Methodist church, Mrs. M. J. Monnette presiding. Mrs. H. H. Hahn, president of the Blair club, welcomed the visiting women and Mrs. Frank Heller of Omaha In her address Mrs. M. J. Monnette, district vice president, ably set forth the purpose, aims and work of women's clubs.

"It is not a fad, but part of the world's great work," she said. "The club is to women the great world education that business contact is to men. It has broken down sectarianism among church women and taught a good fellowship that has broadened and strengthened us all. keeps women young by stimulating an interest in things beyond self."

New clubs were reported at Arlington and Bellevue. Reports of the clubs came next, written reports being sent by most of the clubs unable to send representa-

The new juvenile court law was presented in brief and explained by County Judge Marshall, While he approved the law, he] said that Washington county had during his three years in that office had little if any need of it; that while in a few cases it had been necessary for the court to appoint guardians for children, there had been no cases of juveniles being brought up as offenders. He admitted that the necessity of sentencing such offenders had, perhaps, prevented their pros-

The morning program was interspersed with music by Prof. Johnson of Blair and Mrs. A. L. Sheetz of Omaha.

In the Afternoon Mrs. C. S. Glover opened the afternoon DICK LITTLE HOME FROM WAR session with a talk on "Some of the Causes of Prejudice Against Women's Clubs." She pointed out that the aggressive woman was known long before clubs were ever heard of and that, because she had come into the club, too, she was too often held up as a sample by which all club women were

"The Profession of Home Making" was the subject of an able paper by Mrs. W. H. Wilbur. Taking a profession as an occupation that involves a liberal training, she pointed out many places wherein the education of girls, though supposedly broad, still falled to include adequate preparation for their highest profession, that of being a homemaker, a companionable wife and mother. "Why not know something about what to do for children in case of accident, when a doctor is unavailable? Learn to understand base ball with your boys. It pays enough better in the end than tess and recitations. Don't let yourself become a drudge and don't make sacrifices that will belittle you in the eyes of your husband and children, were some of the bits of advice she gave.

Old Home and the New. Mrs. Frank Heller of Omaha talked of "Old Homes and New." "Necessity gave to the old home many occupations for the children that was most valuable training," she said, "and the women of today should recognize the value of these things and, though the necessity is now removed. continue them in the homes for the bene fit and education of the children. Let your girls come into the kitchen and every place else and do things with you. Do things for the sake of showing your children how, whether it is necessary or not." A paper on "The Evolution of Education During the Nineteenth Century" was read by Superintendent W. M. Davidson of the Omaha schools. The presentation of so scholarly an essay proved Mr. Davidson's recognition and appreciation of the work of the Woman's club. A reading by Miss

to America George Ade, the humorist, "Dick" Little, sians at New Chwang and the Japanese at Mukden, and Captain W. R. Judson, until recently one of the United States military attaches with the Russian army in Manchuria, were passengers arriving yesterday afternoon on the belated Union Pacific overland limited train No. 2, which arrived at the Union station at 2:30 p. m. Messrs. Ade and Little left at 2:55 over the Milwaukee for Chicago. Captain Judson remained in Omaha a few hours and pro ceeded to St. Louis, The party arrived at San Francisco last Thursday on the Korea and reached the scene of the landslide on the Union Pacific, near the Edson tunnel, Sunday morning.

Richard H. Little, or "Dick," as he is better known by his associates, was sent by the Chicago News to the seat of the war as a special correspondent. He was with talking about this ordinance yesterday the the Japanese army at New Chwang when the mikado's troops were captured there, and was taken with the Russian forces, At Mukden, when General Kouropatkin's army retreated. Ministers Ask Police Board to Close Salcons on Sunday

PETITION TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

Commissioner Nolan Tells Visiting Ministers that Time is Not Ripe Nor Public Sentiment Ready for the Step.

