OUR LETTER BOX.

Other Side of the Story. AUDUBON, Ia., April 3.-To the Editor of The Bee: In a dispatch to The Bee dated April 1 it is stated that the remains of Frank P. Richardson, a wealthy land owner, who disappeared here some years ago under very mysterious circumstances. had been found, that the entire community was aroused and that one Mrs. A. E. Baker a spiritualist of Des Moines, claimed that the discovery was due to her efforts. Obviodsly, the article was inspired by her for the advertisement and consequent pecuniary benefit of her particular graft. The story is without foundation and is absolutely false. She pointed out a place with a smack of the dramatic and spoke in the voice, of dire tragedy, "Behold the obscure spot beneath which lies all that is mortal of Frank P. Richardson." Nothing in the way of remains of man were found. A man here who has long been suspected of having a hand in the disappearance of Richardson committed the bloody deed of murdering his infant daughters and then

CURED BY CUTICURA FOR FIVE DOLLARS

Mrs. George H. Tucker, Jr., 335 Greenfield Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., is a grateful mother. "When six months old," she says, " my little girl weighed a pound and a half less than at birth. When one month old a scab formed on her face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up, and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure, and now my child is as large, strong, and healthy as any child of her age. The doctor's and drug bills were over one hundred dollars, and my baby grew worse all the time. Then we spent less than five dollars for Cuticura and cured her."

The trade extension committee reported that but four men had accepted the invitation to attend the Black Hills excursion April 11. The committee was given more time to get up a crowd. The resignation of A. H. Comstock was presented and acdent Stuyvesant Fish of the Illinois Centhe entertainment here of himself and Commissioner McVann was instructed to cards for overdue freight. This system, adopted last winter, has proved very successful. Three new members were admitted Maurer and Tolf Hansen.

Date for Trade Excursion.

The first regular trade excursion of the club will be undertaken May 25, 26 and 27. The trip will be made over the lines of the Burlington to the south and west. The Commercial club members will have to pay their dues in future, not that they have not paid them in the past; but for fear that sometime someone might become a member of the club who would not pay his dues the finance committee recommended, and the recommendation was accepted, that hereafter every member whose dues have become delinquent unto the 20th day of the second month of the quarter following the one last paid for, that member shall be discharged without honor or he ordered a stock of the Schlitz placed a receipt. New Incorporation.

The Omaha Real Estate, Construction and Lumber company has filed articles of incorporation with the county clerk. The incorporators are John H. Routson, George Houlston and Guy Evenson. The capital stock is $100,000 and the business will be the buying and selling of real estate; buying, building, leasing and trading of houses and other buildings; also the owning and running of a lumber yard. The new company evidently proposes to go into the building business on an extensive scale, and its field of operation is to be Omaha and South Omaha.

At the meeting of the Grand Army Memorial day and monument committees at the city hall Monday night a boom was started with considerable enthusiasm for Andrew Traynor as department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic at the state encampment to be held at Grand Island in May. While Mr. Traynor is not actively seeking the honor, it is a well known fact among his friends that he has for some years felt that he could fill the office and that he would appreciate the honor. With Mr. Traynor in the field there are now three candidates for the position. They are: Rev. P. C. Johnson of Tecumseh, John Lett of York county and Andrew Traynor of Omaha. No Teachers' Examination. No Teachers' Examination.

No special examinations for teachers' certificates will be held by the Omaha school district this spring, as has been the custom for a number of years past. This is owing to the few applicants that signified their intention of standing the tests. It is the first time since the examinations were established that the number of applicants has sunk so low. One and two years ago the number was very large. The regular examinations will be held as usual in June, regardless of the number taking them. James Mallow of 225 Francis street was fined 35 and costs in Justice Baldwin's court yesterday afternoon for refusing to have his 14-year-oid son Tom sent to school. It is in the third act that the real note of her strength is sounded, when she is brought to know just what there is between her and Dufresne; when she learns what a distance separates their conditions in a plaything to him. All at once she comes to know the difference between a good woman and a woman such as she is, and the horror, the misery, the tragedy of it all overwhelms her. This was all capitally portrayed by Miss Roberts last night. She perfectly expressed the crushed and subdued Zaza, who was pushed back by the hand of a child from her vengeful and desperate determination to wreck a home. This is really the one act of the piece, and it is quite in the nature of a triumph that it should be so thoroughly realized and well presented as it was. The fourth act is one provided for the display of "emotional" ability, and is absolutely devoid of merit beyond that certain theatric quality which attaches to sobs and groans and shrieks In the fifth act David Belasco mercifully rescues Zaza from the inevitable and logical end to which the French authors consigned her, and instead of sending her back to the streets, he places her at the from which she can smile down forgiveness on her Bernard, and refuse to renew the We can well afford to leave he there. POINTS ON INSURANCE LAW

What a Business Man Should Know About His Insurance Policy.

