DODGE WANTS PUBLIC BATHS

Advocates Their Establishment and Maintenance at Expense of City.

THINKS COST WOULD NOT BE GREAT

Suggests Missouri River at Foot of Douglas Street as Advantageous Place for This Kind of Resort.

Representative N. P. Dodge, Jr., is advocating the establishment of municipal baths along the river and will urge the matter before the city council. He thinks public baths are much needed in the city during the summer and that they should be built and maintained by the municipal government, as in many other cities the size of Omaha and larger all over the world. He probably will send a letter to the council setting forth his idea next week. Mr. Dodge says:

"As the time approaches for the hot weather it occurs to me that during all the discussion of municipal reform, municipal cleanliness and public playgrounds, that the clubs for civic improvements have not thought enough of keeping in touch with the larger cities of the east and cities of all sizes in Europe in maintaining public baths. In some cases, as in London and continental cities, a very small fee is charged, for the baths are maintained winter and summer. But in all cities on tidewater or rivers the municipality maintains free baths in the form of floating barges with sunken bottoms, and around the edges dressing rooms."

"Through the sunken part of the barge, the current has free ingress and egress, so that the water is constantly changing, and during every hot day and night in the large cities you will see the boys and men lined up waiting their turn for a cold plunge. The boys are allowed to use the place as much as they please within reasonable bounds, and it is a great pleasure and benefit to the workmen to end the day's labor by a bath at the public bath house in the river or bay, at the case may be. Similar baths are built and maintained for the girls and women throughout the season."

Cost Very Small.

"Such a bath is of very small cost and certainly the Missouri river is a very advantageous place for Omaha to maintain a public floating bath house. There is scarcely anything that could bring so much pleasure and help to a class of people who have no vacation and few luxuries. The park board spends a large sum of money in making artificial parks and drives, and other departments of the municipal government spend large sums of money making the city attractive for the home owners and all classes of people who have means of enjoying the boulevards, but there is nothing that would bring so much daily pleasure and health to the lives of the very poor as a public bathing boat anchored to the west bank of the Missouri river at the foot of Douglas street."

"There probably are many boats or barges on the Missouri river that could be bought at a low price and fixed up for the purpose, or even a new one would probably not cost any more than the expense of laying out a golf course in Miller park, if as much. Of course conveniences should be provided for women and girls as well as men and boys."

Souvenir Book on Omaha.
A handsome souvenir booklet, with half-tone pictures of the members of the Commercial club and the best buildings of Omaha, is to be issued by the club for use in the booklet. In former years the publication has been but an insignificant affair, but this year it was decided that a little better advertisement ought to be put out.

SMALL BUTCHER HAS A WORD

Independent Dealer Makes Suggestion as to Line of Inquiry.

BEEF TRUST HEARING TAKES RECESS

More Witnesses Sent for and Grand Jury Adjourns until Monday, When These Men Will Arrive.

Pending the arrival of additional witnesses who have been subpoenaed, the federal grand jury conducting the Beef trust inquiry at noon Friday adjourned until 2 p. m. Monday.

The witnesses examined Friday morning were: M. A. Price, a traveling man for the Swift Packing company; Alma Jackson, live stock commissioner of South Omaha; J. W. Lattin, Frank Biss, R. Gilchrist and Fred Patterson, South Omaha commission men; John Powers and W. H. Powers, farmers and stockmen from Humboldt, Neb.

Twenty-two witnesses have been examined thus far, and practically all phases of the question of combination between the packers and commission men gone over. The total number of witnesses thus far subpoenaed is seventy-six, and subpoenas were issued for fifty additional witnesses.

These fifty witnesses will be largely butchers and independent meat men out in the state, with special reference to those located in the southeastern part of the state and near to the great packing centers and dependent upon the packers for their supplies of dressed meats.

One of the witnesses stated:

"There is one phase of the question that should be looked into by the jury and that is the practice of representatives of the packers selling direct to large consumers, such as the hotels, in localities where the butchers dare undertake to conduct an independent business. Then, again, they will manage to induce large general stores to establish a meat market in their concerns and undersell the independent butchers and sooner or later drive the latter out of the business. Another feature that should be looked into is the building up of great chicken purchasing houses in the smaller towns, near the source of supply. These chicken houses invariably are very large establishments and they employ agents with wagons to scour the country and buy up all available poultry, dress it at their establishments and put it in cold storage for shipment to the big centers. This dressed poultry is sold to the meat dealers on commission and is practically destroying the domestic trade in poultry. I have known instances in my own vicinity where farmers' wives have brought the latest kind of

MONEY REFUNDED TO LODGERS

Hotel Clerk Responds to Request Supported by Two Large Pistols.

