MORMON CONFERENCE ENDS

Critics of President Smith Are Referred to in Address.

MUCH BITTERNESS IS DISCLOSED

Men Who Oppose Him Are Called Traitors and Indirectly Threatened With Personal Violence.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 9.-The Mormon church closed today after the members present had unanimously voted it the best conference in the history of the church. Those who recently have attacked the church and its leaders were referred to in an address by J. Golden Kimball, one of the first seven presidents of the seventies, who said:

'If it were not for Joseph F. Smith, a nan of God, who restrains his children, and they are obedient to their father, want to tell you there would be some here horsewhipped. But his children obey him and he is a man of God and needs to one to make an apology for him."

President Kimball denounced President Smith's critics as traitors to the church and added: "If you want to go to hell black your boots and go like a gentleman, not like a traitor."

Apostle Hyrum Mack Smith, son of Presdent Joseph F. Smith, also attacked the critics of the church, and especially newspaper writers, and said President Roosevelt was obliged to have a guard when he traveled because of the libelous slams and cartoons about him in the newspapers. Apostle Smith said further:

"In President Roosevelt we have a friend and he has friends among the Latter Day Saints, and we will be true to him and rue to Old Glory, because we are a true cople. President Roosevelt will give us square deal. We will do all we can to sustain President Roosevelt, for we are true to him and we will demonstrate it in the future as we have in the past."

OGLESBY'S CLASSIC ON CORN Impromptu Speech by a Former Governor of Illinois Which Rings with Eloquence.

A little classic on "corn" was the impromptu speech by the late Richard Oglesby, governor of Illinois and United States senator from Illinois, dew at the Fellowship club of Chicago, Soptember 9, 1894, on the occasion of the Harvest Home festival. The circumstances were these: Former Governor Oglesby sat at speakers' table at the south end of the room and had been in earnest conversation with Sir Conan Doyle up to the moment of the call of his name. The toastmaster was Franklin H. Head, and the toast that he gave to each speaker was "What I Know About Farming." The governor arose slowly and was seemingly waiting for an inspiration. He looked deliberately upon the harvest decorations of the room and finally his eyes seemed to rest upon the magnificent stalks of corn that adorned the walls. He then slowly and impressively said:

"The corn, the corn, the corn, that in its first beginning and its growth has furnished aptest illustration of the tragic announcement of the chiefest hope of man. If he die he shall surely live again. Planted in the friendly but sombre bosom of the mother earth it dies. Yea, it dies the second death, surrendering up each trace of form and earthly shape until the outward tide is stopped by the re-acting vital germ which, breaking all the bonds and cerements of its sad decline, comes bounding, laughing into life and light the fittest of all he symbols that make certain promise of the fate of man. And so it died and then it lived again. And so my people died. By some unknown, uncertain and unfriendly fate, I found myself making my first journey into life from conditions as lowly as those surrounding that awakening, dying, living infant germ. It was in those days when I, a simple boy, had wandered from Indiana to Springfield, that I there met the father of this good man (Joseph Jefferson), whose kind and gentle words to me were as water to a thirsty soul, as the shadow of a rock to a weary man. I loved his father then, I love the son now. Two full generations have been taught by his gentlerand smiles, and tears have quickly in swered to the command of his artistic mind. Long may he live to make us laugh and cry, and cry and laugh by turns, as he may choose to move us. "But now again my mind turns to the glorious corn. See it! Look on its ripening waving field. See how it wears a crown, prouder than monarch ever wore, sometimes jauntily and sometimes after the storm the dignified survivors of the tempest seem to view a field of slaughter and to pity a fallen foe. And see the pendant caskets of the cornfield filled with the wine of life and see the silken fringes that set a form for fashion and for art. And now the evening comes and something of a time to rest and listen. The scudding clouds conceal the half and then reveal the whole of the moonlit beauty of the night, and then the gentle winds make heavenly harmonies on a thousand thousand harps that hang upon the borders and the edges and the middle of the field of ripening corn until my very heart seems to beat responsive to the rising and the falling of the long melodious refrain. The metancholy clouds sometimes make shadows on the field and hide its aureate wealth, and now they move and slowly into sight there comes the golden glow of promise for an industrious land. Giorious corn, that more than all the sisters of the field wears tropic garments.