EXPLAINS RIGHTS OF INSURER AND INSURED

Various Sorts of Policies and Their Provisions Explained by Ralph W. Breckenridge at Y. M. C. A. Rooms,

R. W. Breckenridge, chalrman of the National Bar association's committee on insurance, delivered a business talk last vening in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association on the subject of What a Business Man Ought to Know About His Insurance Policy." Breckenridge first called attention to the various kinds of insurance policies under the three heads of life, fire and accident insurance, and pointed out the different provisions usual to these policies. Many persons, he said, take out policies without becoming acquainted with the name of the companies, their general character and standing, depending on their acquaintance with the agent. He said it is the duty of the insured to make these inquiries, so that he may be assured of the certainty of getting his money in case of loss and that the company is onducting its business according to law. The insured should carefully read his policies, especially the written portions, and know exactly what the company has promised to do and under what conditions. By doing this, he said, many disputes would be avoided.

Where Trouble Starts.

Mr. Breckenridge outlined the various nitial steps incident to the issuing of a policy; the answers to the printed questions; the medical examination, in case of life insurance, and said that upon the truth of the statements made the validity of the insurance depends. Applications for accident insurance are usually very brief. He pointed out that the slightest deviation from the exact truth in application for any kind of insurance vitlates the Local Unions Enjoy an Evening of policy. The expiration of policies is usu ally fixed at a certain hour.

He said the only grounds for controversy over the payment of insurance are the non payment of the premiums, breach of some warranty or fraud. Accident companies life, and that she can never be more than do not pay more than the ascertained value of the insured's time. Fire companies will not pay in excess of the value of the insured's property; although in some states, by virtue of what Mr. Breckenridge calls an unrighteous law, companies must pay the amount of the policy without regard to the value of the property. Generally the agreement is to pay what it would cos at the time of the loss to repair or replace the property destroyed or injured. Policies usually give the company the option to take all or any part of the articles at the appraised value. Policies are usually voided, he said, if there is other insurance not consented to by the company issuing a particular policy. This, he said, is to pre vent over-insurance

Rights of the Comapny.

When repairs or alterations are made the company must be notified if it will take more than fifteen days to make them, or if the property is mortgaged, or explosives or inflammable oils are kept on the premises, or if the insured desires to assign the policy. Policies provide that the company will not be responsible for loss caused by a public enemy, or in the case of neglect of reasonable precautions on the part of the insured to save the property. He pointed out that only by special agreement will the company be liable for awnings, builton, curiosities, ewels and many other articles. In Case of Loss.

In case of loss Mr. Breckenridge called special attention to the various steps that should be taken in the matter of furnishing proofs of loss. He said that in case of fire if the insured removes his property to a safe place the policy will remain in force for five days in the new location; but if removed for other casue than the hazard of loss the company's consent must first be secured. In case of loss, the insured property, damaged and undamaged, should be inventoried with the amount and cost of each article and sent to the company within sixty days. In case of disagreement various methods are provided for settling the dispute without going to law. Sometimes slips or riders are attached to policies permitting certain designated variations from the terms of the policy, such as allowing a certain quantity of gasoline on the premises or making the loss payable to the mortgagee.

Mr. Breckenridge concluded his informing talk by saying that in the absence of fraud exactly on every provision of policies, but such provisions are essential to protect the companies from imposition.

Under date of March 23, 1905, the War department has issued instruction to all recruiting officers to make enlistments now from the minimum age of 15 years to 25 years. Hitherto the minimum has been II years. But the government wants to get younger men into the army, after the plan adopted by the navy enlistments. All applicants for enlistment under the age of 21 years will be required to secure the consent of their parents or guardians. At the Omaha recruiting station twenty-eight men were enlisted during the month of March, which is regarded as an excellent average for the month. The enlistments were for the infaniry and coast artillery branches of the service.

Sociability and Informal Oratory.

The failure of the speaker of the evening

o arrive at the social of the carpenters in Labor Temple last night didn't put any crimp in the proceedings at all. No. 427 of Omaha and No. 279 of South Omaha turned to and made their own oratory in very satisfactory manner, and some good wholesome union doctrines were sandwiched in among layers of music and refreshment. About 300, more or less, of the Inited Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, with their wives, children, sweethearts and friends, were got together, and applauded the efforts of all on the program. President William Chadwick of the Omaha local lead off with a few appropriate remarks of welcome, after which the orchestra played the first of its pieces for the evening. Robert McKennon made a short talk and Mrs. Warner and little Miss Hanson each played violin solos. Member Whitlock of the South Omaha contingent ventured the assertion that the carpenters had the strongest organization in the west, A. McDonald reproached the women for not supporting the unions better and complimented them by saying they could make the men do anything they wanted, and so should make them join the union.
