

SCALY PSORIASIS 20 YEARS

Shed Dustpanful of Scales Every Night. Startling Story of Suffering.

CURED BY CUTICURA

After Doctors and Hospitals Pronounced Case Incurable—Prayed for Death—Body a Mass of Disease, Skin Cracked, Nails Fell Off, Hair Dead and Lifeless—Blessed Relief from First Application of Cuticura—Cured in Six Weeks.

I have been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. Ds. Psoriasis, and others Leprosy, commencing on my scalp and in spite of all I could do, with the help of the most skillful doctors, it slowly but surely extended until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in the form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there would be nearly a dustpanful of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything almost, that could be thought of, without relief. The 12th of June I started West, in hopes I could reach the Hot Springs. I reached Detroit and was so low I thought I should have to go to the hospital, but finally got as far as Lansing, Mich., where I had a sister living. One Dr. — treated me about two weeks, but did me no good. All thought I had but a short time to live. I earnestly prayed to die. Cracked through the skin all over my back, across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs; feet badly swollen; toe-nails came off; finger-nails dead and hard as a bone; hair dead, dry and lifeless as old straw. O my God! how I did suffer.

My sister, Mrs. E. H. Davis, had a small part of a box of Cuticura in the house. She wouldn't give up; said, "We will try Cuticura." Some was applied on one hand and arm. Eureka! there was relief; stopped the terrible burning sensation from the word go. They immediately got Cuticura Resolvent, Ointment and Soap. I commenced by taking one tablespoonful of Cuticura Resolvent three times a day after meals; had a bath once a day, water about blood heat; used Cuticura Soap freely; applied Cuticura Ointment morning and evening. Result: returned to my home in just six weeks from the time I left, and my skin as smooth as this sheet of paper.

Sworn to before me this nineteenth day of January, 1880.

A. M. LEFFINGWELL, Justice of the Peace.

We hereby certify that we are acquainted with the aforesaid Hiram E. Carpenter, and know his condition to have been as stated. We believe his statement to be true in every particular. (Signed), L. B. ## Cure Permanent March 20, '05

The above testimonial was given us in 1880, twenty-five years ago, and is published at this time to show that the cure was permanent, as Mr. Carpenter himself states in the following letter, written March 20, 1905: "I have never suffered with the disease since. The Cuticura remedies should come to the knowledge of every one troubled with skin diseases. They have genuine merit. If my own case had been the only one it would be different, but several cases have come to my knowledge just as wonderful as my own. I am now in my seventy-fourth year and in pretty good health."

(Signed), HIRAM E. CARPENTER, Henderson, N. Y., March 20, 1905.

The above is only one of many marvelous cures made by the Cuticura remedies. In this case, the cure not only meant escape from terrible suffering and freedom from disfigurement, but undoubtedly prolonged his life, as it is not probable that he could have lived in the condition he was before cured by Cuticura, after trying all known remedies without any benefit, and after having been pronounced incurable by Doctors and Hospitals.

PAT CROWE DECLARES SELF

Man Faces County Board Claiming to Be Famous Kidnap.

DEMANDS CONSIDERATION OF OFFICIALS

Brother of Fugitive Still Insists He is Not Within Thousand Miles—Tom O'Brien Tells of Meeting.

T. J. O'Brien, proprietor of the Henshaw hotel, is authority for the positive assurance of Pat Crowe's presence in Omaha. Mr. O'Brien, whose name has been bandied all over the country in press reports as a "friend" of Pat Crowe, indignantly denies this. "About 10 o'clock Friday night," says he, "a man called up and said he was Pat Crowe. He finally convinced me he was Pat Crowe and induced me to comply with his demand to telephone to a local newspaper and get a reporter whom he used to know. I arranged with the reporter, and we went down to the Auditorium. Crowe was there, together with a stranger. I have known Pat since he was 18 years old, and although he is greatly changed since five years ago, I recognize him as my own brother. I left the party before the interview was completed. There is no doubt but that the man was Crowe. I am an acquaintance, not a friend or associate."

Pat Crowe wants hearing. Pat Crowe, or a man claiming the right to this famous name, declared himself before the Board of County Commissioners Saturday morning in a way that brought the house to a right about face with a jerk.

It seems that after leaving the house of his good friends on Farnam street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth, Friday night, the new literary light in the field of moral philosophy walked back on his own tracks after going "west on Fifteenth street" and took refuge in the basement of the court house. This was not difficult, because there are several dungeon-like jury rooms, into which no one ever goes unless forced there.

Evidently "Mr. Crowe" slept undisturbed until the racket made by the visitors to the county board meeting woke him up Saturday morning. He was not in a very lamb-like humor when he did awake, having evidently imbued with his own drink the one his newspaper pal had refused. So, when he walked into the county board room during the session and gave out the announcement, "I am Pat Crowe, and I demand consideration, gentlemen."

Superintendent Joe McCaffrey of the court house jumped for "Mr. Crowe," standing defiantly on the floor, like "young Brennan" on the moor. McCaffrey laid hands on him, but his neighbor, Chairman Kennard or any other commissioner was jumping over the table or railing to shake hands with "Mr. Crowe" the superintendent hesitated.

How He Looked.

In the house a good look was had at "Mr. Crowe." He was of good height, stout, with a dark mustache marked with gray, his hair was gray about the temples, and at the waist line it would require a good large belt to surround him. He was dressed neatly in dark clothes and wore no vest. A dark shirt covered his big chest and he made a decidedly good impression as a physical specimen. There was a lurking smile of mischievousness about the corners of his mouth and his eyes twinkled with pleasure at the sensation he was creating. "Mr. Crowe," McCaffrey, seeing no one wanted Mr. Crowe for any purpose, useful or otherwise, gently led him out into the corridor. As a parting shot Pat remarked, "It's all right, boys. I'm here to stay now; come and see me."

