at the long tables at 6 o'clock and the pleasant party did not break up until 9 o'clock.

Rev. Newton Mann, minister of the church, was toastmaster and introduced each of the entertainers with a fitting prelude or an anecdote.

CELEBRATION AT EAST OMAHA

Opening of the Bridge to Be Made Most Notable Occasion.

OMAHA AND ILLINOIS CENTRAL WILL REJOICE

Formal Dedication of the Great Structure to Its Purpose Will Give President Fish and Others a Chance.

It begins to look as though Omaha will have a really swell railroad time Saturday. It begins to be generally understood that the Illinois Central bridge in East Omaha will not be the only thing formally opened.

The bridge is busy doing the final tidying up of the great structure for its formal inspection by the president of the road. A man has been busy with a broom and dust cloth for two days in cleaning up the new double draw, and President John R. Webster of the Omaha Bridge and Terminal company got worried for fear the man would not get the work done properly and sent out a capable scrub woman to help him through.

On the staff of President Fish at this great occasion will be J. A. L. Waddell, the engineer who built the bridge; J. T. Harahan, second vice president of the road; I. W. Rawn, general manager, and J. M. Dickinson, general counsel of the company.

The bridge is by no means the only wonder that will be inspected during the day. A large and pompous dinner will be inspected at the Commercial club in the evening, beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

Mr. Rosewater went into the water question at length, and referred to the little jokers inserted in the water works purchase bill to look after the interests of the city.

What we need here at home," said Mr. Rosewater, "is a strong microscope to look into our municipal shortcomings rather than a long-range telescope to investigate the affairs of distant communities."

A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Rosewater for his address, and after he had concluded he was pelted with numerous queries relative to the prospect for sidewalk, street grading, other needed improvements in that section, and the most effective methods of obtaining them.
