BURNS CASE NEARS THE END | Miss M. C. Tucker is acting as clerk, her compensation being fixed at $4 per day.

Defense Unexpectedly Concludes the Defendant's Cross-Examination.

LITTLE MORE EVIDENCE TO INTRODUCE

Jury is Then to Be Excused Until Monday, When Argument in the Celebrated Case is to Re Commenced.

The end of the long drawn-out trial of the Doyle-Burns mining suit is at last in sight and it is now asserted that all the evidence on both sides will be in by Thursday, when the jury will be given a vacation until next Monday, at which time the arguments will be begun. Counsel for the defense yesterday agreed to the proposition to allow the jury a recess at the close of taking evidence until Monday.

Mr. Hughes, somewhat to the surprise of the defense, suddenly and without warning, closed his cross-examination of Burns at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Up to the moment that Mr. Hughes announced he was through with the defendant it looked as if the cross-examination would continue for the remainder of the afternoon. Congressman Smith took up the re-direct examination of the defendant, which, it is expected, will be concluded by noon today.

Cross-Examination of Burns. During the cross-examination of the defendant yesterday, by reference to the account book in evidence it was shown that Burns kept account of the work of himself and O'Driscoll during their partnership. crediting both of them with fifty-eight days at $3 a day. Burns had testified that he paid certain expenses, boarding and for hauling logs to the cabin, but on being shown certain entries in the book he stated that they were paid out of money furnished by O'Haire. He admitted that at the meeting at which the Tidal Wave and the Devil's Own were sold to the Portland company he had referred to them as his properties, although John Harnan and his brother, Tom Burns, had interests therein. The witness was shown two answers filed in two adverse suits against the Portland claim brought against himself Harnan and Doyle, and stated they bore the signature of William Harrison, an attorney employed by him to defend the litigation. In those answers it is alleged that Burns and Dovle

On the re-direct examination Congress man Smith brought out the fact that Burns had joined Doyle in the transfer of the latter's stock in December, 1894, all of the stock owned by Doyle being the product of the Portland claim and being sub ject therefor to be taken by O'Haire and O'Driscoll if they succeeded in winning their suit against Doyle, not for the purpose of defrauding any bona fide creditor, but merely to protect Doyle from any unjust claim such as he (Burns) considered those of O'Haire and O'Driscoll were. The witness also showed that he had agreed to return all work done by Doyle and that he had done all such return work that Doyle asked of him. Grand Jury Sworn In. Henwood's city election, held yesterday, was very quiet, one-half the usual vote being polled. This does not mean lack of interest, however, as the republicans had nominated such excellent material for every office that the opposition had no chance and very slight disposition to oppose the election of any of their candidates. Glenwood's business men are pulling together this year in a way that means much for the city. Improvements proposed will be pushed to completion, and our citizens will give the new city government all necessary help toward making the town a good one to live in.