So Mr. Crowe disappeared "once more" and when McCaffrey came back he said he didn't believe it was Crowe, anyway. There are others about town who know the kidnaper who say this man is not Crowe; still others who say it is.

"I think this man must have been drinking or was a crazy man," observed Chief Donahue, with reference to the man who appeared at the court house. The chief, like others, does not doubt Crowe is here, but thinks this fellow is not he.

Notwithstanding this man's actual appearance, John Crowe, Pat's brother, who operates a saloon in Council Bluffs, still insists that his famous brother is not in Council Bluffs nor Omaha. When asked this morning about the matter, he repeated his assertion of the day before:

"In my opinion Pat is not within 1,000 miles of Omaha."

Other men in Council Bluffs, close to Crowe's affair, also state that Pat is not in that part of the country. Callahan, Pat's alleged accomplice, however, stoutly maintains now that Pat Crowe is here and that he has been in consultation with him during the last few days.

Facts of the Man's Return.

Here are what officers of the law and other authorities give as the facts regarding the mysterious return of Pat Crowe, the chief kidnaper of Eddie Cudahy, December 19, 1900:

Pat Crowe was in Omaha not only on the night of May 5, 1905, but many times since the kidnapping.

It has been under the surveillance of the Pinkerton Detective agency for about three years, during which, at any time, he could have been taken.

Crowe was not arrested because the Pinkerton agency did not have the evidence that would convict him for the Cudahy kidnapping or of several crimes committed since that time of which he is suspected.

Should Crowe be arrested, or surrender himself to the Omaha police he will not be prosecuted for the Cudahy kidnapping, or if so, only as a matter of form, because he cannot now be convicted, having altered so in appearance that witnesses that could have identified him five years ago could not do so now. (This comes from authoritative sources.)

According to officers of the Pinkerton agency, Crowe would have given himself up in Omaha long ago had he been sure the agency would not arrest him and cause his conviction for other crimes, namely, the robbery of a large amount of money from the Adams Express company at Lincoln, the holding of a Burlington train near Lincoln and a street car holdup at Aurora, Ill., in which Crowe's old pal, Taylor, said to have been one of the Cudahy kidnappers, was killed. It was through the agency that Crowe got three years in the penitentiary in Missouri on the charge of robbing a Burlington train near St. Joseph.

No Evidence to Convict.

According to P. S. Barton, superintendent of the Omaha office of the Pinkerton agency, there is not now in its possession evidence to convict Crowe on any of these counts nor the kidnapping. "If there had been the fugitive would have been arrested long ago."

"There is no doubt but that Pat Crowe was in Omaha Friday night, arranged a meeting with a reporter, conversed with the latter and disappeared," said Chief of Police Donahue, to whom the Pat Crowe matter has become one huge nightmare. "I am informed that the man who introduced Crowe to the reporter was Tom O'Brien, proprietor of the Henshaw hotel. My opinion is that Crowe arranged with the World-Herald for the interview on the theory that he could induce this paper to take up his end of the matter and become his champion. I did not know of Crowe's visit here until I read the paper. The detectives I sent to Council Bluffs Thursday were unable to get any trace of Pat Crowe. I am doing all that I can to have Crowe arrested, but I doubt if there is one man in the department who would recognize him. Crowe always makes his talk, appears in public and then disappears. It is a hard matter to effect his capture."

"I am as certain that Pat Crowe was in Omaha Friday night as I am that you are sitting in that chair," said Superintendent Barton of the Pinkerton agency. "He has been here and in the vicinity sixteen times, if he has been here once since his crime. I do not want to cast any discredit upon Chief of Police Donahue by making these statements. Chief Donahue is an excellent chief of police, sincere, honest and capable, but Pat Crowe is one of the most elusive and lucky criminals in the world."

Lived in Chicago.

"What Crowe says about his living in Chicago is correct. He has said that he was there for about three years, and not with his brother, Steve, in the Revere house, but apart from that. He has been under surveillance all that time. It was desired to prove that he had held up a Burlington train in Nebraska, robbed the Adams Express company and participated in a street car holdup at Aurora, Ill., in which Taylor was killed. At any time, I dare say, a Pinkerton operative could have arrested him. There was simply no object in arresting him at all, unless we had grounds for it, and these we did not have and have not."

"The reason why Pat Crowe does not walk into the office of the chief of police and give himself up is because he is afraid the Pinkerton agency is lying back, waiting for an opportunity to get hold of him and 'railroad' him through to the penitentiary. This he claims was effected in Missouri for a train robbery that he did not commit. His claims of innocence are not true. He was guilty. I take no stock in his professions as to reform."

Crowe Identifies Him.

General John C. Jowin, E. A. Cudahy's attorney, laughed at the Crowe interview. "It's Crowe all right and no mistake," said the general. "Note the way he begins with his early life, tells the story of his first theft, remarks his heroic conduct in the beer army and expresses his good intentions. He understands human nature and wants to make out a good case for himself and establish a good impression."

"All that I will say about the matter is this: James Callahan, now conceded to have been one of the kidnappers, was tried for robbery, was proven guilty, and was acquitted by the jury. From that time on I lost all immediate interest in the case and advised Mr. Cudahy to do the same. That is all I will say for publication."

"I have not seen or heard from the gentleman," was the reply of E. A. Cudahy, father of the boy who was kidnapped, when asked if Crowe had communicated with him or offered to negotiate for peace. "I should think that if Pat Crowe is here the chief of police would know it, it is, ought to get him," added Mr. Cudahy.
