CONDITION OF OMAHA'S TRADE

More Buyers on the Market Last Week Than for Some Time Past.

BUSINESS IN COUNTRY SATISFACTORY

Aside from a Reduction in Sugar of Ten Cents Per Hundred Pounds Very Few Changes Took

Trade in Omaha and surrounding territory last week was of very satisfactory proportions. Local jobbers reported a good many visiting buyers on the market, owing largely to the fact that conventions of various kinds brought a good many merchants to the city, and as a result house business with wholesalers was better than it has been for some little rime and better. chants to the city, and as a result house business with wholesalers was better than it has been for some little time and better than usual for the time of year. As a general thing the retailers who were interviewed on the subject reported husiness out through the country as being in good shape. Warmer weather would of course make lightweight goods move more freely, but at the same time there has been an excellent trade on medium weight stuff and that has more than offset the lack of activity on strictly warm weather goods. That trade is bound to come later in the season. Such lines as shoes are a little slow, as it takes hot weather to make people lay aside their winter footwear. Hardware, lumber, farm implements, furniture, dry goods, groceries, and in fact nearly all lines handled by Omaha jobbers, seen to be going into consumption at a very satisfactory rate.

Omaha retailers have also been doing a very fair volume of business and very little complaint is heard from any quarter. Dealers in all lines seem to be confident of a good, brisk demand throughout the spring Dealers in all lines seem to be confident of a good, brisk demand throughout the spring and summer and in fact see no reason why business should not continue in good why business should not continue in good shape for some time to come.

Markets on most lines have been rather featureless during the week under review. Groceries have fluctuated up and down to some extent, but most lines have been about steady. This, however, is a time of year when changes on staple lines are not very frequent. Those who are in a position to know predict good, healthy markets for some time to come.

some time to come. Wholesale grocers report the volume of business in their line for last week as being heavier than it was the previous week and it also compares very favorably with a year ago. The market on most lines is being firmly held, but the augar market is a trifle easier than it was a week ago. The reduction on refined grades at this point amounts to about 10 cents per 100 pounds. Jobbers say that it is rather difficult to tell at this time what the final outcome will be, as the future course of the market depends almost entirely upon the Sugar Trifle Ensier.

of the pack, for with a small acreage and a favorable season it is quite possible to pack more tins than with a large acreage and an unproductive season. That being the case, it is seen that the acreage does not finally determine the size of the pack. There is some talk among Columbia riversalmon packers of either withdrawing or advancing their prices on Chinooks. The market on sardines and cysters is quoted strong at the last advance, but there have been few changes during the week under review.

Prices on evaporated peaches for fall Prices on evaporated peaches for fall delivery were named by certain shippers last week, but jobbers consider it too early in the season to secure reliable information regarding the final output. The prices named, however, are said to be about the same as the opening quotations a year ago. It is expected that apricots will be much cheaper than they were a year ago, but so far only speculative prices have been named, and, while there was some tendency last week to say what level will finally be reached. Other staple lines of groceries are seiling in just about the same notches they were a week ago.

Hardware Active and Firm.

The hardware market is quoted as being very active for the time of year. Farmers are, of course, very busy with their spring work at this time of the year, but novertheless the demand for all staple and seasonable lines mas so far been of very satisfactory proportions, and, in fact, better than it was a year ago. A good deal of building is in progress out through the country and more is being planned, and all such work requires considerable hardware. Then, too, the demand for all seasonable lines, such as wire cloth, poultry netting, steel goods, screen doors and refrigerators, is very heavy and keeping uplater in the season than usual. Retailers all report business in the country as being very brisk, with every indication of its remaining that way for some time to come. Farm implements are also moving out at a very satisfactory rate and the demand for wagons and buggles is exceptionally large. Hardware Active and Firm.

The hardware market is in just about the same position it was a week ago. There may have been a few minor changes, but the more important lines have shown no quotable changes and the market is quoted as firm. Those who ought to know say that every indication at the present time is for a firm market for several months to come, as the demand from all sections of the country is so great that manufacturers are getting farther and farther behind with their orders every day, and as long as that is the case there is not much prospect of any reduction in prices. That being the situation, both jobbers and retailers feel safe in carrying as liberal stocks as eel safe in carrying as liberal stocks as heir needs dictate. Good Demand for Dry Goods. There were more dry goods merchants the city last week than have been here in the city last week than have been here at any time since the rush of spring business came to a close. A great many of them came for the express purpose of buying dry goods, while others came to attend some convention and made use of the opportunity to sort up their stocks. The result was that local jobbers enjoyed a very nice business. Retailers all had a good word to say regarding the condition of trade in the country and nearly all of them said they had sold more medium weight stuff than ever before. As soon as warmer weather sets in they expect to do equally well with their light weight goods. so upon the consumption of refined grades in this country. One of the largest consumptive periods of the year is now at thand and the demand during the next illimit to sixty days will depend upon how seriously the truit crop over the country at large has been damaged. A good fruit crop always means a very heavy demand for sugars, but it is impossible at this time to liteli what the final outcome of the crop will be this season. They find meritively have again ease off.

The corres market is still advancing and there is every indication of still higher prices in the near future. The largest operators and holders in New York are said to be very firm in their views and do not seem at all anxious to sell except at full list prices.

The cheese market is unchanged from a week ago, the demand still being in excess of the supply. It is thought that in two or three weeks practically all of the factories will be running, at which time surplus stock should begin to accumulate.

The canned goods situation attracted very little attention last week. The market on the fucing prices in the present and tomatoes has shown no improvement and thore does not seem to be flucing prospect of any immediate advance. Consumption, however, is very heavy and the surplus stock is being gradually reduced. The belief among jobbers is that the present stagnant condition as regards futures is bound to rosult in a smaller pack of towards. A proceeding the property of the pack, for with a small acreage and an unproductive season. That being and an unp the high shoes uncomfortable, and as a result a backward spring retards the shoe business to a marked degree. Retailers, though, are doing very little complaining, for, all things considered, they they have had a very fair trade so far, and that convinces them that when the proper weather conditions do arrive that they will enjoy a very liberal patronage.

Orders for fall delivery are now coming in quite freely and the general impression is that traveling men will land more advance orders this year than they did last.