Nor on the shore of Nilus or of ind does nature dress her forms more splendidly. My God, to live again that time when for me half the world was good and the other half unknown! And now again, the corn. that in its kernel holds the strength that shall (fn the body of the man refreshed) subdue the forest and compel response from every stubborn field, or, shining in the eye of beauty, make blossoms of her cheeks and jewels of her lips and thus make for man the greatest inspiration to well doing, the hope of conpanionship of that sacred, warm and well-embodied soul, a woman. "Aye, the corn, the royal corn, within whose yellow heart there is of health and strength for all the nations. The corn triumphant, that with the aid of man hath made victorious procession across the tufted plain and laid foundation for the social excellence that is and is to be. This glorious plant transmuted by the alchemy of God, sustains the warrior in battle, the poet in song, and strengthens everywhere the thousand arms that work the purposes of life. Oh that I had the voice of song or skill to translate into tones the harmonies, the symphonies and oratorios that roll across my soul when standing sometimes by day has been traveling. Henry Watterson of of this verdant sea I note a world of promand sometimes by night upon the borders ise, and then before one-half the year is gone I view its full fruition and see its heaped gold await the need of man. Majesof the older New York. In a desultory way tic, fruitful, wondrous plant. Thou greatest among the manifestations of the wisdom and love of God, that may be seen in all valleys."-Boston Transcript.

HELD AS A HOTEL DEAD BEAT

Man Who Made Quite a Figure in Omaha Now Under Arrest in lows.

J. A. McDonald, a Scotchman, who arrived in Omaha last Thursday and registered at the Paxton hotel, and represented seventy-fifth annual conference of the London, England, as his residence, crowded a variety of experience into his and other people's memories during his sojourn in Omaha until Tuesday morning, when he started for a new field and certain interested persons began looking for him. Mc-Donald is about to years old, of rather distinguished appearance, well dressed and has with him numerous pieces of baggage, seemingly confirming his story that he is leisurely traveling through the country. He devoted himself while here to the cultivation of a number of Scotchmen and undertook to make himself a pleasant and agreeable visitor from Scotland, about which country he seemed to know much that interested them. He patronized the bar liberally and endeavored to leave the impression that he was a good fellow and very glad to meet so many agreeable people. He paid his bill of $18 at the hotel with a check, and, securing his baggage, left the hotel. Previous to this he had a check cashed for $50 at the hotel. Late In the afternoon he was arrested in Carroll, Ia., on a charge of defrauding the hotel, and is now in jail. Word was received last night that he would not return without a requisition.

McDonald's departure was accompanied by some peculiar moves, which afterward excited suspicion. When he left the hotel he said he must go out to Binney street and visit some of his Scotch friends, and, taking his numerous grips in a hack, he was driven to that street, where he had them unloaded and discharged the hackman. His new acquaintance, who asked him why he brought his baggage with him. entertained him for only a few minutes, when he secured a new rig and without saying where he was going was driven away, although he left the impression that he was not leaving the city. In the new rig McDonald was driven to the Illinois Central depot in Council Bluffs. where he paid and discharged the driver. When this driver was out of sight he called another rig and was taken, bag and bag-gage, to the Chicago & Northwestern depot, from which point, it has afterward been learned, he bought a ticket to some nearby town? The police think he intended to pay his way further when he determined just where he wanted to go.

Something must have led him to change his mind, for when the train slowed down as it passed through Carroll, Ia., he jumped from the train and injured hitself pretty severely. This attracted general attention to the man and when a description of him was sent out by the police his identity was readily established. He was then arrested and locked up and word sent to dividends have been disbursed and the Japanese loan calls paid, but there is some doubt that there will be a plethora at the present time owing to the fact that Paris is absorbing all the gold on the open market, presumably for Russia, and not much is likely to arrive at the Bank of England. Should the war be concluded soon the position will be reversed and gold probably will be sent to the continent from London. American securities have shaken off the recent depression under the efforts of the Wall street bulls and quotations were higher during the week. Canadian Pacifics and Steel preferred leading with a rise of 6 points each. Public interest here is still moderate, despite the optimistic reports from America regarding general prosperity and splendid trade conditions.

Manchester Textiles.