When the Board of Fire and Police Com missioners met in the council chamber last night a delegation from the South Omaha Ministerial associaton presented a request for Sunday closing of saloons. T. C. Marsh, secretary of the local Young Men's Chrisspoke briefly. Rev. Andrew Renwick, pastor of the United Presbyterian church. resented the association and requested that omething be done toward keeping the sahours. Rev. Renwick complimented the board on the reforms it had accomplished and then asked that the board go a little further. "If it is not deemed wise at this time to keep the saloons closed all day on Sunday the ministers of South Omaha on one of the excursions. There will be a would like to see places where liquor is being held." Mr." Nolan, speaking for the board, said that he feared that the business men might object to such action, and that the closing of saloons on Sunday would tend to send people elsewhere on Sundays. He also stated that if the board attempted to strictly enforce the Sunday closing law influence might be brought to bear on the next legislature with the result that the board might be wiped out of existence. "We are anxious," said Mr. Nolan, "to go just as far as public sentiment will support us." The delegation left with the understanding that the board would carefully consider the petition at some later date. Officer Jacob Small was granted a ten days' leave of absence, to commence on

Secretary Bergquist reported that a committee from the board and from the council visited several fire engine houses in Omaha yesterday for the purpose of getting an idea of what is wanted in the shape of a building for fire department headquarters here. The board recommended to the council that the engine house at Twenty-sev enth and Jones streets, Omaha, would be about the right thing. It was further recommended that a fire hall to cost about $15,000 be built at Twenty-fifth and L streets | the direction of W. H. Arranging for Convention. Friday evening committees from lodges No. 227, 66 and 328, Ancient Order of United Workmen, will meet at the temple to perfect arrangements for the state convention of the order to be held here commencing May 9. Programs are to be arranged and details for the entertainment of the delegates and visiting members completed. A banquet will most likely be one of the features of the convention. About 700 delegates and at least 300 visiting members of the order are expected to attend the convention. Hotel accommodation is one thing that is worrying the committee on arrangements. It is thought that a large number of the delegates will be entertained at the homes of members here, while quite a number will most likely stop in Omaha. Redding Meetings Close Thursday. On Thursday evening of this week the evangelistic meetings held for over two weeks at the First Presbyterian church will close. On this evening Rev. J. C. WOMAN WORKIES TO DEATH

Gertrude Smith, Stenographer in City Treasurer's Office, is Dead.

FEARED SHE WOULD LOSE HER POSITION

Nervous Prostration, Brought on by Overwork and Dread of Being Thrown Out of Employment Proves Fatal.

Three of her friends at the city hall say that the sudden death of Miss Gertrude Smith, stenographer in the city treasurer's office, early Tuesday morning, was caused by worry for fear she would lose her position through the merger of the city and county treasury departments under the new charter. Miss Smith died about 4 o'clock from a hemorrhage of the brain, induced by nervous prostration and a worn hall up to Friday night, when she in formed City Treasurer Hennings that she was feeling badly and wished to take a vacation of several days over Easter and visit her family at Brownville, Neb. Nothing more was heard from her at the office until the announcement of her death.

Miss Smith helped to support her family, which consisted of her father, who is a carpenter, her invalid mother, and a sister named Grace. She had lived and worked in Omaha for about seven years, having been employed by the Germania Life Insurance company and in the offices of an attorney before securing her place in the treasurer's office about two years ago. With the first money saved from her wages from the city, Miss Smith bought a wheeled chair for her mother, who has been in bad health and helpless for years. The confidants of Miss Smith at the city hall declare that when there was talk of retrenchment and cutting down the force in the treasurer's office previous to the making of the last annual levy for taxes, that Miss Smith was much worried and burst into tears while telling her fear that she might lose her position. Later, when the charter bill providing for the doing away with the city treasury department was discussed and introduced, she acted the same way. The matter weighed on her mind until the bill became a law, and despite the belief of Treasurer Hennings and others that arrangements for the merger were defective and that it could not take place, she grieved herself almost into a state of collapse, her friends say Recently Miss Smith was engaged in copying the charter for Mr. Hennings, and she had just finished it to the merger provision when she asked for a vacation. She was a woman of very nervous temper ament and no great physical strength. Worry and Overwork. C. W. Miller, 3418 Lafayette avenue, at whose home Miss Smith resided during most of her residence in Omaha, said: "Miss Smith was attended by Dr. W. O. Henry, who said that she was suffering from nervous prostration, due to overwork and worry, and that she should have been placed in a hospital a month ago. He advised that she could not safely return to work for a long time. No one had any dea that her condition was as dangerous as it was until about 10 o'clock Monday night when she began to sink rapidly. About midnight she became unonscious and remained so until she passed away. Miss Smith was a woman whose devotion to her family made her life a beautiful one. Her relatives at Brown ville have been informed, but the funeral