George F. McCreary, night clerk at the Thurston hotel, can now tell exactly how a man feels when two revolvers are pointed at him and two determined-looking men have hold of them. At 3 o'clock Friday morning two men applied for a room and after registering their names as H. F. Malvern and J. C. Malvern of Kansas City, they gave the clerk a dollar and were assigned to a room. A few minutes after the men had gone to the room they reappeared in the office and demanded their money back, saying they did not like the room. The clerk refused, stating that the rule of the house was not to do so after guests had gone to the room assigned them. The men continued to argue the matter, becoming more and more determined not to leave or take the room. Clerk McCreary, tiring of the talk, turned away, when he was stopped with the demand:

"Say, young fellow; you just hand over that dollar or I will put a hole through you."

Turning around Clerk McCreary faced a big revolver and the hole in it, he says, became bigger and bigger as he looked at it. Before he had time to answer the demand made on him the other man drew his revolver and informed him that if one hole was not enough there would be a second perforation made in very short order.

"I did not want to be urged further," said Mr. McCreary, "but gave them back their money, and was mighty glad to see them put up their money and leave the house. I notified the police and gave a description of the men, but a search of all the hotels failed to locate them. They evidently feared an arrest and must have left the city."

CRIMINAL DOCKET MUST WAIT

Trial Cannot Begin Until After Beef Trust Hearing.

It now begins to look as if the trial of the criminal docket of the United States district court will not begin until about May 25, as it is probable the Beef trust inquiries before the grand jury will continue until that time. Certainly nothing can be done with the criminal docket until Judge Baxter can be relieved of his duties with the grand jury.

The trial of the breach of contract case in the matter of the Board of Commissioners of Nemaha county, Kansas, against Alex Campbell and other contractors, is still on before Judge Mungler in the United States circuit court. Among the more important witnesses testifying in this case yesterday was George A. Berlinghof of Beatrice, architect of the court house in controversy.

Omaha Indians in 1855.
OMAHA, May 11.—To the Editor of The Bee: I notice in your issue of April 28, an article written by E. E. Blackman of the State Historical society in which he makes the statement that the Omaha Indians were very poor and lived in a very crude manner.

I was a visitor at the Omaha village just fifty years ago today and desire to come to the defense of the tribe from which the city of Omaha gets its name by saying that the Omahas would not be considered poor by any means. They were peaceable and the squaws raised corn and pumpkins. The village that I visited on May 19, 1855, was situated at the forks of the Papio five miles west of Bellevue, and the farming was done to the south and west of the village. There were about 1,000 Omahas living here, and some few at the trading post at Bellevue.

They were a cleanly, peaceable tribe. The government first broke the prairie and they tilled the soil largely with the hoe. Game was scarce. Bacon and meal were good food in those days. What game came in from the hunting expeditions was a luxury. The "caches" or cisterns, in form of a large jug, were built in the hills and used as granaries. The double "caches" one below the other, were so placed to protect a reserve stock of corn from the Sioux, who were at war with almost every other nation. The corn was stored in bags made of skins and some few were of cotton. The village was built about 1850, and remained here until they went north to Blackbird reservation, now Thurston, in the fall of 1855.

Loagan Fontenelle, known as the white-skins' friend, was chief of the Omahas at that time, afterwards killed by Sioux on a buffalo hunt.

Joseph La Fleche was elected chief. The literal of Omaha means brotherly-creek.

ITCHING SCALP HUMOR

Lady Suffered Tortures Until Cured by Cuticura.

SCRATCHED DAY AND NIGHT

"My scalp was covered with little pimples and I suffered tortures from the itching. I was scratching all day and night, and I could get no rest. I washed my head with hot water and Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment as a dressing. One box of the ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap cured me. Now my head is entirely clear and my hair is growing splendidly. I have used Cuticura Soap ever since, and shall never be without it. (signed) Ada C. Smith, 509 Grand St., Jersey City, N. J."