MANCHESTER, April 9.—The cotton cloth business was limited last week in consequence of the heavy commitment of producers. Fair lines were placed for India and China at fair rates. Cloths had a fair inquiry from the Levant and Egypt, and the best finishing cloths were firm. Miscellaneous orders were received from South America, with counter orders at higher rates for midsummer delivery as against winter delivery. Although certain manufacturers are heavily engaged well ahead, it is thought that estimates of engagements recently have been somewhat exaggerated and merchants occasionally are surprised when offers are made for comparatively early delivery. Yarns were quiet. The reduction in the turnover has not affected the recent quotations to which spinners firmly adhere. Manchester Textiles.

Foreign Financial.

LONDON, April 3.—The stock market developed duliness during the week, owing to the various new bond issues attracting more attention from the public investor than speculative shares. The disappearance of the hopes of peace between Russia and Japan, which caused Paris to sell here, also added to the depression, while the Morocan question and the home political situation had an effect on the sensitive market which was reflected in the decline in the price of consols during the week. Money for the time being is fairly cheap, now that dividends have been disbursed and the Japanese loan calls paid, but there is some doubt that there will be a plethora at the present time owing to the fact that Paris to meet the requirements of the trade, and the present time owing to the fact that Paris to meet the requirements of the trade, and the present time owing to the fact that Paris to meet the requirements of the trade and the state of the season to date. The cattle market this week has been by all odds the best of the season to date. SHEEL there were only eight of them on sale, so there were only eight of them on sale, there was not much opportunity for testing the market and prices could not be quoted anything but steady. For the week receipts have been a trifle heavier than they were the overesponding week of last year, there is a falling off of about 1,700 head.

The cattle reported here this morning, but there was not much opportunity for testing the market and prices could not be quoted anything but steady. For the week receipts have been a trifle heavier than they were the overesponding week of last year, there is a falling off of about 1,700 head.

The cattle market this week has been by a falling off of about 1,700 head.

The cattle market this week has been by a fall odds the best of the season to date. to meet the requirements of the trade, and ste case there have not been enough on sale to meet the requirements of the trade, and as a result competition has been very keen. The high point of the week here was $6.30, paid on Friday, but the cattle were not strictly choice, so that it is thought that a strictly prime bunch of cattle would have sold well up to the $6.50 mark. Good to choice grades can safely be quoted from $5.90 to $6.40 fair to good, $5.35@5.30, and common to fair, $4.25@5.15.

The range of prices on cows and heifers is now the widest it has been in many months. This is owing to the fact that while good to choice grades have been advancing rapidly for the last two weeks, the gain for this week alone, amounting to about 50c, the common kinds have shown little if any improvement. The common to fair kinds may be quoted from $1.75 to $3.56. The fair to good grades now sell from $3.25 to $4.85, and something strictly prime would bring more than that. Prime helfers are quotable up to $5.35 and they might bring a little more than that. Prime helfers are quotable up to $5.35 and they might bring a little more than that. This makes a range of prices between choice helfers and common canners of at least $5.60.

Bulls are a little higher for the week, in sympathy with the advance on steers and cows. Good to choice grades are quotable from $2.75 to $4.15 and the common to fair grades from $2.50 to $3.50. Veal calves have not shown much change, the bulk of them selling from $4.60 to $5.75, with choice ones up to $6.

selling from $4.00 to $5.75, with choice ones up to $5.

The rapid advance in the price of fat cattle has of course stimulated the demand for stockers and feeders and prices have advanced to some extent. The middle of the week there was a gain of fully 15@25c, but since that time some of the gain has been lost, so that prices are not a great deal higher than they were a week ago. The demand is still confined largely to the better grades, so that common cattle are more or less neglected, and such kinds are only about steady for the week. Good to choice cattle may be quoted at from $4.50 to $5.00; fair to good. $4.004.50, and common to fair $2.7563.90. Representative sales:

8 HEEP—There were about 5.800 sheep and lambs reported here this morning, but they were all billed through, so practically nothing changed hands here today. For the week receipts have been about 7.000 head smaller than they were last week, but about the same as for the corresponding week of last year.

There have not been many fluctuations in prices during the week. Desirable grades of sheep have met with ready sale at good strong prices and particularly has that been the case with ewes, which lo some cases show an advance of as much as a dime. The commoner grades, though, have been more or less neglected and are a trifle lower than they were a week ago.

The lamb market is also closing about steady with the close of last week. There was a trifle weakness a few days ago, but the market has since strengthened, so there is no quotable change on desirable grades. The same as with sheep, however, common stuff has been neglected and prices are a trifle lower.

The demand for feeder lambs has been only fair and as a result prices are a trifle lower.
